Memory brings dear Willie near us,
Though he died one year ago.

Inserted by his loving mother and father.

And take my sins away.

CHINA'S CERAMIC ART.

It was from the Dutch that the Engli acquired the taste for Oriental porcelai
Queen Mary, whose collection at Hampto Court is mentioned by Evelyn, was sponsible for the new fashion. "T Queen," says Defoe, "brought in t custom or humour, as I may call it, furnishing houses with China ware, whi increased to a strange extent afterward piling their China upon the tops cabinets, scrutores, and every chymn piece to the top of the ceilings, and eve setting up shelves for their China wa where they wanted such places, till became a grivance in the expence of and even injurious to their families a estates." Under Queen Anne the passi for collecting persisted. A writer on t social life of that period quotes an adve tisement which runs: "Whereas the Ne East India Company did lately sell their China ware, these are to adverti that a very large parcel thereof (as broke and damaged) is now to be sold by whol sale and retail, extremely cheap, at warehouse in Dyer's Yard. Note.—It very fit to furnish escrutores, cabinet corner-cupboards, or spriggs, where usually stands for ornament only."

Macaulay jeers at this folly, at th statesmen and generals who were n ashamed to be renowned as judges of te pots and dragons. Yet modern taste e dorses the judgment of the fashionab world of Queen Mary and Queen Ann
The late Lord Kitchener was not ashame to be renowned as a collector of Orient China. The finer China porcelain stan to-day higher than ever in the opinio of experts. The circle of devotees of t study of this branch of ceramics is eve widening. Mr. Hobson, in his introdu tion, analyses the passion of these experts
"The mere possession of such things a joy; but it is only part of the collector joy in them. To understand them, to un ravel their secrets and to find their prope place in ceramic history is a delightfu preoccupation for his leisure, and its in herent difficulties make it all the mor satisfying." It is this quality of elusive ness, combined with the essential beaut of the ware, that makes the enthusiasm of the collector seem a sort of frenzy t the uninitiated. Mr. Hetherington ha produced a book which will commend itse at once to the expert. Its object, he say very modestly, is to put before the co lector useful information. But what before us is something greater than a co lector's guide. It is a thoroughly scientif exposition of the ceramic art of Chin arranged in its historical and social pe spective.

A detailed review of this work woul occupy more space than these columns afford; a partial review would not do jus tice to the author's industry and erudi tion. He has produced a book which i likely to be of more general use to th collector than any single work with which we are acquainted. At the same time h has treated his subject with a vivid sym pathy and a pleasant lucidity which mak even one who has only a superficial know ledge and a lukewarm interest rise from a perusal of this book with a determina tion to join the ranks of the devotees.
The letter press and illustrations, many o which are in colour, deserve all praise.

THE REAL TSARITSA.

This is a truly pathetic book. We mee the writer as a young girl, and we ca see, as the years roll on, the association between the Empress and herself ripening from acquaintanceship to intimacy. No does Madame Dehn shut her eyes to facts.
She was well aware of the unpopularity of her mistress. She can see that th Empress loved to make friends of thos with whom she came into daily contact, and that the higher ranks of the nobility felt that they were kept outside. Madame Dehn has much to say about Rasputin, and she makes us understand the positio of such a man at the Russian Court. O course, she has not the faintest troubl in clearing the Empress and her family from all the wanton accusations of immorality which were flung at them.

We learn that the Russian aristocracy never tried to understand the real Tsaritsa. Their pride was up in arms against her, and she found no favour in their eyes. Madame Dehn cites a case in point. Princess Bariatinsky, who was one of the maids of honour to the Empress, was a charming woman, but, like most of the aristocracy, she was excessively proud. One day, hearing that the Empress was about to go out, the Princess held herself in readiness to accompany her; but the Empress left the Palace by another entrance, accompanied by Mlle.
Schneider, a lady who gave her lessons in Russian. This unintentional slight was so much for the Princess. She, metaphorically and literally, put on her hat, and departed never to return, remarking,
Quand une Bariatinsky met son chapeau c'est pour sortir!

Here lay the elements of that misunderstanding of Russia which was to have such fatal consequences for civilisation. It was helped by the scandals which were spread about the Empress—her dabbling in occult practices, her belief in spiritualism, her attempts to call up the dead in order to influence her husband, who is supposed to have indulged in various dramatic séances
at the Winter Palace. Madame Dehn clears the Empress with the utmost success from charges of this kind, and explains her retired life by her shy disposition. She was a delicate woman with a weak heart, and at times experienced grave difficulty in breathing. She was apt to get suddenly cross, but she usually kept her feelings well under control.
Apart from her delicate health, there was another reason for her periods of retirement. The Tsarevitch and the Grand Duchesses were often ailing; the Empress was a devoted mother, and she insisted upon being with her children and sharing the duties of a nurse.

Madame Dehn insists that the occultism of the Empress has been grossly exaggerated. Her superstitions were of the most trivial description. She thought that a bright day was propitious for a journey, that the gift of an ikon to her was not

She thought that a bright day was propitious for a journey, that the gift of an ikon to her was not propitious. Her fancy for the sign of the Swastika was not for the Swastika as a charm, but only as a symbol. The Empress told the author that the ancients believed in the Swastika as the source of motion, the emblem of divinity. The significance of it as a luck-bringer never crossed her mind. "Faith, love, and hope are all that matter," she used to say. She possessed a strong element of mysticism which coloured much of her life. This was akin to the dreaming propensities of her grandfather, the Prince Consort.

OLD ENGLISH FURNITURE.

Time is kinder, as a rule, to the weapons of war than to the trappings of peace. We have the instruments with which palæolithic and neolithic man hunted and fought. We have swords and spear-heads which could have been drenched in the carnage of Troy; but the spade of the archæologist has not discovered for us chairs on which Helen or Penelope might have sat or tables at which the suitors of the latter dame might have feasted. There is an exception or two to prove this rule. At Cnossos one can see a throne of stone from which Minos may have delivered splendid arbitraments. At Athens there are the beautiful marble chairs in the Theatre of Dionysos; and the tombs of Etruria have yielded a few chairs of state in bronze. But the masterpieces of ancient woodcraft have perished. A few insignificant examples of wooden furniture have been rescued from the tombs of Egypt. Not a single specimen of the mahogany of the Roman, the citrus for which such immense sums were given by connoisseurs —Cicero gave a million sesterces for his table—has been preserved. The charm of the antique appealed to the Greek and Roman; they collected old bronzes, old plate, old pictures, and old sculpture. The forger and the faker plied their craft at the expense of the Roman parvenu.

The collection of old furniture, however, is comparatively recent. The book before us is designed primarily for the collector. It explains in great detail the special features which lend beauty and value to the genuine products of the old cabinet-makers. At the same time are exposed the tricks of the manufacturer of spurious pieces, and the various solecisms which the faker is apt to commit. Mr. Symonds lays special stress on patina—a point which is generally overlooked in books on old furniture. He goes so far as to maintain that "a piece of bad proportion, with coarse carving and poor workmanship, may be saved from inferiority by the possession of good patina and colour." The chronological side is not neglected. The author is perhaps, somewhat too terse in his treatment of this aspect of his subject. What lends this book a special value is the wealth of magnificent illustrations and the taste and discretion which have governed Mr. Symonds's selection.

Though he has limited his title to English furniture, he devotes a chapter to Irish furniture. His reason for doing so may touch the more sensitive of our countrymen. "From the point of view," he says, "of the collector of English furniture, a knowledge of Irish furniture is of importance, in that it will prevent him from purchasing pieces of Irish origin in the belief that they are English." However, he confines his remarks to furniture dating between 1725 and 1755, which he considers the distinctively "Irish" period. He finds it heavy, over-ornamented, inelegant. Even the beauty of the dark San Domingo mahogany does not appeal to him. The lack of Irish specimens of the oak and walnut period is attributed to the social conditions which prevailed in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries in this country. After 1755 Irish cabinet-makers conformed to the standard set by English craftsmen.

"The Present State of Old English Furniture." By R. W. Symonds. London: Duckworth.

A PHILOSOPHER.

Mr. Hutchinson is well-known as an agreeable writer on topics connected with outdoor life, on natural history, and on golf. In "The Fortnightly Club" he breaks new ground, and shows how deep is his interest in subjects of a philosophical character. Every man is more or less a philosopher. Everyone has some sort of working theory of God and man and morality, of life and death and destiny. Man is compelled to adjust himself in thought to all that is not self. Thus we are all, in fact, metaphysicians, though we may not know it.

Mr. Hutchinson counts on this universal interest in philosophical questions, and his book should make a wide appeal. He avoids the use of the highly technical language of philosophy, and he has cast his arguments in the form of debates among friends in a club. He accepts broadly the evolutionary doctrine, but recognises that there are "breaks" in the process, and that something new entered when life appeared, and again when the created man awakened to self-consciousness and to spirituality. Among the subjects dealt with in these chapters are animal psychology, man's age on the earth, the earth's place in space, human reason, human spirituality, pain and sin.

One chapter entitled "The Real Armageddon" will arrest most readers, and will probably alarm them, if men can be alarmed by a prospect that will not materialise for another two hundred years. Mr. Hutchinson calculates that at the present rate of increase of the human race there will not be room on the earth for its inhabitants in another couple of centuries. Man has been on the earth for, perhaps, a million years, but for various reasons he has multiplied slowly down till quite recent times. But "at the present rate of increase population doubles in one hundred years. That means that in the next hundred years it will have increased by 1,500,000,000, making 3,000,000,000,000 in all." Another hundred years and the population will have reached the total of 6,000,000,000. Will there be room for them? Possibly. But let another hundred years pass and humanity will have grown to 12,000,000,000 —"a number which no human being in his senses can suppose for a moment would find sustenance on the earth." How the human race of the future will deal with this portentous problem we can form no opinion, and we need not worry over it. We may suppose that the evolutionary process, whether we take a theistic view of it or not, will not end in universal catastrophe. Progress and ascent have marked the process hitherto, and are surely some sort of guarantee against a final disaster. We heartily commend Mr. Hutchinson's interesting studies to our readers.

THE OLD NAVY.

The chief value of Vice-Admiral Fleet's book will be found in the extraordinary contrast which it affords between the Service as it was in the "'sixties," and as it is to-day. In the earlier chapters we are introduced to a Navy to all intents and purposes still largely Elizabethan in character. Gradually, as the story passes from ship to ship, the picturesque "wooden walls" are replaced by armoured ships of one type or another until the huge, vicious, drab-coloured battleship of to-day comes before our eyes. One is apt to forget how very modern are the armaments with which we have become so well acquainted during the last few years. Here are two sentences which almost cause one to rub one's eyes and look again to see if one has read aright:—"We commissioned the Tartar on June 30th, 1891, and I commenced a new phase of naval life. Farewell to yards and sails; farewell to the muzzle-loading gun."

Equally marked is the change that has taken place in the treatment of the naval seaman. Public opinion nowadays would not tolerate for a moment the infliction of such a cruelty as four dozen lashes on a man for stealing a basin of sugar. What Jack Tar would be content in this year of grace with a breakfast of cocoa with "biscuit often swarming with weevils"?

The book is plainly written, free from technicalities, and is plentifully interspersed with yarns which prove the writer to possess an observant eye and a keen sense of humour. The Admiral was no lover of the German naval officers whom he came across. There is a suggestion of constant friction. "These people were always trying to stir up mischief," and they seem never to have lost an opportunity of sneering at the British or French navies.

H. G. WELLS.

Admirers of Mr. H. G. Wells will find matter to substantiate their claims in this fairly comprehensive examination of his works and utterances. Yet Mr. Sydney Dark is not altogether laudatory when discussing Mr. Wells's plans and writings for the betterment of the world. Rather, he takes pains to sift them, and to show that honesty of purpose and vision is sometimes their chief good. The book, nevertheless, keeps essentially to "outline," but outline of such vigour and suggestion that we feel that we really get in touch with both the writer and his subject. For the benefit of those who may have been drawn to think otherwise from his early writings, we may say that Mr. Wells has become convinced of the existence of God. It is not strange that in trying to solve the riddle of the universe Mr. Wells should have found its Creator. But he has the habit, so to speak, of thinking in public, and his sincerity and indifference to public opinion urge him to express his mental attitude of the moment, heedless as to how it compares with his case of mind of yesterday.

Mr. Dark sums up the phases of this brilliant mentality with understanding and discrimination. Read side by side with Mr. Wells's more important books, these thoughts will help to combat and to forward many shafts from Mr. Wells. The book, in fact, is critical appreciation, founded on common-sense and a knowledge of the vagaries of men of letters in search of a reading public.

NEW VERSE.

Mr. James Laver gives us a very varied selection in "His Last Sebastian, and Other Poems." There are a few dramatic monologues, written in that broken, rugged metre which Browning was the first to introduce. There are some descriptive poems embodying a mood; some sonnets, among which that on the ruins of Arras deserves very high praise; and there is "The Perfect Knight," a really beautiful narrative poem of mediæval days and unrequited love. In our opinion the last-mentioned far outshines the others in its intensity and its poetic beauty of expression. Elsewhere Mr. Laver shows himself to be too easily controlled by his ever-changing moods. Here he is in complete command—an artist standing outside his own conception.

"Conna" and "The Death of Deirdre" are two poems which should attract all lovers of poetry to Mr. Maurice Stewart Collis's slender volume of verse. Both, as the names suggest, are Irish romances, and both are written in the sweet-slipping Spenserian stanza, but in a manner which suggests the guidance of Keats rather than that of the Elizabethan. Mr. Collis's verse halts occasionally; but on the whole the standard of all the poems is high, while those which we have singled out for special mention show real poetic inspiration and beauty of expression.

RECENT FICTION.

Changeling heroines are not new as a plot, but Miss Dorothea Conyers has told a very plausible story about Kathleen Donovan and Philippa Kavanagh, with which is blended her sound knowledge of horses and hunting. The big house is left unoccupied while the squire mends his fortunes in America. He sends home his little daughter, Philippa, in care of a maid for an English education; but this maid, Kavanagh, has a grudge against her mistress and changes Philippa for her own Kathleen. Through the years after the return of the squire she plots to marry the real heiress to a lowly man and then to produce proofs of the substitution, and thus mortify the lady of the big house. In the meantime, the real Kathleen in Philippa's shoes is difficult and out of place in the mansion. One day she falls through the ice of the Black Lake in the presence of the lady's maid, her real mother, who in her distraction discloses the deceit. An unobtrusive love interest combines with the straightening of the tangle to give a happy ending.

Hugh Carden Ali, "Hawk of Egypt," is the son of the Arab Sheik and Jill Carden—whom readers of "Desert Love" will remember—and the author works out a disturbing racial question in her presentation of his destiny. Hugh, to please his mother, is brought up and educated as an English youth at Harrow and Oxford. He takes his place easily in English society until the contempt of a spiteful woman hurls at him the word "half-caste!" He returns to Egypt and to the life of an Oriental, but here Damaris Hethencourt crosses his path, and his love for her results in tragedy. Social doings in Cairo and the grandeur of the desert are ably described by the author in subtly contrasting scenes.

Donald King is a well-known "College" man, married to a city-bred wife of the modern spoiled variety. But the love of the backwoods is in King's New Hampshire blood, and a turn of fate makes of him a backwoodsman and throws his lot among primitive folk in the wild country. King, who has shot an admirer of his wife, and believes that he has killed him, finds refuge in the rude dwelling of great-hearted Joe Dale and his daughter. Here he is nursed through sickness by "Pansy Girl," and saves her in turn from the sinister attentions of a half-breed. The story follows the course foreseen by the reader, but it is well constructed and interesting.

Lydia Thorne is a wealthy and beautiful American, the leader of her smart circle, and her own mistress. Insolent and selfish, she acknowledges no law save that of her will. Her reckless driving of a motor car results in the killing of a policeman, and Lydia is surprised to find that there is another law to be reckoned with. Through the efforts of a young district attorney, who holds strongly socialistic views, she is sentenced to a long term of imprisonment, and it is this experience that brings out all the latent good in the girl's nature. The book is undeniably clever, and the situation between Lydia and the man who is responsible for her punishment is drawn with force and intuition.

"Manslaughter." By Alice Duer Miller. Parsons. 7/6 net.

The author of "The Dippers" has written another laughter-brimming farce. He must be commended, furthermore, for the uncanny ingenuity with which he devises impossible situations and endows them with an air of probability. Briefly, two attached married couples, invited to the same house-party, become temporarily detached and are inextricably mixed up. It is all the fault of a motoring breakdown, complicated by an over-suspicious landlady, and Mr. Travers's sense of the ludicrous does the rest.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

DECREASED TILLAGE.

LAND GOING TO GRASS.

(BY OUR AGRICULTURAL CORRESPONDENT.)

To labour troubles and the continued political unrest may be attributed a large proportion of the shrinkage in the area under tillage this season. It is also due to a considerable extent to the heavy fall which has taken place in the price of farm produce and live stock. The inducements to continue the tillage of land which was broken during the war are so few, and the deterrents so many, that farmers have decided to play for safety.

Consequently, during the past two or three years there has been an abnormal demand for permanent grass seeds, and a much reduced inquiry for cereal and root crop seeds. This indicates a rapid return to the conditions that prevailed before the Compulsory Tillage Act came into force.

In Co. Dublin recurrent labour troubles have caused some well-known farmers to lay down their land, and go out of tillage altogether. And the same remark applies to the country generally. Farmers with working sons, who are usually independent of the labour market, are, for the moment, handicapped. Many of our sturdiest young countrymen are connected with one or other branch of the I.R.A., and thus the fertile land is deprived of their services. When things settle down these young men will, doubtless, return to the land.

An all-round shortage of hay has caused the price of that commodity to jump up enormously. In some parts the shortage is acute, and has been accentuated by the fact that grass this season is very backward. Up to £12 10s. per ton has been obtained at local markets, and during last week as much as £14 and £15 per ton was obtainable. These figures cannot, of course, be maintained, and will drop when vegetation gets a fair start.

The boom in flax is now over, and the area under the crop has fallen away considerably. In the South and West, where flax is not normally grown—but where it was taken up during the war—many people have burnt their fingers badly, as the crop of the past two years is still on their hands owing to the heavy fall in prices. At current prices, where all the labour has to be hired, flax is clearly not a paying farm crop. And it will probably revert to the "small men," who grew an acre or two and could handle it with the aid of their own families.

Rumours of a famine in potatoes have been caused by the recent demand for supplies from Ireland at cross-Channel and Continental centres. As a result of the increased demand, prices to local consumers have advanced, although there is a large quantity of last year's crop still undisposed of in the extensive potato-growing districts in the North.

Supplies from these areas are not available because of the existing risk to such goods in transit, and as the railway companies now give no guarantee of delivery, the old agreements having been cancelled, growers are not willing to risk sending goods to Dublin.

In the South and East the bulk of the potatoes which are available are Champions, Shamrocks and Irish Queens, none of which, owing to their deep eyes, is really a commercial proposition. For this reason, Northern supplies, especially at this time of year, in normal times are welcome.

Meanwhile a representative of the Irish Times has obtained positive proof from a leading cross-Channel firm that the markets there are overlooked, and that, as their manager writes, "unless something happens there will be some heavy losses."

Consumers may be consoled by the fact as soon as the new potatoes come on the market, and this will be very soon, prices for old potatoes will drop again and the market become normal.

HANDBOOK OF FREE STATE OVER-PRINTED STAMPS.

The Mint Stamp Company, 74 Grafton street, Dublin, has published a "Handbook of the Overprinted Stamps of the Irish Free State," compiled by Lieutenant-Colonel Freeman and Mr. T. T. Stubbs. It contains a full list of all the peculiarities of setting in the overprints, broken letters, misplaced dates, and other little differences so dear to the heart of the modern "dotty" philatelist. There are also lists of controls and tables of the total number of stamps printed, and brief references to inverted overprints, some of whom have actually been forged already. The little guide is profusely illustrated, even the machine on which some of the stamps were printed being faithfully reproduced.

LAW REPORTS.

SCHOOL TEACHER SUED.

LEITRIM SLANDER ACTION.

In the King's Bench Division yesterday, before Mr. Justice Gordon, in the case in which Miss Frances Stockdale is plaintiff and Joseph Boyd, national school teacher, is defendant, both parties residing at Manorhamilton,

Mr. William Shannon (instructed by Messrs. Fenton and Lyons) applied on behalf of the defendant for an order remitting the action for trial before the County Court Judge of Leitrim, in which county both the parties reside. The plaintiff, a solicitor's assistant, is suing to recover £500 damages for alleged slander. The plaintiff in an affidavit stated that the defendant had made a false and defamatory statement touching her personal and business reputation. She was a solicitor's assistant of twelve years' standing. It was, she said, absolutely untrue that she ever wrote an anonymous letter to her stepmother. Since the alleged slander she had been ordered by her father out of his house, and friendly relations between them had been severed.

Mr. Geoghegan (instructed by Mr. P. O'Flynn), for the plaintiff, opposed the motion.

Mr. Justice Gordon adjourned the application, in order that a further affidavit might be put in in reference to the question as to whether or not the County Court Judge of Leitrim was likely to sit within a reasonable time.

TELEPHONE AGREEMENT.

ENGINEER'S CLAIM.

In the King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Gordon, in the case of Arthur E. Porte, consulting engineer, of 22 Lower Leeson street, Dublin, v. the Irish Butter and Egg Exporters, Ltd., of Strabane,

Mr. Dockrell (instructed by Mr. M. Good) applied on behalf of the plaintiff for leave to issue and serve a writ out of the jurisdiction on the defendants in Northern Ireland. In an affidavit the plaintiff stated that he was employed by the defendant company to report on their cold storage building recently erected in Strabane. He worked for the company as consulting engineer from September, 1920, till November, 1921, and on the conclusion of the job he forwarded to them an account of his fees, amounting to £143 7s. 10d. They tendered him a cheque for £90, which he declined to accept and returned. He was approached in the first instance by the managing director of the company, who telephoned to him from Strabane. He was asked if he would act for the company in the capacity of advising engineer, and he agreed to do so.

Mr. Justice Gordon thought that the true meaning of this was that an arrangement was made over the telephone by somebody representing the defendants in Strabane and Mr. Porte in Dublin.

Mr. Dockrell said that he stood on the ground that this was a contract made over the telephone, and was accepted by the plaintiff in Dublin.

Mr. Justice Gordon granted the application, remarking that there might be some difficulty afterwards as to what occurred over the telephone.

A TRAMORE HOTEL.

JURY'S FINDINGS.

The hearing of the action brought by Henry A. Hamilton and Angus H. Hamilton, builders and contractors, Waterford, against John Kelly, hotel proprietor and motor agent, of the same city, concluded yesterday before Mr. Justice Dodd and a City of Dublin common jury. The plaintiffs claimed £1,591 17s. 10d., balance of an account due for services rendered and materials supplied by the plaintiffs to the defendant in the building of a hotel at Tramore, Co. Waterford. The defendant counter-claimed for £2,000 in respect of alleged defective work, delay in completing the building, and consequent loss of profits to the defendant. The facts of the plaintiffs' case were published yesterday.

The jury found for the plaintiffs, £1,487 14s. 2d. damages; and for the defendant on the counter-claim, £250 damages.

Mr. Justice Dodd entered judgment for the plaintiffs for the sum mentioned, with costs; and for the defendant for £250, with costs.

Mr. Sealy, K.C., and Mr. Connolly (instructed by Messrs. I. Thornton and Son) appeared for the plaintiffs.

Mr. W. Gibson, K.C., and Mr. J. O'Byrne (instructed by Mr. P. A. Murphy) appeared for the defendant.

THE IRISH OLYMPIC.

The promoters of the Irish Olympic Festival, which is to take place in August next, are planning to turn Dublin into a gala city for the occasion and to provide a very spectacular setting for the contests. They have arranged for grand parades of athletes and competitors, with triumphal marches of the victors, who will wend their way through gaily bedecked streets. While the promoters intend to organise the pageantry of the event, they do not overlook the fact that much of the work must be left to the citizens themselves, who are expected to supply the necessary enthusiasm, and it is suggested that every house should show a flag, and that streamers of bunting and decorated windows would all help to heighten the general effect. The Streets Decoration Committee will shortly appeal to the citizens for material assistance in carrying out its work, and hopes for enthusiastic co-operation of the business community of Dublin, who will reap direct benefit from the influx of visitors.

STOLEN CATTLE.

A PRISONER'S IMAGINATION.

At the Dublin City Sessions yesterday, James Healy and Daniel Whelan were charged with having stolen six bullocks, the property of Hubert Hone, at Lusk, and also with having received the animals knowing them to have been stolen. A man named Christopher McSharry, who was indicted for complicity in the offence, pleaded guilty, and was put back.

Mr. Carrigan, who prosecuted, said that the cattle had been deliberately stolen from the lands of Mr. Hone, driven to Dublin, and marketed.

When the case for the prosecution had closed, the prisoner Whelan said that, although McSharry had pleaded guilty to stealing the cattle, he did not steal them—he only thought that he did. (Laughter.)

The jury found the prisoners guilty, and recommended Healy to mercy on account of his youth.

They were put back.

The draft of the annual accounts for the year ended 31st March, 1922, was read and adopted, together with Messrs. Craig, Gardner, and Co.'s report on their audit of same. The ordinary expenditure of the Hospital for the year amounted to £16,054, and the ordinary income to meet this heavy outlay was £9,524, showing a deficiency of £6,530, which is a source of anxiety to the Board.

The Committee accepted estimates from the following firms:—Messrs. Arnott and Co., Ltd., for holland blinds, and Messrs. Thomas Pearson and Co. for wire mattresses.

Read the following extract from the report of the Board of Superintendence of Dublin Hospitals for the year ended 31st March, 1921:—"The Committee of Management of this great Institution, which was founded close upon two centuries ago, are entitled to the utmost credit for the untiring energy they have shown in its management. They have gained for it the confidence of all classes, which is evidenced by the large measure of support it enjoys.

"We found all departments in excellent order, and it was obvious that everything human skill, kindness and sympathy could suggest is provided towards the alleviation of the sufferings of the inmates.

"The wards and corridors are bright and spacious and all the apartments comfortable, as well as being scrupulously clean.

"The manner in which the accounts and books are kept reflects the greatest credit upon the Registrar."

The report books of the Lady Superintendent and the Resident Medical Officer were read and approved of. Patients in the Hospital this day, 207—viz.: 89 males, 118 females.

Our portrait is of Mrs. Jessie E. Murphy, of 26a White's Square, Nelson's Row, Clapham, London, S.W., who writes:—

"I feel I must write and let you know how thankful I am for the benefit I have derived from taking your famous Clarke's Blood Mixture. For four months I was crippled with Rheumatic Gout, and my legs and feet were so bad I could not stand. My doctor ordered me to bed in blankets, and there I stayed for a whole fortnight, but did not get any better. At last I decided to try your Clarke's Blood Mixture, and after having four bottles I am now quite well, able to do my work and get about again. It is now four weeks since I left off taking your mixture, and I have felt no signs of rheumatism since my wonderful cure. My friends gave up hope of seeing me about again, and I myself can hardly realise that I suffered so much. My mother, who is a sufferer from the same complaint, is now taking it, and already feels better. I will do my best to recommend Clarke's Blood Mixture to my friends, and to show you my thanks you have my permission to make whatever use you please with this letter."

CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE, by reason of its remarkable blood purifying properties, can be relied upon to give speedy relief and lasting benefit in cases of Eczema, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Boils, Pimples, Piles, Glandular Swellings, Rheumatism, Gout. Pleasant to take, and free from anything injurious.

Ask for, and see you get,
Clarke's Blood Mixture
"EVERYBODY'S BLOOD PURIFIER."

Sweet & Clean

There's a greater need—in Springtime—for little bodies, and adult ones too, to be freed from the internal clogging effect of Winter. Each organ must perform its task smoothly and regularly . . . removing accumulated impurities . . . making the life-blood sweet and clean.

For this inner cleansing, there are few things to compare with Andrews' Liver Salt, the trusted family corrective with over a quarter of a Century's repute, now the largest-sale saline in the United Kingdom.

In countless Homes where Health is studied, Andrews' is kept handy the year round. This Springtime, you would do well to make acquaintance with its healthful benefit . . . . take yourself, and give to the Children, a teaspoonful in a glass of water for a few mornings running, to cool and purify the blood and to correct the little Ills which change-of-Season brings.

The Peace Reports.

Three reports upon the abortive negotiations for peace were submitted yesterday to Dail Eireann. The clearest of them is furnished by the five army officers who were invited to help the Committee at a critical stage of its proceedings. The story of the negotiations can be summarised in a sentence. Every effort by the Free State delegates to secure recognition for the people's right to vote on the Treaty was rejected by the Republican delegates. At the outset the Republicans refused to accept the original terms of reference, which postulated an agreed election. Then the Free State delegates proposed a formula embodying the fact that the country as a whole supports the Treaty. This overture also the Republicans rejected. At that point the five officers were called into counsel, and were asked to build a bridge. They drafted a statement which went as far as words could go to propitiate the extremists. Accepting the fact that Dail Eireann had approved of the Treaty, and "accepting also the position created in the country by this approval," the officers recommended an agreed election. The Free State delegates accepted this formula, but the Republicans would have nothing to say to it. Their case, as stated by Mr. Boland, was that they could not recognise the Treaty; and that was the end of the negotiations. Having received the reports yesterday, the Dail adjourned until next Wednesday. In the interval the Committee will make another attempt to come to terms.

We shall not assume that the negotiations have failed completely until the Committee makes its final report, and we shall say nothing now that might embarrass its efforts. There are facts, however, which Dail Eireann must not be allowed to forget. One is that the country is sick of squabbling and delay. To the plain citizen who assumes honesty in the negotiators the failure of the negotiations will appear inexplicable. There was agreement on two points—that Dail Eireann is the chief instrument of government in the twenty-six counties, and that the people are the supreme source of its authority. The Dail has ratified the Treaty and wishes to submit it to the people. By what manner of argument can any man who has accepted the two points justify his resistance to the elections? Another fact which Dail Eireann must remember is the limitation of its powers. It represents the people, but it cannot play fast and loose with their rights. The elections, we assume, will be held next month, whatever may come of the peace negotiations. They must be absolutely free elections. In other words, the people, and the people only, must be the makers of the first Government of the Free State, must decide the political constitution of the new Parliament. The term "agreed election" was used very ambiguously in the course of the negotiations. It has only one natural meaning—agreement between all parties to the holding of undisturbed contests throughout Southern Ireland. Any proposal that it should imply an agreed result—a parcelling of seats over the heads of the electors—would be an intolerable invasion of the people's liberties.

In the meanwhile the country is getting neither political peace nor decent administration. While the Dail talks "about it and about" and adjourns from week to week, life in Southern Ireland becomes daily less tolerable for people who have anything to lose. In Dublin last night a large meeting of Protestants testified to the good-will and good qualities of their Roman Catholic neighbours in all parts of Southern Ireland. The testimony was so true and so familiar as to be almost superfluous. Nevertheless, as Mr. Serjeant Hanna said, many Southern Protestants have been forced to leave the country, and others will follow them in the near future if conditions do not improve. They are not the victims of any religious persecution. They have been the first, because the easiest, targets of the passions of greed and violence that are now devastating the land. The Roman Catholic farmer has not less to fear than the Protestant farmer. Traders of all creeds suffer equally from the lawlessness which robs banks and trains, paralyses business and drives capital out of the country. The increasing anarchy has become an even more urgent problem than the problem of political settlement; and, if Dail Eireann and the Provisional Government hesitate to restore order, "settlement," if and when it comes, will be an empty boon. The country is waiting anxiously for some signs of action, some recognition by all parties in the Dail that the reign of terror is a national calamity and a national disgrace. The ten officers who started the peace negotiations would enjoy general confidence as a Committee of Public Safety.

British Trade.

Introducing a vote for the Board of Trade in the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Stanley Baldwin gave a very interesting review of conditions in the British industrial world. We have heard so many gloomy speeches in regard to trade prospects of late that a cheerful statement is very welcome; and Mr. Baldwin is anything but a pessimist. Conditions are far from good in Britain at present, but they are improving, and Mr. Baldwin believes that the worst is over. It is true that most of our customers are in a far more parlous plight than ourselves; but, on the other hand, the United States, South America, Holland, Scandinavia, and Spain are, probably, wealthier than they were before the war, and while they are able to buy British goods there is no need to despair. Coal is on an economic basis at last, with exports that compare quite favourably with those of pre-war days. Cotton is holding its own, wool is improving, chemicals are finding a ready market, while the electrical and textile machinery industries both are fairly busy. On the other hand, shipbuilding is in a very bad way, and is not being helped by the engineering trouble. Leather is suffering from the imposition of heavy tariffs by America and other countries. The iron and steel trade is still very weak. Nevertheless, Mr. Baldwin is hopeful. London is still, and is likely to remain, the financial hub of the universe. One thing, according to Mr. Baldwin, is urgently necessary. Taxes must be reduced. We agree heartily, and most business men will concur in the opinion of the President of the Board of Trade, that henceforward the attitude of the Government towards British trade ought to be that of "kindly, but unobtrusive, benevolence."

Irish Fisheries.

The annual meeting of the Irish Salmon and Trout Fisheries Association was held in Dublin yesterday. This body was formed sixteen years ago to improve and protect Ireland's inland fisheries, and, although recently it has been working under almost impossible conditions, it has done its best to fulfil its purpose. Lord HolmPatrick announced that the Association had been in touch with the Provisional Government in regard to trout and salmon fishing in Ireland, and he appealed to all who are interested in this industry—for it is an industry, and, if developed, would assume great importance—to become members. The Association is in a very bad way at present. Unless its condition improves, apparently, it will cease to exist in the near future, and its disappearance would be a serious loss to the country. Salmon and trout can be made an important source of revenue for the new Ireland if the problem of the inland fisheries is tackled in a scientific and business-like way. It is a job not for politicians, but for fishermen; and the Irish Salmon and Trout Fisheries Association is an excellent nucleus around which to gather all the men and women in Ireland whose assistance will be required. As Mr. H. D. Conner said yesterday, the first essential is that the Association shall prepare a careful scheme for the development of inland fisheries and lay it before the Government. Then some progress may be made.

"Graft."

Some time ago attention was drawn in these columns to a flagrant case of Government "graft" which occurred in the United States of America. Mr. Daugherty, the Attorney-General, brings further charges against officials of the American Government for connivance at frauds practised on the public by contractors during the war. He declares that the necessity for the speedy conclusion of bargains gave American Government contractors unprecedented opportunities for gross "profiteering," and that the majority of these swindles lay within the knowledge of sworn servants of the State. Action will be taken immediately in the case of certain "corporations," against which there is a prima facie charge, and from these companies alone the Attorney-General expects to recover no less than £20,000,000. An inquiry into the whole matter has been promised by President Harding. This inquiry is regarded by the Democrats as a political dodge on the part of the Republicans, in view of the elections which are due in next November. Whatever truth there may be in that view, there can be little doubt that wholesale swindling was carried on in America during the war. As Great Britain was America's chief customer at the time, British financiers will watch developments with interest, and will hope distantly for a rebate of the "profiteers'" ill-gotten gains.

Sailors and Ships.

As the result of a long agitation by American merchant sailors the Shipping Board of the United States has taken a very popular decision. Its Western Ocean ships are all called after the nick-names of certain States in the Union. Two, which frequently visit Ireland, are the Centennial State, and the Panhandle State, while a third is called the Blue Hen State. Both the officers and the men of these ships have been very unhappy about their names for some time. To be first officer of a Transatlantic steamer is all very well; but to be first officer of the Blue Hen State must be rather an ordeal. In view of the fact that the Shipping Board apparently intends to increase the number of its Western Ocean ships, and that the Wooden Nutmeg State and the Hobo State were probable starters, the sailors took drastic action, with the result that all the ships are being re-named after various Presidents. Centennial becomes President Adams, Panhandle becomes President Monroe, while the identity of the Blue Hen is sunk in the personality of President Garfield. Although there may be little in the name of a rose, the name of a ship plays an important part in the minds of the men who serve her.

SECTARIAN INTIMIDATION.

The Belfast authorities are at present engaged investigating the intimidation of Roman Catholic residents in the east end of the city. During the past few weeks threatening letters have been sent to residents in the Ravenhill road districts, and a number of people have been forced to leave their homes. A similar condition of affairs prevails in other districts of the city, and in some of the areas where Roman Catholics are in the majority Protestant residents have been intimidated.

The Irish News states that during the past few months 135 Catholic families have been cleared out of the district between the Ravenhill road and Cregagh road, in the East Belfast area, and close on 100 of these cases occurred during the past four weeks. Some of the evicted Catholics, it is stated, received "death notices."

LAUNCH AT BELFAST.

Messrs. Workman, Clark, and Co., Ltd., launched from their north yard, Belfast, yesterday, the twin-screw steamer Port Auckland. The vessel is 480 feet in length, and has a gross tonnage of about 8,250 tons, and has been built to the order of the Commonwealth and Dominion Line for their Australian trade. There are five holds arranged for the carriage of meat and general cargo.

IF GENOA FAILS.

WHAT WAR WOULD MEAN.

Mr. Lloyd George's recent remarks to the Press representatives at Genoa sounded an ominous note. They should not be treated too lightly. Does the average "man-in-the-street" realise what "another war" would mean? It is to be feared that few of us are fully awake to the importance of recent developments, inventions, etc., occasional references to which have appeared in the Press during the last three years.

"War in the future will be a chemists' war. It will be in the air and under the water. The battleships, in the words of the Midshipman, 'will be of no damned use'; the country that will win will be the country that is supreme in the air." Such is the opinion of our great naval gunnery expert, Sir Percy Scott.

Since 1914 the inventive genius of man has been concentrated on ways and means of destruction. The following facts (and it should be borne in mind that they are positive and established facts, and not merely the caprices of an intoxicated imagination) are a rough summary of the fruits of that concentration. Having perused them, it should not be hard to imagine "what another war would mean."

* * * * *

In connection with flying many important developments have taken place. A new wing has been constructed which has multiplied the bomb-carrying capacity of the war plane by five, and at the same time increased its speed from 75 to 135 miles per hour.

The "Helicopter," or "Hovering" aeroplane, was completed last year, many successful demonstrations being given. This means 100 per cent. hits when bombing a target on the ground.

In Chesapeake Bay recently the battleship Alabama was sunk in 30 seconds by a 2,000lb. bomb dropped from an aeroplane. During the war 500lbs. was considered huge for a bomb. The Americans have now constructed one of 4,000lbs. Of this, 2,400lbs. are T.N.T. This bomb is capable of obliterating anything within 50ft. of the spot on which it explodes.

The control of machines by wireless has made enormous strides. Most people have heard something of "crewless" or "wireless" controlled ships, but few are aware that the most intricate evolutions have been carried out successfully with wireless-controlled aeroplanes. These machines are known as Tele-Avions.

Submarine construction has gone on apace. The Germans possess submersible cruisers displacing 10,000 tons, and with armour capable of withstanding all but the heaviest shells. The Amphibious Tank, which is capable of travelling at a fast speed on land and under water, is a French development.

Owing to the invention of new mechanisms, the modern "Whippet" Tank can attain a speed of nearly 20 miles per hour, over broken ground.

Ordnance is undergoing a revolution. Following the discovery of a new explosive, the French have constructed a gun having a range of 200 miles.

They are experimenting with another gun, firing a "shell-within-a-shell." The outside shell forms a "gun" for the next, inside. Thus by a series of explosions, while in the air, a range of 125 miles has been attained.

The Germans, by means of patent gun-carriages, can move their artillery from place to place at a speed of from 50-60 miles an hour. They have filed over 200 different Ordnance patents since 1918.

An American inventor has demonstrated with a "Noiseless" gun, which will drive a bullet 3 inches long and ½ inch diameter through a 1 inch steel plate. The motive force is supplied by a powder, 20 grains of which will give the bullet a speed of 5,280 feet per second.

The "Rain of Burning Oil" is a French invention. It is contrived by bursting a shell or rocket containing specially prepared oil. The explosion, which takes place in the air, scatters the oil in all directions, at the same time igniting it. One such shell could wipe out a whole battalion.

Another new piece of ordnance is the "Electric" Gun, which has the "power to kill as noiselessly and cleanly as a stroke of lightning."

* * * * *

The "Electric Exploder" is a machine for "sending up" enemy ammunition dumps by means of Hertzian waves. These waves will pierce everywhere, and explode the ammunition on contact.

Perhaps the most feindish of all these new developments is the poison gas known as "Dyphenal-chlorosine." It consists of chlorine, carbonic-acid, and arsenic. There is no known medium which it cannot penetrate. The effect is that of breathing flames.

A few hundred tons of bombs containing this gas, dropped by a fleet of Tele-Avions controlled from the Eiffel Tower, would make Berlin uninhabitable within forty-eight hours.

It will be observed that several of these inventions would tend to counteract one another in actual practice. The destruction and slaughter, however, that could be done in a short space of time by such frightful weapons is almost beyond comprehension.

Can it be that Mr. Lloyd George foresees such an inferno in the near future—if Genoa fails?

LONDON LETTER.

THE KIDNAPPED OFFICERS.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

The die-hards on the Irish question in the House of Commons are satisfied with the demonstration they made last night on the question of the kidnapped officers, though they did not secure a very large number of votes in the division. The Evening Standard to-day, commenting upon the debate, says:—"The British Government has been patient—too patient, lots of people think. It was, therefore, significant that Mr. Chamberlain was in doubt whether the experiment had not been continued long enough. Our Government is contemplating telling the Provisional Government that it is going to take other steps, and it is only the absence of the Prime Minister which hinders this being done."

Personally, I very much doubt the accuracy of the above statement. Mr. Chamberlain's speech seems to me to make it quite clear that the British Government, while quite aware of the difficulties of the Provisional Government, and of the strong feeling aroused in this country by the lawless acts which are being perpetrated with apparent immunity in many parts of the country, have no intention of resuming the responsibility that they handed over in December.

I was rather surprised myself that a larger number of members did not vote for the adjournment, for the feeling of dissatisfaction with the present situation in Ireland has been steadily growing even among moderate men. But Mr. Chamberlain's speech, in which sympathy and statesmanship were well blended, convinced any waverers that the Fabian policy of the Government must not yet be abandoned, and it was reinforced by the arguments of Colonel Walter Guinness and Colonel Aubrey Herbert, neither of whom can be accused of insensibility to the sufferings of Irish loyalists. The Government may have been helped a little also by the fact that Lieutenant-Commander Kenworthy announced his intention of voting for the motion.

MR. CHURCHILL.

Mr. Churchill is recuperating at a small house at Lympne, lent to him by Sir Philip Sassoon. The Colonial Secretary has taken a great deal of work away with him, and keeps in touch with the House of Commons by telephone. Last night he was making inquiries during the course of the Irish debate, giving counsel to his colleagues. Mr. Churchill does not now intend to go abroad, but will remain at Lympne for a fortnight, if circumstances permit. He came up to London this afternoon in connection with the Irish situation.

On Monday Mr. Chamberlain will be asked by Sir William Davison whether he is aware that large numbers of ex-Service men and loyalists have been forcibly compelled to leave Southern Ireland, abandoning their property and means of livelihood, to seek refuge in this country; and whether the British Government will make provision for the maintenance of such persons and their families, many of whom are without means of support owing to the seizure of their property and businesses.

Captain Wedgwood Benn is to ask Sir Hamar Greenwood to-morrow whether persons claiming the return of arms in Ireland have been informed that these arms have now been despatched to England, and what steps are being taken to restore them to their owners.

Representatives of agricultural constituencies in the House of Commons propose to resist the removal of the embargo on Canadian cattle with the utmost vigour. Sixty of these members held a meeting at the House of Commons yesterday, and fifty-three of them were in favour of the embargo's being retained. It is said, in connection with this movement, that, though the Government is quite disposed to agree to the admission of Canadian cattle, it has no intention of taking any steps in favour unless there is a great reduction in the opposition from the agricultural districts of this country.

THE ENGINEERING TRADE.

The report of the court of inquiry concerning the Engineering trades dispute was issued to-day. Sir William MacKenzie is of opinion that the question of necessity in regard to overtime is related to requirements of the work to be done and the business in hand, and, as to this necessity, the management alone are in a position to judge. The national agreement, allowing thirty hours' overtime in four weeks, is regarded as reasonable, but beyond that limit it would be open to the suggestion that it is unreasonable. If experience shows that the deterrent economic effect of the rate of time and a half is inadequate to prevent unnecessary overtime, there is a case for further negotiation with a view to a revised national agreement.

Sir William Mackenzie adds that, in his opinion, the matter is one in which no agreement, however carefully devised, can wholly take the place of good sense and good-will. The managing of a business is a responsible and difficult task, and no individual workman or trade union official should unnecessarily, or without good cause, add to its anxieties. Similar good advice is given to the employers. A result of the report is that the employers have asked the unions to appoint a joint committee to meet them on Tuesday next.

The second session of the Dental Board of the United Kingdom, held on Tuesday last, with Mr. Acland, M.P., in the chair, considered several cases of registered dentists allowing themselves to be assisted in their work by unregistered persons. The charge is couched in rather strong terms; for it is stated that the inquiry is to find whether the dentist has been guilty of infamous or disgraceful conduct in a professional respect. A Dublin dentist was charged with permitting his son to assist him, and the Board found that the facts were proved to its satisfaction. The findings of the Board on this and similar cases will be announced later on.

AN IRISH DEBATE.

A variety of questions on the subject of Ireland was addressed to the Chief Secretary, in the continued absence of Mr. Churchill, but there was very little forthcoming in the way of definite information. No fresh facts were elicited in regard to the fate of the three British officers kidnapped at Macroom, and the Chief Secretary did not think it advisable to state precisely the steps which were being taken by the military authorities to deal with the case.

In the House of Lords there was another Irish debate, initiated by Lord Carson, who complained of the treatment of British subjects in Ireland, and declared that the Government's abject surrender has not produced one mite of peace in Ireland. Sections of the Republican Army were doing just as they pleased. Property was confiscated, people were evicted from their homes, and even a Peer, reading in Kildare street Club, has been ordered out by a man with a revolver.

The Lord Chancellor was assured by an authority qualified to speak that it was certain that the Provisional Government would obtain a large and, perhaps, overwhelming majority at the forthcoming elections. He was informed—but on this point he could not speak now definitely—that after preparations and in the near future there would be a resolute and organised attempt to assert and enforce the authority of the Provisional Government more closely and more sternly than had hitherto been found possible.

WHERE FAILURE LIES.

EXTREMISTS REJECT TERMS.

OFFICERS' PEACE EFFORT.

DAIL COMMITTEE STILL HOPEFUL.

Three reports on the latest effort to gain peace were placed before Dail Eireann yesterday—one from the Free State delegates, one from the Republicans, and one from the five Irish Army officers who were called into consultation by the Dail Committee—and all three show that the Republicans rejected both the Free State and the officers' proposals.

It was not until the Free State delegates had made, and the Republicans declined, two series of suggestions that the Army officers proposed a compromise.

This compromise accepted the Dail's approval of the Treaty and "the position created in the country by this approval," and proposed an agreed election, to be followed by a Coalition Government.

The Republicans would not consent to a General Election, nor would they recognise the Treaty. In the circumstances, the negotiations failed.

The Dail has adjourned until Wednesday next, and in the meantime its Committee will try to find a solution of the difficulty.

THE CONFERENCE.

RIVAL REPORTS SUBMITTED.

At the resumed session of Dail Eireann yesterday the reports of the Committee set up by the assembly to consider the proposals of the Army officers were submitted.

Mr. James Dwyer said that both sides to the Conference had agreed to read their respective reports. He begged to submit the report of the pro-Treaty members.

The report was as follows:—

We desire to report that the Committee set up under the terms of Dr. Hayes's motion at the session of An Dail on Wednesday, May 3rd, has held, in all, eleven sessions. At the first session we arranged a meeting of the Army officers of both sides, with a view to an immediate cessation of hostilities and subsequent truce.

At the first full meeting of the Committee the anti-Treaty Party refused to accept the document signed by the following signatories as the basis for our discussion:—

DAN BREEN.
TOM HALES.
H. MURPHY.
S. O'HEGARTY.
SEAN BOYLAN.
R. J. MULCAHY.
EOIN O'DUFFY.
GEAROID O'SULLIVAN.
MICHAEL O'COILEAIN.
F. O'DONOHUE.

We pointed out that, while we understood that we were not confined to the examination of the solutions outlined in that document, we had been brought together as a result of these officers' intervention, and of Dr. Hayes's motion, based on that intervention. We were unable to reach agreement on this matter, and, after putting in from our side several alternatives, we put in as our final basis for an agreed election the following document:—

(1a) Mindful of our obligations to the Irish nation, and recognising that our common ideal is the good of Ireland, it is realised that the most pressing necessity at the present moment is unity of the forces that have worked together for the past six years. We realise, further, that practically the whole country has the strong feeling that peace and order must be restored and preserved, and that means must be found for looking after the urgent social and economic needs of the nation.

(2a) We are of opinion that the minority in Dail Eireann can agree to our recommendations without sacrifice of principle, without prejudice to what they consider the best future interests of the nation, and without departing from their ideals.

Our recommendations to the Dail are:—

1. Recognising also that it is a fundamental duty of government to make available for the people the advantages gained by the war for independence, and that the people so desire, and accepting the fact that Dail Eireann has, by a majority, approved of the Treaty, which is the vehicle of these advantages, and accepting also the position created in the country by this approval, we are of opinion that a contested election now might be attended by civil strife, which might result in a dissipation of those advantages and the worsening of our national position.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

Accepting this, and desirous of avoiding such a conflict in the best interests of the nation, we recommend:—

(a) An agreed election.

(b) A Coalition Government after the election, which will have the confidence of the whole country.

2. At an earlier session we had put in our idea that an agreed election could be arranged as follows:—

(c). That in each existing Constituency under P.R. the pro-Treaty and anti-Treaty parties would nominate one additional candidate. Such candidate would go before the electorate without public speeches, without public meetings, and the elections would be carried out on one day throughout Ireland.

In constituencies where vacancies have arisen, or may arise, from whatever cause, the party to which the retired member belonged in January, 1922, shall have the right to nominate the person to fill the vacant place on the Panel. No candidate to be allowed to appear on more than one Panel.

As a result of this election, a Government having the confidence of the whole country would be formed. We think it possible that such a Government might be chosen on non-party lines, or, at least, that it might follow not very rigid party lines.

We had definitely stated that in our opinion, agreement having been reached on the political side, army unification could best be accomplished by the officers who are meeting at the present time, representing the Dail forces under G.H.Q., Beggars' Bush, and the forces under the Four Courts command.

Their numbers could have been increased, if it were thought necessary, by the addition of officers from each side, those officers to report direct to the Dail on this separate subject.

GENESIS OF FINAL DOCUMENT.

It is necessary that the Dail should be clear as to how this final document came before us.

Early in the afternoon session of Tuesday, 9th May, it was evident that we had reached a stage where a break was inevitable, and, before breaking, Deputy O'Maille proposed that we invite the five Southern officers who had waited on the Dail at Wednesday's session, so that we might put them in possession of exactly where the difficulties lay, and invite their assistance to find a solution.

It was agreed to call these officers in, and the officers having heard both sides, Deputy McKeon proposed that the Committee adjourn for an hour, or an hour and a half, to give the officers before us an opportunity of considering the position. We agreed on this course, and the session was adjourned until 8 p.m. with that object.

Immediately on resumption, Commandant Sean Hegarty, while pointing out that they had no desire to withdraw an inch from the position which they took up in their published statement, explained that they had drafted this Clause 1 as an alternative to the Clause which was before the Committee at the moment.

He expressed, on behalf of the Delegation, a desire to simply place this formula before the Committee, and, without taking part in any discussion, to recommend it to us for adoption. The delegation of officers then withdrew.

The two sides of the Committee immediately separated to consider this draft as an alternative to our proposal contained in Clause 1 of the document, which we had handed in at the session held on the evening of Monday. (See Appendix "A").

We came back again, and Deputy Boland asked us if we were prepared to put in this new draft as our proposal.

Deputy Dwyer pointed out that, as far as he was personally concerned, he was not at all satisfied that it covered his position. Deputy Boland stressed the fact that since this document was not the work of any of either side of the Committee, but of an outside body, it could not properly come up for consideration unless either side adopted it.

In order to put this document in order for the Committee, without arguing on Deputy Boland's assertion, Deputy McKeon accepted the responsibility of putting it in himself.

It was agreed by both sides that we should again separate until 11 o'clock, Deputy McKeon undertaking, on his side, to endeavour to get this new clause accepted by the other four as an alternative to the proposals which we had already put in.

Deputy Boland, speaking for the other side of the Committee, undertook to let us know at 11 o'clock whether they were prepared on their side to accept it as a basis for an agreed election.

On resumption at 11 o'clock, Deputy McKeon put forward the Officers' Clause as our alternative, on which we were prepared to discuss this scheme for an agreed election and a Coalition Government after the election.

It was quite evident that the anti-Treaty party were not prepared to agree to this as a basis. Deputy Moylan was not present.

Deputy Boland invited us, on our side, to immediately tackle the question of a scheme for an agreed election, and he pointed out that a certain advance had been made, asserting that we had on our side turned Clause 1 from "an article of faith" to a "preamble."

Deputy Dwyer immediately stated that, as far as we were concerned on our side, this clause was the basis on which we could consider a scheme for an agreed election, contested or uncontested, and that if the other side were not prepared to accept it as such, we could not discuss the scheme for an agreed election.

On this statement the Conference broke down.

Appendix A, to which reference is made above, is as follows:—

"(A) We recommend that the third Dail be formed on the following basis:—

"(B) Acceptance of the fact that the Treaty has been approved by the majority of Dail Eireann, and, in the circumstances, is accepted by a majority of the people.

"Clause 'B' was subsequently altered to:—

"'Recognising the fact that the Treaty having been approved by a majority of Dail Eireann, would, in the circumstances, be accepted by a majority of the people if put as an issue at a contested election, and, desiring to evade such a contest and its attendant conflicts, we recommend that an agreed election, without contests, be held and a Coalition Government be formed.'"

"Note.—Clause 'A' and 'B' followed on Clauses '1' and '2,' page 1, of this report."

PROPOSED ADJOURNMENT.

The Speaker asked for copies of the document signed by the members who had subscribed to it.

Mr. Dwyer said that it had been agreed that he should, at the proper time, propose, and the other side second, that the Dail should adjourn discussion on the reports until next Wednesday. Both sides had agreed to meet in the meantime, with a hope of finding a solution, and they also agreed to ask the Speaker to hand both reports out as coming from the Dail, and to accord both reports equal publicity as far as he could.

In reply to the Speaker, Mr. Dwyer said that "Appendix A" was to be taken as forming part of the report.

REPUBLICAN PARTY'S REPORT.

PRINCIPLES STATED.

Mr. Boland read the report of the anti-Treaty Party represented at the Conference.

It was as follows:—

We, the representatives of the Republican Party on the Committee appointed by An Dail, having failed to obtain any basis of agreement with the representatives of the other party, beg to submit this supplement to the joint report.

At the first meeting after the truce was arranged Deputy Boland, on his own behalf, handed in the following proposals as a rough basis of discussion:—

"The following principles be accepted, as suggested by Labour, and passed by resolution in the Dail:—

1. (a) That all legislative, executive, and judicial authority in Ireland is, and shall be, derived solely from the people of Ireland.

"(b) That Dail Eireann is the supreme governing authority in Ireland.

"2. Taking cognisance of the dangers that beset our country, we recommend that Dail Eireann decree that the forthcoming elections declared by England be not contested, but that the present personnel constitute the Third Dail (except that the Deputies representing two constituencies vacate their seats in Clare, Cavan, Cork, and the National University, these vacancies being filled by arrangement), and that it be accepted and understood that no issue is being determined by the election.

"3. That, pending the adoption of a Constitution for the nation, the Constitution of Dail Eireann be revised so as to provide for a President and Council of State as sole Executive. The composition, personnel, duties, functions, etc., to be arranged by agreement between both sides.

"4. That the Provisional Government is to act solely as a 'taking over' or Transfer Commission, and to cease all executive functions.

"5. That to unify the Army the Army Convention to be held as soon as may be. The Convention to consist of the delegates chosen for the banned (recent proposed) Convention, and those only.

"6. That this Convention elect a representative on the Council of State, who shall be Minister for Defence.

"7. That it elect also an Army Council, which shall be in administrative control of the Army, and responsible for nominations, appointments, commissions, etc."

COUNTER-PROPOSALS.

After some discussion, 1, (a) and (b), of the above proposals were unanimously agreed to, except that the words "as suggested by Labour" had to be deleted, to meet the other side.

On coming to discussion of 2, the other side asked for an adjournment so as to prepare counter-proposals. On resumption, these counter-proposals were submitted by Deputy O'Dwyer on behalf of his group. We could not agree to these, as agreement would definitely commit us to acceptance of the Treaty. A deadlock was accordingly reached, and at this stage Deputy O'Maille suggested that Commandants O'Hegarty, Hales, O'Donohue, Breen, and Murphy be invited to attend. These officers were immediately available, and, as a result of further parley, Commandant McKeon submitted the following alternative proposals:—

"Recognising that it is a fundamental duty of government to make available for the people the advantages gained by the war for independence, and that the people so desire it, and accepting the fact that Dail Eireann has by a majority approved of the Treaty, which is the vehicle of these advantages, and accepting also the position created in the country by this approval, we are of opinion that a contested election now would be attended by civil strife, which would result in a dissipation of these advantages and a worsening of our national position.

"Accepting this, and desirous of avoiding such a conflict in the best interests of the nation, we recommend:—

"(a) An agreed election.

"(b) A Coalition Government, which will have the confidence of the whole country."

Having suggested the deletion of certain portions of the above, which were the expression of the pro-Treaty point of view and absolutely opposed to our position, Deputy Boland further suggested that Commandant McKeon would secure the assent of his colleagues, and place before the committee proposals as from his whole party. This was agreed to, and the delegations adjourned to consult their respective headquarters.

On resumption, Deputy McKeon handed in the following on behalf of his party:—

"Mindful of our obligations to the Irish nation, and recognising that our common ideal is the good of Ireland, it is realised that the most pressing necessity at the present moment

THREE MEN WOUNDED.

An explosion which caused injuries to three persons occurred last night at the Ardoyne Tramway Dépôt of the Belfast Corporation.

An attaché case was found in one of the tramcars, and when an attempt was made to open it a bomb which the case contained exploded. The injured are:—

Reginald McCurdy, 117 Palmer street, splinters in the eyes, face, and head; Thomas Kennedy, Butler street, wounds in both legs; John Mansfield, 62 Groomsport street, wounded in the thighs. Thomas Bradley, of Santiago street, suffered severely from shock and had to be taken to hospital.

There was an outbreak of shooting in the Marrowbone area last evening, and although the military and police patrolled the streets, it was midnight before they were able to silence the snipers.

A girl named Mary McMahon, of Gracehill street, was taken to the Mater Hospital, suffering from a bullet wound in the leg, and two men named Caruth and Hawthorn were wounded in the wrist and leg, respectively.

In the Springfield road area some shots were fired during the night, and William Thompson (18), of Mayo street, was struck by a stray bullet, which caused a slight flesh wound.

James Smith (14), who was wounded during the shooting in the Old Park road last month, died last night.

KING IN THE SALIENT.

POPERINGHE-YPRES ROAD.

His Majesty the King left Brussels at nine o'clock yesterday morning for his tour of the Belgian battle front. The Royal party reached Zeebrugge at eleven, and drove in five cars to the cemetery, where the King was greeted by the Burgomaster, school children meanwhile singing "God Save the King."

The Royal party then entered the cemetery, where His Majesty was much interested in the memorial, in grey stone, erected to the memory of the men who fell in the naval attack on Zeebrugge on St. George's Day, 1918. The Royal party then drove to the entrance to the Mole, where they were received by Belgian officials.

The British destroyers, Thetis, Intrepid, and Iphigenia, which were sunk in an attempt to block the mouth of the canal, were pointed out to the King. The party then returned to the station and joined the Royal train, which made its way southward through Bruges, Thourout, and Roulers, luncheon being served en route in a restaurant car, which had been divided into two parts, one being reserved for the King and members of his suite.

The train reached Zonnebeke at half-past two o'clock, the journey from thence to Poperinghe being in five Rolls Royce cars.

The whole countryside still presents a desolate appearance with blasted trees, masses of wire, and dug-outs. The cars were enveloped in choking, blinding white dust as they followed each other.

The cemetery at Poperinghe is one of the biggest on the whole front, containing about 12,000 graves. The work has not yet been completed, and the original wooden crosses are still standing. His Majesty was much interested in the German pill boxes still standing actually inside the cemetery, and he expressed a wish that they should not be demolished, but should be retained as interesting relics.

The cars then proceeded to Ypres, through a desolate, war-scarred country. On arrival His Majesty proceeded alone to the town cemetery, where Prince Maurice of Battenburg, Major Cadogan, and other officers who were personally known to His Majesty, lie buried.

The party then went to the Menin Gate, where they were received by Belgian officials and Sir Reginald Blomfield, who submitted to His Majesty the design for the great arch which it is proposed to erect as a memorial to the missing men.

Afterwards the party drove past the Cathedral and the Cloth Hall, en route for Vlamertinghe.

FREE STATE ARMY.

GOVERNMENT SATISFIED.

Mr. R. Gwynn asked the Chief Secretary in the House of Commons yesterday, whether in view of the fact that by the Act for the ratification of the Treaty the number of soldiers that could be raised by the Provisional Government was fixed in proportion to those employed by the Imperial Government, he would state what steps had been taken by His Majesty's Government to ensure that this proportion should be observed.

Sir Hamar Greenwood said that strictly speaking the question of the number of soldiers that could be raised by the Provisional Government under the Treaty did not arise until peace was "re-established." So far as the forces of the Provisional Government were concerned, His Majesty's Government were satisfied that the intention of the Treaty had not been departed from.

Mr. Gwynn asked what was the number of men at present on the strength of the Free State Army, and the form of Oath taken by such recruits.

Sir Hamar Greenwood—I have no information as to the number of men at present on the strength of the Free State Army, and I do not know the form of Oath taken by the recruits. I shall endeavour to make inquiries as to the number of men, but I doubt whether it would be wise, in the public interest or in that of the Provisional Government to give the information, even if it were in my possession.

Mr. Gwynn—How does the hon. gentleman arrive at the conclusion that the Free State is keeping within the limits of the Act if he does not know the strength of the Free State Army?

Sir John Butcher—Is it not essential that the forces which are to be raised in Ireland should take some form of Oath which would make them loyal to the King? (Hear, hear.)

Colonel Gretton—Will the right hon. gentleman take steps to ascertain the numbers of the Free State Army, and inform the House?

Sir Hamar Greenwood said that he would see what answer could be given to the question at a later date.

Mr. Gwynn said that he would put the question down again for Monday.

Lt.-Colonel Croft—Will the right hon. gentleman consider the question of giving the numbers of the other Army in Ireland at the same time?

Sir Hamar Greenwood, in reply to Viscount Curzon, said that in the opinion of the military authorities it would not be in the public interest to give the numbers of the Imperial troops there. He had no further information as to the fate of the three kidnapped officers.

MOTOR 'BUS OVERTURNED.

A serious accident occurred yesterday evening to a motor 'bus which was running between Guildford and Leatherhead. The 'bus was approaching Little Bookham, when a motor cyclist emerged from a by-road. In order to avoid a collision, the 'bus driver swerved to the right, and one of the wheels went on to the bank, the 'bus overturning. There were fourteen passengers on the 'bus at the time, eight on the top and six inside, and they were all thrown into the road. Most of them received serious injuries. A few of them were able to proceed on their journey, but the majority were taken to Leatherhead Cottage Hospital and Epsom Hospital.

The worst injury was sustained by the cyclist, Mr. Harold Carter, aged 23, of Southampton, who received severe internal injuries. His brother, who was riding on the pillion, was uninjured.

AMERICAN VISITORS TO IRELAND

The new Cunarder, Samaria, completing her first round trip from Liverpool to Boston, arrived at Queenstown yesterday with 1,100 passengers, comprising 146 saloon, 363 cabin, and 591 third class. As 323 passengers were to be landed at Queenstown, the liner entered the inner harbour, and came to anchor near the Spit Lighthouse. Close on 600 pieces of baggage and some mails were also sent ashore. The baggage was promptly examined by the Customs officers, and a number of passengers travelled by the 2.15 p.m. mail train to Dublin. All the passengers who landed at Queenstown spoke highly of the excellent accommodation on board the Samaria and her splendid sea-going qualities in bad weather.

FLOODS IN MANITOBA.

WINNIPEG, Thursday.

Heavy rains have caused further rise in the river Assinibone, in the vicinity of which many thousands of acres are already inundated; 75,000 acres of Manitoba's finest wheat lands are threatened. The protecting dykes of the river have now broken down, and thousands of seeded acres are flooded.—(Reuter.)

RUSSIA'S FIRM ATTITUDE.

REPLY TO POWERS' MEMORANDUM.

MUST BE TREATED AS EQUALS.

HOW CONFERENCE MAY BE SUCCESSFUL.

The tone of Russia's reply to the Powers' memorandum, which was handed to Signor Facta yesterday, is uncompromising.

It demands that Russia shall be regarded as an equal, and that for any "concessions" made in regard to debts incurred by the former régime there shall be reciprocal acts.

Russia does not, however, admit that she is liable for the debts of a Government supplanted by a revolution or for private property seized under laws made by the Soviet; but, in the interests of harmony, would be disposed to compromise, claims and counter-claims to be submitted to arbitration.

The Note closes in a more conciliatory spirit, and expresses a hope that the Conference may be crowned with success.

Opinion in Genoa is that, while the reply is unsatisfactory, it forms a basis for further discussion.

POLITICAL INTRIGUES.

SOVIET DELEGATION'S CHARGES.

Russia's reply to the concerted memorandum presented to the Russian delegation on May 2 begins with a statement that the Allied memorandum is a retrogression from the agreement of April 20 and the proposals of the London Conference of Experts, and that the memorandum of May 2, in itself, deviates from the Cannes resolutions.

The efforts of the Russian delegation to obtain a consideration of the most important problem of credits and loans, the reply continues, has been ignored. The Conference started wrong by imposing the condition that Russia must accept liability for Government debts and individual claims before the examination of this question. The result is that problems of the future, in which the whole world is interested, are subordinated to the interests of the past, which concern only certain groups.

It is untrue to suggest that recognition is necessary before capital can flow into Russia. Many foreign capitalists have not waited for a settlement. The debts question depends on the guarantees which the Russian Government can give for the future, and the international consolidation resulting from de jure recognition.

Russia's good faith on the question of the settlement of its debts is shown by her desire not to assume engagements which she cannot carry out.

More than one of the States represented at the Genoa Conference has repudiated its debts and has confiscated the property of foreigners, or of its own nationals, without suffering the ostracism meted out to Russia. It is clear that the exclusion of Russia from international, economics and political life is due to political, and not material, questions.

The Soviet, the reply proceeds, refuses to introduce politics into the discussion. The effort to do so is contrary to the Cannes resolution. If the Conference fails, the failure will be due to those who place the interests of certain social groups above the interests of Europe.

The object of the declaration of May 2 was to make Russia alone endure the sacrifices involved in collaboration. It is untrue that Russia can be replaced by any substitute. Her absence from the world market introduced disturbances which no artifice can remedy.

Russian isolation has also its political dangers. The present quarantine encourages the military adventures of countries seeking to secure the territory and wealth of the Russian and other Soviet Republics. The sacrifices demanded from Russia must find a counterpart in analogous sacrifices by other countries.

ACTS OF FORMER REGIME.

NOT LEGALLY RESPONSIBLE.

Russia is not obliged to justify the revolution. The Governments which have emerged from the revolution are not bound to respect the obligations of Governments which they have replaced. On this point the reply, after quoting the precedents of the French Convention's proclamation of September 22, 1792, declares that the sovereignty of peoples is not bound by the treaties of tyrants. France, the Note proceeds, tore up the political treaties of the old régime, and repudiated her national debt, though later she consented to pay interest at one-third the original rate from motives of political opportunism.

On a question of principle, a revolution is force majeure, and there is no obligation to compensate, no compensation was given by the Tsarist Government for losses caused by the revolutionary events of 1905-6. Legally, Russia is not bound to pay past debts, to make restitution, or to compensate former owners, any more than she is bound to provide compensation for losses resulting from legislation, which was the result of the revolution; but in a spirit of conciliaton, the principle contained in the third Cannes resolution is accepted on a condition of reciprocity, and the Russian delegation is prepared to accept liability for public debts, with the exception of war debts, Russia having dissociated herself, and having no advantages, on conditon that losses caused by foreign intervention and blockade are also recognised.

In its desire to reach a practical agreement the Russian delegation in earlier conversations, the reply observed, made wide concessions, on conditon that real credits were placed at the disposal of the Russian Government. The memorandum of the Powers says nothing definite about credits to the Russian Government, and gives a discretionary character even to the credits to be granted to their nationals for trading with Russia. Similarly, the question of war debts and of a moratorium for pre-war debts is referred to an arbitral tribunal, and now difficulties are imposed on the Russian Soviet Government by the provisian State would become the sport of fortune.

The Russian Soviet delegation considers that under this clause the sovereignty of the Russion State would become the

It would be subject to the decisions of a mixed arbitral tribunal, composed of four foreigners and one Russian. This would not be impartial for arbitration, and must result in the destruction of the Russian social system.

EQUALITY OF STATUS.

AN ESSENTIAL BASIS.

The Note next declares that the Russian Government sent its representatives to Genoa in the hope of obtaining there, with the other States represented, an agreement which, without infringing on the political and social régime established as a result of the revolution, and of the intervention victoriously repulsed, would bring about, not an aggravation, but an improvement of the economic and financial situation of Russia, would open the way to an improvement in the economic situation of Europe. Such a result implies that the foreign Powers who organised armed intervention in Russia should cease to hold to Russia the language held between conqueror and conquered, Russia not having been conquered. The only language which will result in a common agreement is that held between States negotiating on a footing of equality.

Russia is still ready, in order to assure success and agreement, to consent to important concessions to foreign Powers, but upon the absolute condition that concessions equivalent to, and corresponding to, these concessions are made in favour of the Russian people by the other contracting parties.

Another matter of importance suggested by the difficulties of the situation, the Note goes on, would be a mutual translation of the claims and counter-claims originating from the past and standing between Russia and the other Powers. In this matter, also, the Russian Government is determined to respect the interests of the small bondholders. If, however, the Powers wish to consider the solution of the financial difficulties outstanding between themselves and Russia, taking into account the fact that this question necessitates, from its nature and from the extent of the claims presented to Russia, a study more profound, and an appreciation more just, of the credits available for her, this task could be entrusted to a mixed committee of experts nominated by the Conference, the labours of this committee to begin at a date and place to be determined by common agreement.

Russia came to the Conference with conciliatory intentions, and still hopes that her efforts in this direction will be crowned with success.

THREE BROTHERS SHOT.

EARLY MORNING RAID BY MASKED MEN.

AGED MOTHER'S ORDEAL.

Another shocking crime was committed in County Derry early yesterday morning, when three brothers, James, Francis and Thomas McKeown, were shot by armed men.

The McKeowns, who are Roman Catholics, lived with their aged mother in a cottage at Ballymulder, near Magherafelt. At 2.30 yesterday morning the house was surrounded by armed men, and three of them, who wore masks, ordered Mrs. McKeown to open the door.

When the terrified woman had obeyed their order she was told that she must bring all the male members of the family to the kitchen.

James was the first to enter the apartment, and he was shot dead. Volleys were fired at Thomas and Francis, who followed him, and they were severely wounded. Sixteen bullets entered Francis's body.

When the murderers left the house Mrs. McKeown sent a neighbour for medical help. Dr. Kerlin attended to the wounded men, and accompanied them in an ambulance to the Mater Hospital, Belfast.

THE NEW EGYPT.

SACRED AND INVIOLABLE PRINCIPLES.

CAIRO, Thursday.

According to the Mokattam, the Constitution Sub-Commission has, so far, adopted the following principles:—Every Egyptian has the right of recourse to the public authority by means of petition. Life and liberty are guaranteed to all inhabitants of Egypt without distinction of birth, language, religion, race or nationality. Complete freedom of all religions or beliefs, provided they conform to public order and morals.

Every Egyptian subject is equal before the law, enjoying the same political rights without distinction of race, language, or religious opinions; beliefs or religions in no way prejudice the enjoyment of the civil and political rights of Egyptian subjects, such as admission to public functions, the obtaining of titles, the exercise of professions, etc. Every Egyptian subject has the right to use any language.

Egyptian subjects belonging to minorities of race, language, or religion are entitled to the same treatment and the same guarantees as other Egyptian citizens. In particular, they have the same right to create, direct, or control, at their own expense, religious or social institutions, charitable societies, schools, or other institutions of learning, employing their own language, and freely practising their own religion.

The preceding principles are sacred and inviolable.

MALICIOUS INJURIES.

MR. DEVLIN AND THE GRANT TO ULSTER.

Sir Hamar Greenwood, replying to Mr. Devlin in the House of Commons yesterday, said that the Government of Northern Ireland had undertaken to deal with the payments of damages for malicious injuries in the area of Northern Ireland, and the Imperial Government would contribute £1,500,000 for that purpose. A Commission similar to that which had been appointed in Southern Ireland for the purpose of dealing with these claims would not be appointed.

Mr. Devlin—Is the right hon. gentleman aware that a large number of claimants for compensation for damage are greatly displeased with their awards? (Hear, hear.) As these awards are being reconsidered in Southern Ireland, why should they not be reconsidered in the North by a Commission appointed on the same lines?

Mr. Sharman Crawford said that, whereas in the North County Councils and other bodies had contested claims, the claims in the South had not been contested by any public body.

Colonel Ashley—Now that the North and South have been given Home Rule, how much longer will the British taxpayer be asked to provide money?

Sir Hamar Greenwood—It is impossible for me to say how long this House may be asked to assist in the settlement of Ireland by financial grants. It is quite true that most applicants in the Northern area may be dissatisfied with the awards granted by the County Court Judges, but in the North every applicant has been given a judicial hearing in an open court and the decision given in accordance with law, which cannot be disturbed by this House or by any other tribunal.

Mr. Devlin—As I believe this to be an entirely scandalous transaction to give £1,500,000 to the Northern Government, I should like to ask whether we shall have an opportunity of discussing it.

Sir Hamar Greenwood—I cannot give a day for discussion; but I am certain that before long there will be some estimate before the House when the whole matter can be raised.

TRAINS RAIDED.

GOODS CARRIED OFF.

Reports continue to be received of the holding up of trains on the principal railway systems in different districts of the country. The trains on the Dublin and South-Eastern Company's line have been frequently attacked within a recent period past. Upwards of twenty-five cases of seizure of goods in course of transit have taken place since the first of the present month, including such merchandise as parcels of newspapers, bales of bacon, trusses of woollens, blankets, barbed wire, pork puddings, milk, motor spirit, whiskey, flour, candles, tobacco, paper. The latest raid took place on Wednesday night, when the Dublin and Wexford goods train was held up at Arklow, and a quantity of bacon and a box of butter were carried off by the raiders.

The quarter past nine o'clock goods train from North Wall, en route to the West of Ireland, was held up on Wednesday night at Liffey Junction, Dublin, by a large number of armed men, who searched the waggons and removed from them several boxes of Belfast goods which were consigned to business men in Connaught. People who were walking in the district were compelled to assist in removing the goods from the waggons.

SUNK VESSEL CLAIM.

SEQUEL TO COLLISION OFF HOLYHEAD.

In the Admiralty Division, London, yesterday Sir Henry Duke commenced the hearing of an action brought by the owners of the sailing and auxiliary motor vessel James Tyrell to recover damages in respect of the loss of that vessel, which was run into and sunk by the London and North-Western Railway Company's steamship Cambria, of Dublin, some two miles out from Holyhead, in the early morning on December 3 last. Three members of the James Tyrell's crew lost their lives.

She was a vessel of 201 tons gross, and was on a voyage from Runcorn to Bridgwater, laden with feed cake. The Cambria, which was engaged in the cross-Channel service, was bound from Holyhead to Kingstown, with mails and 233 passengers, among whom were members of the Irish Peace Delegation.

The plaintiffs' case was that the James Tyrell was under sail and was showing the appropriate side lights and a stern light when the Cambria was seen to be coming round the Holyhead Harbour breakwater. The sailing vessel maintained her course and speed, but the Cambria approached at great speed, causing risk of a collision. Aboard the James Tyrell the foghorn was sounded and some of the crew loudly hailed, but the steamer came on and struck the sailing ship, cutting her in two.

The case for the defendants, who counter-claimed in respect of the damage to their vessel, was that the Cambria was two and a half miles from Holyhead when shouting was heard, and instantly a dim green light appeared right under the bows. The engine room telegraph was running "full speed astern," but the collision could not be avoided. The defendants attributed the casualty to defective lights on the sailing vessel.

The hearing was adjourned.

DEATH OF MR. HENRY WILLS.

The death occurred last night at Bristol of Mr. Henry Herbert Wills, director of the Imperial Tobacco Company, and younger brother of Mr. George A. Wills, Chairman of the company. Mr. Wills was the second son of the late Mr. Henry Overton Wills. He was born at Bristol in 1856, educated at Clifton College and University College, Bristol, and married a daughter of Sir Philip Cunliffe-Owen. Mr. Wills's gifts to the University, with those of his brother, George, amounted to over a million and a quarter.

FROM TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

CRITICAL DAYS.

SEPARATION DANGER.

"THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY SAYS:—

In a message from Genoa, Mr. Wickham Steed states:—We are in the midst of the most critical of many critical phases of the Conference. The danger of the separation of England from France still dominates the situation, a noticeable feature of which is the marked reserve of the Little Entente. Dr. Benes, the Slovak Prime Minister, has taken no part in the negotiations of the last ten days, though during the earlier stages and crises of the Conference he was the hidden pivot upon which the Conference really turned.

The reasons for his attitude are manifest. During his visits to London and Paris before the Conference, when he did important work in bringing the French and British Prime Ministers together and arranging their meeting at Boulogne, he clearly and officially informed both of them that in the event of a breach between France and England the Little Entente could not side with one against the other, but must hold respectfully aloof.

This breach he did his utmost to avert. But in the last ten days he has seen things definitely moving towards a breach. Hence his neutrality, which has made a deep impression here.

INSURANCE FUSION.

NEGOTIATIONS ON FOOT.

In its City Notes Column, The Times states:—An announcement in the following terms was sent last night to the shareholders of the London Guarantee and Accident Co., Ltd., by Mr. H. C. Thiselton, the general manager:—

"I am desired by the Chairman to inform you that negotiations are proceeding for the fusion of the company with another first-class insurance office; that it is hoped a definite announcement will be made in the course of a few days; and that, in the meantime, it would be well for you not to part with your shares."

STATE OF IRELAND.

STREAM OF REFUGEES.

In a leading article the Morning Post remarks:—We suppose that the Government thought it would get rid of the Irish "question" by the Treaty. The Prime Minister takes pride in his Celtic imagination, but we cannot congratulate him upon his exercise of that divine gift in the case of Ireland. Did he, for example, form a mental picture of a crowd of refugees streaming from Ireland into this country, with their harrowing stories of murder, outrage, and arson? The stream has been flowing already for some considerable time, and it tends to increase in volume. It may at any moment reach the dimensions of a flood.

We are only at the beginning of the Irish trouble. It is going to develop new and more terrible features day by day. There is no evidence, nor even a probability, that Ireland is proceeding from one form of order to another. All the evidence we possess—and we have placed it from time to time at the disposal of the public—is that the true Government of Ireland at the present time is a secret society in close touch with our enemies in all parts of the world.

IRISH DISTRESS COMMITTEE.

The Morning Post understands that, in addition to Sir Samuel Hoare, M.P., Chairman, and Sir John Anderson, Mr. Lionel Curtis and Mr. Sturgis (Irish Office) will also be members of the Irish Distress Committee.

ADVANCE OF WIRELESS.

In a leading article on its account of the Carpentier-Lewis fight, which it sent broadcast by wireless, the Daily Express says:—In a few years there will be no place on this earth so remote as not to be in immediate touch with the latest event of interest that happens anywhere. Rather, the word "remote" also will change its meaning, and will come to be synonymous merely with a place or a house that has no wireless receiver. Last night something took place that may well mark the beginning of a revolution in our habits and our whole civilisation. The times may be troublous, but few will deny that they are full of interest.

RUSSIAN DEBTS.

The Westminster Gazette observes:—The pre-war debts the Soviet will probably recognise if it gets the recognition and the assistance it requires. It cannot, of course, begin to pay interest on them for a long time to come, and money is unlikely to be forthcoming for the assistance of Russia's revival unless old debts take the second place and new debts the first. But Russia is potentially a very rich country, and in the long run she ought to be able to meet her obligations. The Bolsheviks need to face the facts and to realise that brazenly defaulting nations are not popular with investors.

ISADORA DUNCAN MARRIED.

News of the marriage of Isadora Duncan, the famous bare-foot dancer, to Sergei Yessenin in Moscow, was received in London, says the Daily Express, yesterday. After the ceremony the bride and bridegroom flew to Berlin, where they are staying.

THE ENGINEERING DISPUTE.

The Engineering and National Employers' Federation yesterday had under consideration the report of Sir William Mackenzie, and sent a communication to the Amalgamated Engineering Union and the 47 Unions suggesting a joint conference next Tuesday. The Negotiating Committee of the 47 Unions met at the House of Commons in the afternoon, and accepted the invitation. The Executive of the Amalgamated Engineering Union sat throughout the afternoon at their headquarters discussing the situation. The employers' invitation to a conference will be considered by the full Council to-day, when a reply will probably be sent.

A BORROWED MOTOR VAN.

One of Mr. H. Bentley Thom's Ford tenders was taken from his Pembroke street garage on Wednesday at 4 o'clock by a party of civilians, who stated that the car would be returned in about two hours. Shortly after the prescribed time, the car was brought back in prefect condition, except for the fact that one tube was punctured.

TIPPERARY CIRCUIT COURT.

At the North Tipperary Circuit Court, at Nenagh yesterday—Mr. Cahir Davitt presiding—Patrick Hayes, a labourer, sued Myles Carey, a married man, for damages for the seduction of his sister, Julia Hayes, who was a domestic servant in the defendant's employment. The Court assessed damages at £100, and costs.

Martin Flannery, Ballinderry, Borrisokane, sued James Brooder, of the same place, for £500 damages, for stabbing him with a knife, as a result of which his jaw was permanently disfigured. The Court assessed damages at £50 and costs.

INTOLERANCE CONDEMNED.

VOICE OF SOUTHERN PROTESTANTS.

CRIME AND MURDER MUST CEASE.

DUTY OF LOYALTY.

A Convention of Protestants, representative of all parts of the South and West of Ireland, was held last evening in the Mansion House, Dublin, for the purpose of expressing their condemnation and abhorrence of the murders and outrages which have been committed upon men, women, and children in Ulster and other parts of Ireland as the result of sectarian hatred.

Alderman Hubbard Clark, High Sheriff of Dublin City, presided, and those on the platform included:—Archdeacon Daly, Clonfert; Lieutenant-Colonel Leahy, O.B.E., High Sheriff of Kerry, Sir Nugent Everard, Bart.; Serjeant Hanna, K.C.; Professor Trench, Professor Culverwell, Rev. Canon Pike, Clonoulty; Mrs. Stopford Green, Miss Nellie O'Brien, and Mr. E. W. Seale.

The Chairman, in opening the proceedings, asked one of the Secretaries, Mr. Samuel Moore, K.C., to read the correspondence.

Mr. Moore said that he could not attempt to read the whole correspondence, but he would read a few extracts from letters which were received with regard to the holding of the Convention, and the resolutions to be submitted. He then read extracts from letters, expressing approval of the objects of the gathering.

The names of the writers will be found at the end of this report.

Lord HolmPatrick wrote, regretting extremely that circumstances obliged him to leave Dublin that evening, and it was impossible for him to attend.

OBJECT OF THE MEETING.

CHAIRMAN'S STATEMENT.

The Chairman explained that the Convention had been called with the object of condemning sectarian outrage and intolerance. The meeting was unique in the sense that no similar meeting had been held for generations. If that proved anything, it proved that until the recent tragedies in Co. Cork there was no suggestion of sectarian bitterness in their midst. It was almost impossible to conceive that a community having a record like that, and living under the Christian influence and teaching of the Roman Catholic and Protestant Churches, could descend to methods little short of barbarism. They were not there to condemn a crusade of sectarian bitterness and violence in Southern Ireland alone, but in all Ireland. (Applause.)

They must always remember, when dealing with recent atrocities, the condition of Ireland, political and otherwise. He believed that many of the crimes which they were there to condemn were committed by hooligans, who were outside the pale of all religion, and who were past-masters in the art of setting class against class, and sect against sect. Although Protestants were in a minority in the South and West they had the confidence and co-operation of the majority. (Applause.) He had heard that testimonial time after time being given by the majority party of Ireland in favour of the Protestant minority. Right-thinking men were agreed that there was no hope in the gospel of violence as a solution for their troubles, were they political or religious. (Applause.) Those troubles would only yield to clear thinking and fair dealing, and it rested with all sides to see that those qualities should no longer be obscured by hatred, malice, and all uncharitableness. (Applause.)

A TWO-FOLD OBJECT.

Mr. Serjeant Hanna proposed the adoption of the first resolution, which was as follows:—

"That we abhor and condemn as un-Christian and uncivilised the murders and outrages which have been committed upon men, women, and children, as a result of sectarian hatred, as well as the forcible depriving of any Irish citizen of his means of livelihood because of his conscientious opinions."

He said that it was gratifying to the promoters of the convention to find that their invitation had received such a splendid response in the way of an audience and in the number of letters—several hundred—which had been received. The object of the meeting was two-fold. It was to enable them, as representing the Protestants of Ireland, to give a public and unequivocal denunciation to the sectarian strife which had entered into politics in Northern Ireland some time ago, and was now, unfortunately, threatening politics in Southern Ireland.

They were also there to condemn the murder, expropriation, or banishment of Irishmen, either Belfast Catholics or Southern Protestants, on account of their religion. (Applause.) And they wished also, as would be done in the second resolution, to proclaim in equally clear terms, not only in Ireland, but throughout England, where there might be still some people interested in them—(laughter)—that until the recent unfortunate and terrible outrages and crimes in Southern Ireland the Southern Protestants had lived on terms of amity and good citizenship with their Catholic fellow-countrymen.

We, Protestants, of Southern Ireland, continued Serjeant Hanna, are a minority here. We are a defenceless minority in Southern Ireland, and all that we ask, or have ever asked, is for liberty to live our harmless lives in whatever occupation we follow in the paths of peace. (Hear, hear.) We could be easily driven out of Ireland, but we claim that it is our country as well as other people's. (Applause.) But unless this campaign of murder, exile, kidnapping, confiscation, and destruction of property comes to an end in Southern Ireland an exodus of Protestants must ensue.

We, as I have said, only claim the right to live our lives in the way we have hitherto done, but, if this distressful condition is to continue, and if death is to stride unbridled through the country, a state of terror will arise among the Protestants of Southern Ireland which will be only equalled by the condition of our Catholic fellow-countrymen under the Penal Laws, which many Protestants helped to get relief from.

"GREAT GRATIFICATION."

They had read with great gratification, the speaker went on, the prompt and vigorous denunciation of those outrages by the eminent Catholic ecclesiastics, by the Cabinet of Dail Eireann, by many public Catholic bodies, and by individuals throughout the length and breadth of the country. It was by those utterances that they had been raised from the depths to which some of them were driven, and that a hope that sprung up in their hearts that, perhaps, the present was only a phase that might rapidly pass away.

Those resolutions had shown them that they had, at least, upon their side the Christian spirit of the Catholic community. They hoped that they had passed the worst, and that the influence of those eminent people and of those public bodies would be powerful enough to create a public opinion that would prevent any repetition of the terrible things that had happened. No reprisal could save a life in any other part of the country, and they could only say that the people who had forgotten the laws of God and committed those terrible crimes could never be brought back to the paths of righteousness until they were prepared to obey the laws of God again.

A DIFFICULT PROBLEM.

Second to life were the means of livelihood, and this was a more difficult problem. Many of the confiscations, expropriations, and banishments that had been, and were being, imposed unfortunately, from day to day on isolated Protestants here and there caused cruel hardships to many unfortunate people, and the difficulty with reference to these occurrences was that they were more far-reaching and difficult to deal with. That was because there were many people who looked upon murder with horror, and, therefore, thought it unnecessary to rouse the public spirit of the country against them. There were people in the country who when a man's lands were taken and he was told it was a reprisal, or when his cattle were seized and he was told that it was a reprisal, thought that it was a matter in which they as citizens had little concern.

But, continued Mr. Serjeant Hanna, it was a terrible thing for people to be deprived of their means of livelihood, and unless such a situation was ended anarchy would prevail, which, of course, would be the end of all. They were met every day by people asking what was to be the end of this, or what was the remedy. The only remedy, as far as he could see, was to renew the old spirit of citizenship and toleration which they had all enjoyed in Southern Ireland; not only that, but to create a public determination to maintain law and order under whatever Government reigned in this country. These were the only means whereby the community could re-establish the national right of citizenship, liberty, and freedom over anarchy.

Lieutenant-Colonel Leahy, O.B.E., High Sheriff of Co. Kerry, in seconding the resolution, said that it was known that the general body of Southern Protestants had been jected to some criticism for not taking some such action as this before. He ventured to say that this this was not due to sympathy with any form of sectarian hatred. Personally, as an individual, it did not occur to him that any public disclaimer was necessary to clear himself from suspicion of such sympathy, nor was such action needed to disabuse any of his Catholic friends and neighbours of such an idea.

But for a considerable period he had gathered from remarks made by country people that a feeling was abroad to the effect that the influence of the Protestant community in the South of Ireland was not being utilised effectively to condemn and discredit the sectarian bias reported and known to be rampant within parts of North-East Ulster.

Here, again, as an individual, he, doubtless, in common with many others included in the wide net which the term "Protestant" covered in this country, was deeply conscious of personal unworthiness and lack of authority to warrant public action, and awaited the lead of some better-known member or members of their community. So scattered were they Protestants that he ventured to advance this explanation as applying to many similarly situated.

Speaking as one who had served under the Crown in India, the Mediterranean, the Continent, and in England, during a period of over thirty years, his experience had been that the religious beliefs of heathens, Mahommedans, and Christians, irrespective of creed, were given equal protection, and any officer or soldier who wantonly insulted a Hindu temple, Mahommedan mosque, or Catholic ceremony or procession would have received scant mercy from those in high authority.

It was, therefore, the more strange to him to find that individuals in the motherland, Ireland, had been, and could be, liable to violence and insult.

TRIBUTE TO ROMAN CATHOLICS.

Regarding the second resolution, he could only testify that from Catholic priest, peer, or peasant, he had never heard a discourteous word spoken with reference to the form of Christianity which he professed; while in his daily round and common task he had received help and kindness from Catholics of every class in life. The expression "tolerance" was sometimes even used, but as a very respected co-religionist of his own expressed it to him, there had been no question of tolerance in their relations with their neghbours.

"We lived our lives as Irishmen," said the speaker, "and respected the religion and opinions of our neighbours as we hoped and believed they respected ours." Personally, he had learned to respect the great work of the Church of Rome throughout the world. (Applause.) He called to mind the self-denying missionaries in the East. The Little Sisters of the Poor always worked on their "troopers" and mail boats, and, lastly, he recalled a graveyard behind the lines in France where lay a young Irish soldier whose grave, with others, was being tended by the Catholic girls of France.

"Some of the best men and women I have been privileged to know," he concluded, amidst applause, "belong or belonged to that great Church."

"THE ULSTERMAN'S MEADOW."

Rev. Canon White, of Clonoulty, Co. Tipperary, supported the resolution. The name of his parish translated into English meant, he said, the Ulsterman's meadow. (Laughter.) He had been rector of the parish for 23 years. He had once been asked by a clergyman from the North of Ireland how he managed to live in Tipperary, and he told him something of the way in which he lived. He told him that his church was like the gates of Heaven—ever open, day and night, without a door being locked. Sometimes the offertory lay in an unlocked drawer in a table in the vestry, the door of which was never locked for weeks, and not a penny was ever missed.

He was a bit of a farmer as well as a priest, and the father of a family. Once, while he was away from home, when a threshing machine came to the village, his Sinn Fein neighbours had his oats threshed for him, and everything was done that was necessary. The parish priest of the Roman Catholic community was the Rev. Dan Ryan, and if ever there was a saint he was one.

He (the speaker) was as stout a Protestant as anyone present, but that did not prevent him from acknowledging goodness when he found it. No Catholic who followed the teaching of that man would hurt or harm anyone. He did not think that the Irish people would ever forget or treat with ingratitude those who belonged to the Church of which Robert Emmet, Wolfe Tone, Smith O'Brien, and other Irish patriots were members. He did not believe that 999 out of every thousand people in Ireland would ever do any harm to a man, woman, or child because they were Protestants. (Hear, hear.)

Miss Cunningham, President of Trinity Hall, in supporting the resolution, said that there was no choice left to them as Protestants but to speak out if they were to remain Christians. (Hear, hear.) They had a deep feeling of abhorrence for the outrages that were committed, but they had laid themselves open to the charge of not minding what was done to the Roman Catholics of the North. She was herself a Northerner, and she could say that it was only in very few parts that Ulster was bad, and that the evil-doers were comparatively few.

They had allowed ridiculous things to be said, and hateful and ridiculous songs to be sung about Catholics in the North of Ireland without protest. She once mentioned the matter to a gentleman in the North, and his reply was that decent Orangemen did not sing those songs. She answered by saying that decent Orangemen should condemn them, and he said: "We cannot speak against our own people." It was for Protestants and all decent Orangemen to condemn songs that were so bad that they gave one almost a physical nausea. (Hear, hear.)

It was the teaching of those people that was responsible for the hatred and the fear which they imbibed, and which led to the killing of Roman Catholics in the North. That hatred and fear had been allowed to grow. Protestants had not fought against that, or against the ignorance that had spread through the Protestant people by the absurd teaching of history. They had not acted soon enough, and now they had to bear the shame and the humiliation of what had happened.

A PROTEST.

The Chairman was about to put the resolution, when

The Rev. Dudley Fletcher rose in the body of the hall, and said that he protested against some of the expressions used in a letter from Mr. George Russell, in which he strongly denounced the actions of the "fanatics in Belfast." Those statements had only been equalled by the statement that every Orangeman was armed in order to harm his Roman Catholic neighbours.

The Chairman—I declare the resolution carried, with only one dissentient.

Mr. Dudley Fletcher—I approve of the resolution, but I object to the statements in the letter which has been read from Mr. Russell.

Professor Culverwell, S.F., T.C.D., said that he came there by the courtesy of the Committee which convened the meeting, not in his personal capacity, but as Chairman of the Provisional Committee of the Southern Protestant Appeal, to make a statement on their behalf. The movement sprang out of a correspondence in the Irish Press, in which a desire was expressed that an opportunity should be given to Protestants resident in the 26 counties to express their abhorrence of acts of sectarian violence.

As the result of a meeting held in Dublin early in April, a Form of Appeal was drawn up and sent for signature to correspondents who applied for copies. A copy of the Form of Appeal was also sent to each Protestant clergyman. At the moment the signatures on the forms already returned included over 200 clergy of various denominations, and nearly 6,000 laymen of every class and occupation, and he should add that in many cases these signatures were attached as representatives of a number of others in their neighbourhood. The signatories included the Bishop of Meath, the Bishop of Killaloe, the Bishop of Ossory, and leading laymen, such as the Earl of Ossory, Viscount Powerscourt, and the Earl of Wicklow.

He was asked to state that the number of signatures from Co. Limerick exceeded 400, and a similar number was received from Co. Kerry. Applications for forms for signature were still being received, and it was expected that the number of signatures would be largely increased within the next few days. He should add that in connection with the movement public meetings were held in Limerick, Tralee, Athy, Redcross, Carlow, Killarney, Roscommon, Fermoy, Stradbally, Portarlington, Durrow, Nenagh, Clonmel, Killorgan, Roundstone (Co. Galway), Drogheda, Macroom, Roscrea, and other centres, at which either the appeal or a similar resolution was endorsed.

DUTY OF OBEDIENCE.

Archdeacon Daly (Ardfert) proposed:—"That we place on record that, until the recent tragedies in the County Cork, hostility to Protestants by reason of their religion, has been almost, if not wholly, unknown in the twenty-six counties in which Protestants are in a minority."

He said that he was born 84 years ago, in the County of Cork, and received his early education in a diocesan college not far from where Mr. Michael Collins was born. Ireland had now a new Government, and according to the laws of God and man obedience was due to that Government by every Protestant in Ireland. (Hear, hear.) He had lived for 57 years in the County of Galway. In the County Council there was not a single Protestant, and yet he had been appointed a member of several local and county committees, and he held these positions still. Was there a Council in the North of Ireland that would elect a parish priest to similar positions to those which he occupied by favour of his fellow-countrymen?

In 1878, when the Intermediate Education Board was called into being, he was appointed to conduct examinations in Roman Catholic schools, and his experience in that capacity was to him a pleasant memory. He had never met with any act or word that was offensive to him in all his long life. (Applause.)

Sir Nugent Everard seconded the resolution. He said that during his fifty years in Co. Meath, and knowing all classes, he had no hesitation in saying that he had not known a single case of bigotry on the part of his Catholic fellow-countrymen in that county. He had also never known of a Protestant having been rejected as a candidate for a public office on account of his religious opinions. In August, 1920, when they were horrified at what was happening in Belfast they in his county protested, but protests did not appear to be of much use. Now they were horrified with what they heard from Cork. They were told that it might be a reprisal.

Ireland had always been renowned for its liberality and toleration of people who worshipped at other shrines. It was to Ireland that the Huguenots came, and not to Protestant England. He did not believe that Protestants could detest the outrages in Co. Cork more than their Catholic fellow-countrymen did. He did not believe that there would be any more of them. (Hear, hear.) From what he had heard, the popular feeling in Cork, as well as in other parts of Ireland, had been thoroughly aroused. (Applause.)

"SPIRIT OF FAIR PLAY."

Mr. J. G. Douglas supported the resolution. He said that these protest meetings should have been held several years ago. He was sorry that so much reference had been made to the wicked things which had been done in Cork, as the place for such protests was in meetings of Catholic Irishmen. They knew that protests were taking place in those meetings. (Applause.) The spirit of Catholic Southern Ireland was not simply one of tolerance, but one of fair play. He hoped and prayed that before long they would be able to see growing up in the North of Ireland a spirit just as tolerant and just as ready for fair play.

Mrs. Stopford Greene, describing herself as "a venerable monument of antiquity," said that she rose only to show the length and endurance of Irish liberalism and toleration. The spirit of tolerance and good-will towards other people's religions was more prominent in Ireland than in any other country. It was the noblest part of a long tradition of noble and honourable history. They found it in pagan Ireland, in early Christian Ireland, and in later Christian Ireland, with the same warmth and, she might say, luminosity of understanding and good-will. (Applause.)

Mr. George A. Ruth, a delegate from the Irish Church Guild, speaking in Irish, supported the resolution. He said that every decent Protestant in Ireland was sorry for, and ashamed of, the outrages that had been committed.

The resolution was then put to the meeting, and the Chairman declared it carried unanimously.

On the motion of Mr. S. Moore, a cordial vote of thanks was accorded to the Lord Mayor for having given the use of the room in the Mansion House, and to the High Sheriff for presiding.

BAN ON NEWSPAPER.

STATEMENT AT DAIL EIREANN.

At the resumed session of Dail Eireann in Dublin yesterday,

Mr. Sean Milroy asked the Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. E. J. Duggan) if it was a fact that during the truce copies of Dublin newspapers had been seized and destroyed at Limerick, Castlebar, and other centres. He also asked if it was a fact that during the truce newsagents in Dublin had received notices that if they bought, sold, or assisted in the sale of a Dublin newspaper their premises would be burned.

Mr. Duggan replied that the answer to the first question was in the affirmative. As to the second question he said that copies of the Freeman's Journal had been removed from a Dublin station and burned on occasions named by him. Warning notices had been delivered to newsagents, and the proprietors of the Freeman's Journal had received communications from newsagents cancelling orders for the paper, and saying that their papers were being burned and raided. Newsagents in Fethard received notices from the local "I.R.A. Barracks" stating that the Freeman's Journal would not be allowed in the area, and that all outstanding orders for the paper should be cancelled, "By order, Chief of Staff, G.H.Q."

WAR COMPENSATION.

DUBLIN MOTOR COMPANY'S CLAIM.

In the Court of Appeal, London, yesterday Lords Justices Bankes, Scrutton, and Atkin allowed an appeal by a Dublin firm, A. and B. Taxis, Ltd., from an award of the War Compensation Court awarding them £3,484 9s. 10d. and 100 guineas costs in full satisfaction of all their claims arising out of the occupation of their premises at Portobello Garage, Dublin, by the Air Ministry for war purposes.

The claimants said that the amount of the award was inadequate, as it represented only about one-third of their claim. They appealed on the ground that the decision of the Compensation Court was erroneous in point of law in deciding that the several items of actual loss to them, which were admitted in the answer of the respondents, but disallowed by the award, did not constitute direct loss or damage by reason of interference with the property and business of the claimants within the meaning of the Indemnity Act, 1920. It was further said that the amount was calculated on a wrong basis, and that the compensation should have been assessed on the principle that the cost to appellants of their substituted premises and of their reinstatement in the old premises was a direct, and not an indirect, loss.

Their Lordships allowed the appeal, upholding the principle contended for by the appellants, and remitted the case for re-assessment of compensation.

Mr. Serjeant Sullivan, K.C.; Mr. James Lardner, K.C. (of the Irish Bar), and Mr. Maurice Healy appeared for the appellants; and the Solicitor-General (Sir Leslie Scott, K.C.) and Mr. Giveen were for the Air Ministry.

LORD CARSON AND THE ELECTIONS.

"PROLONGING THE AGONY."

TREATMENT OF BRITISH SUBJECTS.

Lord Carson, in the House of Lords yesterday, called attention to the treatment of British subjects in Ireland.

The Treaty, he said, was in operation, but it was a lamentable fact that since that abject surrender there had not been peace in Ireland for one day. The Government had gone out of Ireland and put nothing in its place.

The contest between Michael Collins and de Valera was only a small part of what was going on. There were independent bodies of armed men doing exactly as they pleased in their own districts. There was no sort of Government in Ireland.

If there was a Government, why was the Four Courts allowed to remain in the hands of a Republican army, which had not even any connection with de Valera? Men out of work were being forcibly billeted on other people, and Protestants were being evicted and their property seized. Farmers were having their stock taken away, and given a few hours' notice to clear out. What must be the state of mind of the people living in these areas, expecting every moment that they would be the next to be attacked? They must feel that they were better dead.

It was no good telling them that they must have patience. The putting off of the election had only prolonged the agony. An election held under present circumstances could only be a farce.

LORD BIRKENHEAD'S REPLY.

The Lord Chancellor (Lord Birkenhead) said that that which was taking place in Dublin illustrated the extraordinary perversity, the addiction to paradox, of Lord Carson's fellow-countrymen. It was not directed at the Protestant section. What had happened there could not happen anywhere else except in Dublin or in comic opera.

The militant section which had seized the Four Courts owed allegiance neither to Mr. Collins nor to de Valera. They made raids on neighbouring shops, telling the shopkeepers that the Irish people would pay them eventually. The paradoxical truth seemed to be that the Provisional Government, instead of estranging the people by its weakness, were actually acquiring support for that reason. The view was becoming more and more prevalent that, owing to the illicit and sporadic violence being displayed by gunmen, the Provisional Government was not being given a fair chance.

CAUSE OF THE MISCHIEF.

There was no doubt that the principal cause of the present mischiefs was the disastrous decision to postpone the election. He was assured by those most competent to form an opinion that it was certain that the Provisional Government would obtain a large and, perhaps, overwhelming, majority at the election. He was informed, although he could not for obvious reasons speak more definitely, that after preparation, and in the near future, that there would be a resolute and organised attempt to assert the force of its authority more closely and more sternly than had hitherto been possible by the Provisional Government.

If the Government tore up the Treaty now it would rejoice the heart of every enemy of Great Britain. All British subjects, whether in the North or in the South, were entitled to the consideration of the British Government. The noble lord spoke disapprovingly of the arrangements in contemplation to provide for the necessities of refugees from Ireland. What was proposal was that, on proof of circumstances of danger, a fund should be made available for the relief of the necessities of persons who established their case before a committee. There was, in his view, a clear obligation on the Government of Ireland, as, and when, established as a result of the election, to make compensation in all these cases. If this reasonable expectation was not made good he did not exclude the reasonableness of an expectation that these people should be helped from those who in England had undertaken responsibility in the matter.

All he had to say to the gloomy indictment of the noble lord was that when the Provisional Government received its imprimatur at the election they would, if they had not done so already, vindicate the confidence which had been placed in their resolution and good faith. He had reason to suppose that even before that election took place there would be a concerted and organised attempt on their part to deal with some of the graver mischiefs of the present situation.

The Marquis of Lansdowne declared that the reply of the Lord Chancellor had left absolutely unshaken the tremendous case made by Lord Carson. The Lord Chancellor gave them no hope of a way out of the present terrible difficulty. Brigandage, naked and unashamed, was rampant. They were told to be patient; but how long was that patience to last? It was getting exhausted. The Government ought to tell the Provisional Government plainly that they would be held responsible for compensating the people who were suffering under the present circumstances.

The Earl of Selborne said that the debate would live long in their memories. The Lord Chancellor's speech was a confession of the depths of humiliation to which a British Government had fallen. The Government were gambling on the result of the election, but it appeared that the gunmen would rule supreme at the ballot box. What then? That was the question which British electors were entitled to ask the Government. It was the duty of the Government to tell them what they proposed to do in that event.

The Lord Chancellor said that if the noble earl had asked him the question before he rose to speak he would have replied. He would have to do so on another occasion.

The House adjourned.

COLLECTING DETAILS OF CLAIMS.

At a meeting of the Committee of the Irish Registration Bureau for Refugees from Ireland in London yesterday it was decided to collect details of all claims for damage to life and property suffered by British citizens domiciled in the Irish Free State with a view to presenting the claims to the Committee set up for the purpose by the Irish Office, and take such other steps in their interest as may be deemed advisable.

In the House of Commons yesterday, Sir H. Greenwood, who was asked by Sir C. Oman what he proposed to do for the help of an Irish loyalist, now a refugee in England, who had obtained a county court judgment for the value of his house burned in October last, but could not obtain payment of the sum awarded him or of three half-years of rent now owing to him from his tenants, said that he would look into the case if details were supplied to him.

Sir C. Oman asked might he give the details in confidence, as the person concerned did not wish his name to be published.

Sir H. Greenwood—Certainly.

INSURANCE BENEFIT.

PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT'S DECISION.

It is notified that Rialtas Sealadach na hEireann, in view of the present high rate of unemployment in the insured trades, has made a Decree adopting for the time being the emergency provision for the payment of unemployment benefit and dependants' grant to persons normally employed in the insured trades under the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1922. The existing emergency provision is terminated as from 3rd May, 1922, and a new period is begun from 4th May, 1922, during which a maximum of 15 weeks' benefit may be allowed at intervals of five weeks each. The rate of benefit and of dependants' grants will be the same as at present, benefit and grant being combined for the purpose of this scheme. The rates of contribution under the Unemployment Insurance Acts, 1920 and 1921, and the Unemployed Workers' Dependants' Act, 1921, will remain at their present amounts, but will be amalgamated into one rate.

The rules applicable to the grant or benefit will be those at present in operation, with certain minor modifications. This emergency provision of benefit applies only to persons normally dependent on employment in the insured trades, and consequently does not apply to persons normally employed in agriculture or in private domestic service, or otherwise than by way of manual labour, and at a rate or remuneration exceeding £250 per year.

Rialtas Sealadach has under examination proposals for the relief of unemployment by providing work, and consideration is being given to those occupations to which, not being insurable, this emergency benefit scheme cannot be applied.

THE GLORIOUS DEAD.

TRINITY COLLEGE MEMORIAL.

HALL OF HONOUR TO BE BUILT.

The memorial to 1,450 graduates and undergraduates of Dublin University who fell in the great war will consist of a Hall of Honour. This was decided at a meeting of the General Committee of the Memorial Fund, which was held last night in the Regent House of Trinity College.

The Provost, who presided, said that they were all agreed that the memory of the Trinity men who had fallen in the war should not pass away without some permanent memorial. The Memorial Fund was inaugurated by the gold medallists of the University, very generously, in many cases, giving their medals in order that they might be melted down and their value applied towards establishing the Fund. That Fund, though not a very large one, amounted to a considerable sum, and at the inaugural meeting on November 4, 1919, a resolution was passed approving of the proposal to establish a permanent war memorial in the College, and providing that the form which the memorial should take should be recommended by the Executive Committee to the General Committee.

The Executive Committee, after holding many meetings, decided on the 29th June, 1920, that "the College War Memorial should be a dignified building in proximity to the West end of the Library, to be used as a reading room for students and graduates." A number of projects had been considered by the Executive Committee and set aside. Some people thought that the best thing to do would be to establish War Memorial Scholarships, but it was felt that, however laudable the object might be, the scholarships would not constitute a permanent and conspicuous feature which would tell its own story in something visible to the eye, of which the men of future generations, in passing, would ask "What is the meaning of that?" and be told "That is the Memorial to the Trinity men who fell in the great war." The origin of the scholarships would be very soon forgotten.

Then other proposals were made and considered. One proposal which received a good deal of consideration was that they should put up in the College a great statue of Victory. But finally it was decided that something of permanent use to the College, such as the proposed building, would be better.

QUESTION OF THE SITE.

Then there were questions as to the site of the building and so forth; some thought that the proposed site should not be occupied by a building at all, and that the memorial should be placed between the Engineering School and the Library, but the Executive Committee came to the conclusion, with expert advice, that it would there be incongruous with one or the other of the existing structures, and would not be at all as suitable as the site now chosen and submitted. On February 25, 1920, the Executive Committee passed a resolution to the effect that the memorial should take the form of a Hall of Honour (built in accordance with a plan submitted by Sir Thomas Deane), with which it would be possible to erect a Library Reading Room. It was understood that modifications of the plan might be introduced if deemed desirable. They suggested to the Board of Trinity College that if they gave them a site the Executive Committee would bear the expense of what would be a handsome building. When the matter was brought before the Board they had to explain that the memorial and reading room were urgenty needed. Finally, the Board, on June 21, 1921, adopted a resolution, in which it approved of the Executive's proposals.

The Lord Chancellor proposed the adoption of the Executive Committee's recommendations. He said that he felt richly rewarded in giving his gold medal to the memorial, for he had received a copper medal in exchange for it, which he esteemed as more precious. (Applause.) He had been connected with many war memorials, and he thoroughly approved of the form now suggested. The Hall of Honour would be both a beautiful and a useful memorial.

The Bishop of Limerick seconded the resolution, and spoke of the sacrifice of the 450 Trinity men who had fallen in the cause of liberty and of the Empire.

AMENDMENT MOVED.

Mr. William Jellett, K.C., said that he was entirely at one with the form of the memorial, but he thought that in the proposed site at Lecky's statue it would be incongrous with its immediate surroundings, and it would also spoil the vista through the existing gap which was one of the most beautiful views in Trinity College. His idea was to leave the vistas at both ends of the Library as they were, and to erect the memorial near where the tool-house now stood, where it would not interfere with the existing amenities. He proposed as an amendment that the question be referred back to the Executive Committee to reconsider the question of the site.

Sir John Moore seconded the amendment, and said that while he thoroughly approved of the erection of a Hall of Honour, he equally agreed that the site proposed would not meet the case, the Hall being walled in between two lofty buildings.

Sir Walter Buchanan, K.C.I.E., supported the resolution.

The Lord Chancellor said that the proposal now put forward had been carefully considered by the Executive Committee, and unanimously rejected.

After a brief discussion the amendment was lost by an overwhelming majority, and the resolution adopted amidst applause.

Mr. Justice Samuels proposed:—"That as, from the estimates submitted by the Executive Committee, it would appear that a further sum of at least £2,000 will be required for the erection of the Hall of Honour alone, the General Committee desire to urge the claims of the fund upon all members and friends of Trinity College, who desire that the sacrifices made by Dublin University should be appropriately and permanently commemorated."

He said that if it were asked in time to come why that building was thus designed, it would be answered that Trinity thought fit in times of great stress and danger thus to memorise those who passed away in early life having taught most perfectly her universal lesson through all her ages—that to all arts, all sciences, all achievements, in the future, as in the past, the vestibule lay through duty, discipline, devotion, and sacrifice, an entrance stern, but of commanding dignity and beauty, and leading on to the highest things here and hereafter; that these men were those who in their days—alas, too short! proved themselves the noblest professors of the ideals with which she sought to equip her sons—and in that spirit she built this temple to them. (Applause.)

Mr. John Garvey, D.L., in seconding the resolution, referred to the fact that he, like others, had lost a son in the Irish Guards. He expressed his willingness to double his subscription to the Memorial if necessary.

The resolution was supported by Mr. George W. Panter, M.A., and adopted unanimously.

Among those present were:—

The Lord Chancellor, Mr. Justice Samuels, the Bishop of Clogher, the Bishop of Kilmore, the Bishop of Limerick, Judge C. F. Doyle, M.A., K.C.; Colonel Sir Walter J. Buchanan, K.C.I.E.; Sir John William Moore, M.D., F.R.C.P.I.; Sir Lucas W. King, LL.D., K.C.I.E.; Very Rev. W. Dowse, M.A., Dean of Connor; Very Rev. John Orr, B.D., Dean of Tuam; Rev. Canon H. C. THREE MEN INJURED.

Two accidents took place on the North Circular road, Dublin, yesterday, resulting in injuries to three men, who were working at the tramway line. Between 11 and 12 o'clock a motor car driven by a man who said that he was from the County Meath, knocked down John Flannery, 3 Murphy's Cottages, Gloucester street, and Richard Halpin, 19 Ballybough road, labourers, who were repairing the line. Flannery had an arm fractured, and Halpin received a slight cut in the head. The driver of the car brought them to the Mater Misericordiæ Hospital.

At about 3 o'clock Frank Farnham, 1 Seaview avenue, Clontarf, a fitter, was engaged at a gas engine near the same spot, when an explosion took place, causing injuries to his head, face, and legs. He was taken to the hospital, where it was found that his injuries were not of a serious nature.

Dr. William Bateson, director of the John Innes' Horticultural Institution, at Merton, Surrey, has been elected a trustee of the British Museum.

PEERS AND THE R.I.C.

INADEQUACY OF COMPENSATION.

Viscount Long asked the Government, in the House of Lords yesterday, what steps had been taken to provide pensions, allowances, and safe conduct for those members of the R.I.C. who wished to leave Ireland with their families, and how many members of the force had been enlisted for service overseas. He moved for a return setting out the details. He said that if this matter were not handled generously it might be fatal to the fair fame and honour of Great Britain. It would be a disaster to have it recorded in our annals that this splendid force had not been treated with generosity on its disbandment. He made no attack on the Government. He was one of those who thought that the Government had done their best to meet the difficult and complex problems which had confronted them, and he made no attack on the policy of the Government in respect of the provision made for the R.I.C. In the suggestions that he would make he would deal with details, rather than principles. The wonderful cartoon in Punch this week gave some idea of the prospect before the disbanded men.

He regretted that the special tribunal in London was not to be presided over by a distinguished Irish Civil-Servant. The scheme of pensions was inequitable in certain respects, and the compensation allowances were inadequate. These men and their families should be assisted to migrate to another part of the Empire, where they would be safer than in England.

FINEST IN THE WORLD.

The Lord Chancellor said that he agreed that there had never been a finer police force in the world than the R.I.C. Their loyalty, devotion, and courage could not be surpassed. The terms offered to them ought to be not only just, but generous. If in any single particular it could be shown that the terms were not generous that matter must undoubtedly be put right. He was of opinion, subject to a more careful consideration of details, that in their generality these proposals were extremely generous. He did not believe that there had ever been a scale of pensions so liberal as this was. On the subject of emigration, the noble viscount was forcing an open door. The Government contemplated that many of the younger members of the force might play a great, and, perhaps, decisive, part in building up the outlying parts of the Empire. The suggestions made by the noble Viscount would receive the fullest consideration from the Government, and he would communicate the result of the discussions to the noble lord.

NOWHERE TO GO.

Lord Carson said that the fact that so few of the men had availed themselves of the facilities offered to remove themselves and their families from Ireland was due to the fact that they had notwhere to go to. Some of them were being hunted about with a view to their being assassinated, and they dare not go near their families. It was an awful picture to contemplate. The Government should take a larger view of their responsibilities, and not be content with putting down a sum which looked generous as compared with Army pensions. They should deal with the realities of the situation. They talked of emigration, but they should beware of driving men into the Colonies with a feeling of bitterness in their hearts that they were not wanted at home any longer.

The Earl of Donoughmore asserted that the terms offered to assist men to leave Ireland were utterly inadequate, and a mockery. No Irishman dared move them.

The subject then dropped.

R.I.C. AND THE DOLE.

Sir Hamar Greenwood, in reply to Lieutenant-Colonel Archer Shee, in the House of Commons yesterday, said that the Government would not feel justified in present circumstances in extending the benefits of unemployment insurance to recently disbanded temporary members of the R.I.C. and ex-members of the Auxiliary Dibision, who, it was suggested, were destitute, but who were not otherwise eligible for such benefits.

SALMON FISHERIES.

SOURCE OF INCOME TO IRELAND.

In spite of many difficulties over which it had no control, the Irish Salmon and Trout Fisheries Association has striven to carry out the objects for which it was formed—viz., "The improvement and protection of the salmon and trout fisheries of Ireland, and the encouragement of united action for the benefit of the inland fisheries by combination of all interests for the general benefit." So stated the Committee's sixteenth report, which was presented at the annual meeting of the Association yesterday at 122 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin.

Lord HolmPatrick, who presided, in proposing the adoption of the report, said that they had approached the Provisional Government with regard to salmon and trout fishing in Ireland, which there was a great chance of developing as a source of income to the country. The rivers could not be properly looked after unless they could raise money for the purpose. At the present moment things were not as they should be, but if each of their 202 members would make himself responsible for the addition of one more new member it would strengthen their position. If the existing state of affairs continued the Association could not last long. Certain hotels had agreed to grant reduced terms to their members, but the time had not yet arrived for obtaining improved railway facilities, though these facilities would come. Their object was to improve the fisheries of the country by helping one another.

Mr. H. D. Conner, K.C., who seconded, said that it was essential that some body such as theirs should represent them at headquarters and look after their interests in the matter of legislation. They had always watched, and always would watch, the fishery laws, and would have them amended in such a way as would benefit the country. There ought, he said, to be sufficient spirit among the fishery owners in Ireland for every one of them to support that Association. They were going into a new State now, and there would undoubtedly be a change in conservators in many parts of the country. It was, therefore, important that they should be able to produce to the Government properly thought-out schemes for the development of fisheries.

Colonel R. A. Henn and others having spoken, the motion was adopted.

Officers, council, and executive for the year were elected.

"BROADCASTING" BY WIRELESS.

POSSIBILITIES IN IRELAND.

It is interesting to learn that the Irish Postmaster-General is alive to the developments of wireless "broadcasting." Following the decision of the British Postmaster-General to sanction the establishment of "broadcasting" stations, Mr. Walsh has the question of establishing such stations in Ireland under consideration.

"Broadcasting" means, briefly, the sending out from a central wireless station certain items of interest at certain fixed times of the day. A typical programme, such as is "broadcasted" largely in America at present, is as follows:—

11 a.m.—Weather forecast.
7 p.m.—Short stories for children.
7.30 p.m.—Lecture on popular subject.
7.45 p.m.—Daily market reports.
8 p.m.—Concert.

In order to participate in the programme it is necessary to instal in one's home a receiving apparatus and to "listen in" at the appointed time. The apparatus varies in price from 5 to 8 guineas. A licence of 10s. a year is all that is necessary in addition to this sum.

The custom in America is to publish the programme of the day in the morning papers, so that the subscriber knows the times of "broadcasting" and what he is to expect at each time.

A farmer in a remote country district, for instance, will be interested in the weather forecast in the morning, and in the evening, after the day's work, he may enjoy a really high-class concert, or a popular lecture, without leaving his house.

The possibilities of this development of wireless telephony are far-reaching, indeed; but as yet the system is only in its infancy, and suffers in consequence from defects, which, no doubt, experience and further scientific discovery will remedy.

OCEAN-GOING MOTOR SHIP.

By far the most interesting and, undoubtedly, the cleanest-looking, over-seas vessel at the port of Dublin yesterday was the Balboa, from San Francisco. She carried about 5,000 tons of Californian wheat for Dublin delivery. Built at Gothenburg in 1919, she is 428 feet 9 inches in length, 56 feet 2 inches in breadth, and over 28 feet in depth. The Balboa is fitted with motor fuel engines, and is driven by twin-screws. In place of funnels, she carries but one small "stack," through which passes the exhaust and vapours from her engines.

FEIS CEOIL.

INTERESTING CONTESTS.

There were again large attendances at the Feis Ceoil competitions in Dublin yesterday. The principal contest was for the Denis O'Sullivan Medal for solo singing. Another contest which attracted much attention was the violoncello and piano duet, which carries the Elsner Memorial Cup.

The winners yesterday gave an excellent rendering of the piece set, Beethoven's Sonata in A major, a difficult piece which required careful handling.

The following awards were made:—

Mixed Quartette in Irish (2 entries)—First prize, Mr. Hubert Rooney's Quartette (Miss Nora Spears, Mrs. E. Knowles, Mr. Denis Cox, and Mr. T. J. Flynn). Mr. Hubert Rooney's Quartette (Miss Frances Alexander, Mrs. Duncan, Mr. Patrick Hassett, and Mr. A. McDonnell) would have got a prize if there had been more entries.

Junior Instrumental Trio (1 entry)—Cancelled.

'Cello and Piano Duet (4 entries)—Test piece:—Sonata in A minor (Beethoven). Winners (Elsner Memorial Cup, to be held for one year, a miniature replica to be presented to each winner), Miss Viola O'Connor and Miss Terry O'Connor (No. 3); silver medals, Miss D. Thompson and Miss M. Bradbury.

Children's Trio (8 entries)—Test Piece:—A Shepherd Lullaby (Edwards). First prize, Dominican Convent, Sion Hill, Blackrock, Trio (No. 7) (Misses Mary O'Sullivan, Ena O'Carroll, and Maureen Lynch); second prize, Christ Church, Leeson Park, Girls' School Trio A (No. 1); highly commended, Mrs. Rogers's Trio (No. 4); commended, Christ Church, Leeson Park, Girls' School Trio B (No. 8), and Comerford Trio (No. 5).

Denis O'Sullivan Memorial Medal—For best rendering of Irish songs (41 entries). Test pieces:—Competitors' own choosing. Winner of the medal, Miss K. O'Keeffe.

Miss O'Keeffe sang (a) "The Gartan Mother's Lullaby" and (b) "I know my love." She had not a big voice, said the adjudicator, but the manner in which she handled it was beautiful. Her treatment was above the average. Her voice was excellent, also, in a musical sense, and she sang with very nice feeling, while her diction was good.

Senior Instrumental Trio (5 entries)—Test piece:—Trio in C minor (Mendelssohn). First prize, the Misses N. Lord, Daphne Thompson, and Eileen Buckley (No. 5); second prize, the Misses Vera Wilkinson and Alice Bell and Mr. Frank Cheatle (No. 3); third prize, the Misses Bessie Klein, Hilda Wallis, and Hilda Shea (No. 4).

The adjudicators said that they had greatly enjoyed the competition, which struck them as being of general excellence throughout. One looked for equality and general unselfishness among competitors in ensemble contests; such a spirit was very desirable. The winning trio seemed to have combined most of the good qualities found in the general contest. They noticed in some of the trios a leading spirit that made the others subversive to her own personality; they followed her implicitly throughout, and the result was pleasing.

Baritone Solo (18 entries).—Test pieces: (a) "If there were dreams to sell" (John Ireland); (b) "Come over the sea" (arr. Moffatt); (c) an easy piece at sight. Gold medal, Mr. Thomas Burke (No. 2); silver medal, Mr. Bernard Baldwin (No. 10); bronze medal, Mr. J. J. Power (No. 14).

Ladies' Trio in Irish (7 entries).—Silver medal, Miss Nora Spears, Miss Nora Hill, and Mrs. E. Knowles (No. 5); bronze medal, Dominican Convent, Cabra, Trio—Miss May Coghlan, Miss Maura Buckley, and Miss Moire Keily (No. 6); highly commended, Miss May Coyne's Trio—Miss May Coyne, Miss Maire Heagney, and Miss Kathleen Smyth.

Church Choir (1 entry).—Test pieces: (a) "Quando Corpus" ("Stabat Mater") (Rossini); (b) "Light of the World" ("The Light of Life") (Elgar).

The Holy Trinity Parish Church, Rathmines, Choir (conductor, Mr. J. Turner Huggard) were recommended for the second prize, although it was the only choir entered.

Small Orchestra (2 entries).—Test piece: "Unfinished Symphony" (first movement), (Schubert). First, Newry Symphony Orchestra (conductor, Mr. George White) (No. 1).

String Orchestra (2 entries).—Test piece: "Serenade" (Mozart). First, Alexandra College Orchestra (No. 2) (conductor, Miss Muriel Starkie).

The standard in this competition was extremely high. The winning orchestra played with excellent spirit, and at a nice, steady pace. The Dublin Amateur Orchestral Players (No. 1) was splendid in tone. The adjudicator was pleased with their good phrasing. He was amazed to find such fine playing among the second fiddles.

CHOIRS.

Division I., Class A (1 entry, Brighton road Choral Society. Conductor, Mr. J. Turner Huggard). Test piece: "The Legend of Loughrea" (Larchet). The adjudicator awarded a cup to the single choir entered.

He congratulated the choir on a very fine performance, which demanded a tremendous amount of detail and preparation. The technical difficulties of the work had been extraordinarily well surmounted. He thought that the people of Dublin should join up when they had such fine orchestras and choirs and hold some really big concerts. (A Voice—"We haven't got a hall.") He was sorry to hear that. He had heard some splendid choral singing during the week from children, and he thought that it was a great pity that sufficient steps were not taken to keep these young boys and girls in constant training, so that they could build up later on a fine musical reputation for their city.

Division II., Class A (1 entry, Pembroke Choral Society. Conductor, Mr. J. Turner Huggard). Test pieces: (a) "Thyrsis, sleepest thou" (Benett); (b) "Dream-love" (Fletcher); (c) "The Cruiskeen Lawn" (Stewart).

The adjudicator recommended the Committee to grant the choir a second prize.

VOCAL ENSEMBLES.

Mixed Vocal Quartette (1 entry).—Test pieces: (a) "The Nightingale" (Mendelssohn); (b) "When flowering meadows" (Palestrina). Mr. John L. Woods's Quartette was recommended for the second prize.

Ladies' Committee Quartette (3 entries). Test piece: Any quartette from a Gilbert and Sullivan opera. First, Mr. John L. Woods's Quartette (No. 3).

Male Vocal Duet (4 entries).—Test piece: Own choosing. First, Mr. Mathew Dunleavy and Mr. P. O'Toole (No. 2).

FEIS IMPRESSIONS.

GOOD CHOIR & ORCHESTRAL WORK.

It was disappointing that more choirs did not compete for the various classes, but at any rate the standard reached was unusually high. Dr. Percy Hull's remarks on the work done by the choirs should go a long way towards dissipating that feeling of self-depreciation from which we suffer in our musical doings. He urgently advised the choirs and orchestras to combine and give big concerts and musical festivals of song.

There was a great amount of subtlety of expression in many of the choir numbers this year. It is interesting to compare the singing of Irish choirs with those of Northern England and Wales. In Northern England we get more brilliancy and power, in Wales we hear more wonderful part singing, but in Ireland there is a subtle mellowness of tone that is enchanting.

A very good example of this mellowness and velvet tone was shown by the Augustinian Choir in Division I., Class B. They sang the Phantom Host of Hegar with the delicacy of a quartette, and yet with splendid volume of tone, due to the delightful viola tone of the inner parts.

In Division I., Class A, the Brighton road Choral Society gave one of the most perfect performances of this year's Feis. Its conductor, Mr. T. T. Huggard, must be congratulated on extracting every ounce of expression from his hosts, especially when the test piece was such an intricate work as Dr. Larchet's "Legend of Loughrea." The effect of the "Caoin," with its leit motiv of gloom and foreboding was very striking, and Mr. Huggard gave the impression of playing on some great instrument, to such a fine climax did he work up the fugue.

The Kildare street Training College Choir showed great rhythmic power in their interpretation of "Upon Mistress Susanna Southwell, her feet." In "Praise to the Holiest," from the "Dream of Gerontius," it was difficult to judge, for we were listening and imagining the absent orchestra and solo part.

The orchestra competitions this year were very interesting, and showed what excellent material there is for building up Ireland's musical life. The two orchestras which played Schubert's Unfinished Symphony gave lucid performances of that beautiful work. There was no doubt that the Newry Symphony Orchestra gave the most spirited performance; their tempo was steadier, and they made several excellent effects of climax. In the Dublin Amateur Orchestra, though their quality of tone was at times very good, yet we noticed a tendency to slovenly rhythm and lack of attack.

In the string orchestra competition, where the test piece was that very exacting serenade by Mozart, the Alexandra College Orchestra, conducted by Miss Muriel Starkie, carried all before it by its enthusiasm and sparkle. Mozart must be played by young people, with their illusions, their frolicsome gaiety. Last night's performance made us feel that Mozart is a "Peter Pan" who will not grow up. No arrières pensées in Mozart—just open air, golden sun, and the babble of children.

DUBLIN AND THE PROVINCES.

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS.

LAWLESSNESS IN CO. WEXFORD.

During the last few days many robberies have been committed in the Enniscorthy district. A collection of silver was taken from Borodale, the ancestral home of Earl Beatty, and a quantity of clothing and several articles from Bellevue, the residence of Lady Power. A motor car was stolen from Sir Michael Lakin, Bart., in temporary residence at Ballinagort, Newtownbarry, which he has taken for the fishing season. On Wednesday night the lock-up public-house of Mr. T. O'Conner, Enniscorthy, was entered, and the entire stock of drink and £10 10s. in cash were stolen. On several farms fat sheep and lambs have been killed, skinned, and carried away.

DUBLIN.

ZENANA MISSIONS.—Presiding at the annual meeting of the Hibernian Auxiliary Zenana Missionary Society at the Gregg Hall yesterday, the Bishop of Ossory said that they were living in difficult and dangerous times, but there was an optimistic note running through the report of their missionaries. The annual report said that the only disappointing feature was the absence of recruits to the mission, which could be accounted for by the circumstances of the country. In Belfast they had marked an onward step by the opening of an office. Dr. Florence Cooper gave an account of the work in China; the Rev. R. Whelan described work in India; and Dr. Davis Graham, "Our Missionary," Christ Church, Leeson Park, also addressed the meeting.

DR. BICKERSTETH'S TOUR.—At the annual meeting of the Irish Auxiliary, S.P.G., in the Molesworth Hall, Dublin, last night, Rev. Dr. Bickersteth (Canon of Canterbury) gave a description of a trip round the world to visit missions. He travelled over 6,000 miles, from Amritsar to Madura, and after three weeks in Ceylon went to Singapore, China, and Japan, returning via San Francisco, Victoria, and Vancouver, through Canada to Philadelphia and New York.

DUBLIN EX-SERVICEMEN.—Eleven hundred men attended the third annual meeting of the North Dublin branch of the Legion of Irish ex-Servicemen at 61 Mountjoy square, and many more were unable to gain admittance. The report showed that the interests of ex-Servicemen were being protected in every possible way, and that the membership of the branch was increasing.

UNEMPLOYED'S PROTEST.—Pembroke, Dublin, unemployed passed a resolution at a meeting in Ringsend last night, protesting "against the action of the Pembroke Urban Council in refusing to accept a free grant which would enable a sum of £80,000 to be spent in the district on the building of workers' cottages and so relieve unemployment in the district."

CONNAUGHT.

A CASE FOR MERCY.—Mr. Mortimer Hanley, Raven terrace, Galway, "threw himself on the mercy of the Court" yesterday in asking the Republican authorities to rid him of a servant named Annie Grehan, who had seven children, and refused to leave his house until invited elsewhere. The Court ordered Grehan to go within three days.

LEINSTER.

ROBBERY WITH IMPUDENCE.—Seven armed and masked men entered a public-house in Navan and compelled the occupier, who had come down from her bedroom, to hand over her money—a sum of £80, of which £53 10s. was in gold. They then went into the bar with the woman and drank her health in rum and gin.

CURRAGH'S LOSS.—Farmers in the Curragh district are feeling the pinch now that the troops have left. At least £60,000 a year was spent locally by the Crown on forage for military horses, while many officers kept hunters, and employed civilian labour. There is much unemployment and distress in the district.

Mr. R. P. Redmond, postmaster, Wicklow, has been appointed to Enniscorthy, and Mr. J. Ryan, Queenstown, to Tralee.

A large area of the Bog of Allen is on fire, and much game has been destroyed.

Two motor cycles were stolen from a hotel yard at Lismore while a fair was in progress.

Mr. J. Russell, cashier, in the Donegall square (Belfast) branch of the Northern Bank, has been appointed manager at Aughnacloy.

Damage estimated at £1,300 was done to market and bottling stores in Aughnacloy on Wednesday morning.

Two rifles, a bomb, and rifle and revolver ammunition were found in a field at Lisdoughwilly, near Armagh, by Special police.

Unpurchased tenant members of the King's County branch of the Farmers' Union have decided to ask for a 50 per cent. reduction in rents.

Dail Eireann has sanctioned an overdraft of £5,000 for the payment of compensation to officials who lost office under the King's County workhouse amalgamation scheme.

Irregular forces have occupied the residence of Major-General Franks, Scarteen, Knocklong, and have erected strong fortifications. The owner is at present in India.

Eight pounds was stolen from Barnesmore (Co. Donegal) Post Office by armed men, one of whom said that they expected to find £100.

Three armed men raided the house of an elderly man named Donaghy, of Mullaghmore, near Dungannon, and robbed him of £80, his life's savings.

Extensive cattle-drives have taken place on lands held by Protestants in the Naas district of Co. Kildare, and threatening notices have been posted.

Preparations are being made to lower the four pieces of statuary still standing on the coping above the main entrance to the ruined Custom House.

Raiders secured £60 from the safe at Ballymote, Co. Mayo, Railway Station. They compelled the stationmaster to hand over the keys at the revolver muzzle.

Owing to the difficulty of investigating malicious injury claims from the Tyrone-Monaghan border, which the Clerk described as "No Man's Land," Dungannon Rural Council is to apply to have the claims adjourned until matters return to normal.

Waterford Methodist Synod has passed a resolution condemning lawlessness and testifying to the good relations which have existed between its members and Roman Catholics.

More reconstruction work is to be undertaken at Midleton, where the Urban Council is taking steps to erect houses near the railway station, the foundations of which were laid some time ago at the instance of Lord Midleton.

BARRACK ATTACKED.

ASSAILANTS BEATEN OFF.

Forkhill House (South Armagh), which was taken over as a barrack some time ago by the Royal Irish Constabulary and Special Police, was subjected to a severe attack some nights go by a party of armed men. The garrison vigorously replied for an hour, after which the attackers withdrew. The police sustained no casualties.

BORDER ACTIVITY.

Our Strabane Correspondent says that there is great activity on the Donegal side of the border. Near Clady the roads are held by men who are ready to repulse any attack. Trenches have been dug and sandbags put up.

LAITY'S OFFERINGS.

The session of the General Synod of t
Church of Ireland was resumed yesterday the Synod Hall, Dublin. The Primate p sided, and nominated Mr. Gerald FitzGibb
K.C., his assessor.

Mr. J. A. Maconchy, in moving that the port of the Representative Body be taken i consideration, said that the balance sheet the 31st December, 1921, showed that the to of the funds administered by the Represen tive Body amounted on that date to £9,887, 4s. 3d., of which total the interest-bear funds represented £9,457,110 7s. 1d., an incre of £94,380 3s. 11d. as compared with last ye
£18,799 13s. 9d., and the net increase in capi accounts during the year was £76,347 0s.
Parochial endowments had increased
£33,394 6s. 2d., and miscellaneous trusts £13,911 11s. 2d., the aggregate of these funds now standing at £2,525,665 0s. 4d.
special figure was £20,138 11s. 11d increase glebes profit on sales. The number of gl sold during the year constituted a record, was due to the policy of amalgamation of smaller parishes, rendered necessary by changed conditions, social as well as financ which called for concentration of their fo of men and money. The decrease of £18
13s. 9d. in reserves was due to the writ down of £15,000 of Russian Bonds.

It would be recollected that in 1920 the attendant on the Treasury holding of t American securities had been so far redu by sales and returns, as to admit of the tr fer of £28,682 from war suspense account allocation account. The process of sales returns had now been completed, and the tire set of transactions closed. There be now no further necessity for holding up war increases, out of which the war susp account was built up, the account had b closed, and the ultimate resultant balance £16,235 had been transferred to credit of all tion account. The two transfers referred amounted in the aggregate to £44,917, ad to revenue, apart entirely from the nor balance of revenue available for distribu by the Synod.

RUSSIAN BONDS.

It was right that that figure should be k in view in connection with the recommenda of their auditors and of the Representa Body, to replace out of the present availa balance at foot of allocation account £15,000 applied towards the loss on Rus Bonds. The former was largely made up war profit, the latter was war loss, and a d sion to "take the cash and let the credit could not be advocated without doing viol to the elementary principles of financial dence.

The revenue accounts disclosed a pre available balance of £40,770, of which the presentative Body recommended that £40 should be dealt with in a manner indic by resolutions which would be brought be them. It would be observed that the Synod 1921 spent £17,803 more than the then a able balance, relying on the war susp account and on anticipation of increasing come. That debit balance had been wiped and it was now possible for the Synod to ceed to the distribution of nearly £41, actual balance in hand.

Last year was introduced a summary of t income accounts for the purpose of show what was the true surplus on the year's w ing. For 1920 that figure was £24,700 15s.
The similar summary for 1921 showed a g revenue of £414,358 4s. 2d. available for t payments for which the Representative B was liable. The total of those payments £375,348 10s. 9d., and the resulting differe of £39,009 13s. 5d. was the true surplus for year 1921. The first charges on this sur were the standing allocations ordered by Synod, amounting this year to £7,778 5s.
after payment of which the balance avail for distribution by the Synod would have b £31,231 7s. 11d., but for the assistance affor from the war suspence account, by which sum available for distribution was raised

TOTAL INVESTMENTS.

On the assets side of the balance sheet th was no striking change, beyond the reductio mortgage investments and the increase British Funds. The total of the investment the balance sheet was £9,483,747, an increas £253,605 during the year. During the past years it had been possible so to invest in h class securities as to secure a yield of over per cent., and the Representative Body lately allowed on new money the high cu rate of five per cent. They did not propos vary this at present, but in view of the tacular rise in the value of the principal vestment stocks during the current year, the corresponding fall in the yield from investments, it was probable that the am of the current rate must perforce be red before very long.

The value to the Church of the system of current rate had been proved to be very g even if only measured by the results of mobility of investments, as shown in the l

"QUEEN ANNE'S BOUNTY.

Proceeding, Mr. Maconchy referred to management of "Queen Anne's Boun which in many respects corresponded n with the Representative Body. In their published account be found the income £363,487, derived mainly from dividends, and mortgages, and the payments to the c amounted to £260,531. Payments to of and clerks amounted to £28,639, out of costs of management, £33,305. The rec trusts, both variable supplies; but the bone of the parochial system—the contribu showed great strength.

The total for the year was £123,456.
£7,292 over the total for 1920, and £25,000
the total for 1918. Those figures indicat

LAITY'S OFFERINGS.

The session of the General Synod of the Church of Ireland was resumed yesterday in the Synod Hall, Dublin. The Primate presided, and nominated Mr. Gerald FitzGibbon, K.C., his assessor.

Mr. J. A. Maconchy, in moving that the report of the Representative Body be taken into consideration, said that the balance sheet of the 31st December, 1921, showed that the total of the funds administered by the Representative Body amounted on that date to £9,887,276 4s. 3d., of which total the interest-bearing funds represented £9,457,110 7s. 1d., an increase of £94,380 3s. 11d. as compared with last year's figure. The number of glebes sold during the year constituted a record, and was due to the policy of amalgamation of the smaller parishes, rendered necessary by the changed conditions, social as well as financial, which called for concentration of their forces of men and money. The decrease of £18,799 13s. 9d. in reserves was due to the writing down of £15,000 of Russian Bonds.

It would be recollected that in 1920 the risk attendant on the Treasury holding of their American securities had been so far reduced, by sales and returns, as to admit of the transfer of £28,682 from war suspense account to allocation account. The two transfers referred to amounted in the aggregate to £44,917, added to revenue, apart entirely from the normal balance of revenue available for distribution by the Synod.

RUSSIAN BONDS.

It was right that that figure should be kept in view in connection with the recommendation of their auditors and of the Representative Body, to replace out of the present available balance at foot of allocation account the £15,000 applied towards the loss on Russian Bonds. The former was largely made up of war profit, the latter was war loss, and a decision to "take the cash and let the credit go" could not be advocated without doing violence to the elementary principles of financial prudence.

The revenue accounts disclosed a present available balance of £40,770, of which the Representative Body recommended that £40,500 should be dealt with in a manner indicated by resolutions which would be brought before them. It would be observed that the Synod of 1921 spent £17,803 more than the then available balance, relying on the war suspense account and on anticipation of increasing income. That debit balance had been wiped out, and it was now possible for the Synod to proceed to the distribution of nearly £41,000, actual balance in hand.

Last year was introduced a summary of those income accounts for the purpose of showing what was the true surplus on the year's working. For 1920 that figure was £24,700 15s. 2d. The similar summary for 1921 showed a gross revenue of £414,358 4s. 2d. available for those payments for which the Representative Body was liable. The total of those payments was £375,348 10s. 9d., and the resulting difference of £39,009 13s. 5d. was the true surplus for the year 1921. The first charges on this surplus were the standing allocations ordered by the Synod, amounting this year to £7,778 5s. 6d, after payment of which the balance available for distribution by the Synod would have been £31,231 7s. 11d., but for the assistance afforded from the war suspence account, by which the sum available for distribution was raised to £40,770 7s. 11d.

TOTAL INVESTMENTS.

On the assets side of the balance sheet there was no striking change, beyond the reduction of mortgage investments and the increase in British Funds. The total of the investments in the balance sheet was £9,483,747, an increase of £253,605 during the year. During the past few years it had been possible so to invest in high-class securities as to secure a yield of over five per cent., and the Representative Body had lately allowed on new money the high current rate of five per cent. They did not propose to vary this at present, but in view of the spectacular rise in the value of the principal investment stocks during the current year, and the corresponding fall in the yield from new investments, it was probable that the amount of the current rate must perforce be reduced before very long.

The value to the Church of the system of the current rate had been proved to be very great, even if only measured by the results of the mobility of investments, as shown in the large increase in the net income of the Church. The herculean task of classifying the separate trusts, which hitherto had only been grouped, was being conducted diocese by diocese. About 10,000 separate trusts were involved, and the tale was increased by over 100 every year. Considerable progress had been made with this work, and between 4,000 and 5,000 had been dealt with.

"QUEEN ANNE'S BOUNTY."

Proceeding, Mr. Maconchy referred to the management of "Queen Anne's Bounty," which in many respects corresponded nearly with the Representative Body. In their last published account he found the income was £363,487, derived mainly from dividends, rents, and mortgages, and the payments to the clergy amounted to £260,531. Payments to officers and clerks amounted to £28,639, out of net costs of management, £33,305. The receipts from voluntary sources were less than last year, the diminution being in legacies and new trusts, both variable supplies; but the backbone of the parochial system—the contributions by the laity to the assessment for stipends—showed great strength.

The total for the year was £123,456, being £7,292 over the total for 1920, and £25,000 over the total for 1918. Those figures indicated a very considerable increase in the stipends paid under the diocesan schemes, the actual figures passing through the accounts of the Representative Body under this heading being £337,468, as compared with £304,114 in 1918. But it did not represent the total increase in the stipends. Since the inception of the campaign against insufficient stipends voluntary augmentations of stipend had been made in innumerable parishes, and payments made by Select Vestries direct to the incumbents. These payments did not pass through the Representative Body, and the only manner in which could be ascertained the full response by the laity was from information supplied by the diocesan authorities. This they had endeavoured to get, and although the figures were not absolutely accurate or complete, it was but right that the Synod should know what had been done, and was being done, by the laity towards putting their clergy into a better financial position.

SUMMARY.

From the summary they would see that there reached the Representative Body for capital and income from dividends and contributions, assessments, and subscriptions, an aggregate of £708,717, exceeding by £35,307 the corresponding figure for 1920. The clergy received for stipends and superannuation through the Representative Body £458,045. Administration expenses were £16,588, there was placed to capital a sum of £76,347, and there remained to credit of chiefly diocesan and parochial income accounts £45,010. The resultant balance in hands of £40,770 was available for distribution.

The Central Church Fund, one result of the special legislation of November, 1920, had now a capital of £4,423, and an income during 1921 of £1,282. It was too soon to expect any great result from this young, but growing, fund, and at the present early stage it would be disastrous to fritter away in infinitesimal doles the small beginnings of what would eventually be a powerful financial factor in relief of parishes and clergy in need.

Of the 2,043 annuitants originally chargeable on the Commutation Fund but 28 now remained, of whom some were still doing active duty after 52 years of faithful service.

The management of the Glebe Section passed each year more effectively into the competent local committees, and the experiment of entrusting to them the distribution of the glebe grants had had the effect of relieving both the Representative Body and the Synod of a heavy annual burden of criticism and complaint. Including the grant of £4,500, the total payments for the year in respect of glebes, as charged against the general income of the Church, was £11,276 10s. 5d., a decrease of £1,060.

VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTIONS.

General Ricardo, in seconding the motion, referred to the magnificent efforts that had been made by the parishes to improve the incomes of their clergy. The system of voluntary offerings by parishes was the very backbone of their Church finance, and he held that it was by appealing to parishes that relief from financial difficulties should be sought, rather than by raising centralised funds. Between 1914 and 1921 the parishes had contributed about £55,000 of new money, and that was quite apart from the increased stipends through the central Church funds.

A series of resolutions was passed authorising

GRANT RENEWED

WORK AT THE NORTH WALL.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE UNEMPLOYED.

A deputation from the 500 men who were paid off last Saturday, when work at the North Wall extension works was suspended, waited on the Dublin Port and Docks Board yesterday and heard good news.

Mr. James Moran said that he did not think that the action of some of the men—probably half a dozen of them—who had marched through the streets, saying that they had been victimised by the Board, was justified.

Mr. Ralph, who acted as spokesman of the deputation, asserted that they had been "victimised." They demanded re-instatement, with full pay as from last Saturday, and payment for the enforced "holiday" on April 24. Mr. Ralph also asserted that the men were used for a demonstration against the occupation of the Board's offices, and that they had been promised that a grant would be made to continue the work.

The Chairman (Mr. David Barry) said that by organising the procession which had marched through the streets that morning the men had injured their own case. He denied that there had been victimisation. The men had been engaged—on a temporary basis—in development work which had been undertaken under two grants. Those grants had expired, and there would be no sense in continuing the work when there was no money with which to pay wages. He had good news for the deputation, however. The Irish Government had agreed to a grant, so as to continue the work at the extension. As regards the enforced "holiday," that had been arranged by the trade union leaders and the Board could take no responsibility for it.

DAIL EIREANN FUNDS.

MR. BRUGHA'S QUERIES.

At the session of Dail Eireann yesterday, Mr. Cathal Brugha asked to whom did the Minister for Finance expect to refund the £3,050 mentioned in his note of the 28th ult.; by whose authority was this money paid; had the official auditor visted London yet; if so, had he examined into the £1,000, as the Minister had said that he would; and with what result; and by whose authority was that £1,000 paid.

Mr. Collins replied that with regard to the first portion of the question the money referred to had been refunded to the Dail general funds. It had been paid on the authority of President Griffith and himself. In reply to the latter part of the question Mr. Collins said that the auditor had visited London, and they now had his report under consideration.

the Representative Church Body to distribute certain sums, and the report was adopted.

The President announced that a special Service of Intercession for Ireland and the Church would be held in Christ Church Cathedral this morning.

The report of the Widows' and Orphans' Fund, which was moved by Mr. Maconchy, said that the general fund amounted on December 31 last to £254,314 13s. 7d. The sum of £10,172 0s. 9d. had been added to capital, a reduction of £519 12s. 1d., as compared with the previous year. The expenses showed an increase of £50 15s. 6d. Subject to the approval of the General Synod, the Board accepted the recommendation of the actuary, that, as from October 1, 1921, the widow's annuity should be increased to £48, and the orphan's annuity to £6. A sum of £108 4s. 11d. had been held in suspense to meet the increase of annuities.

Rev. C. K. Irwin seconded, and the report was adopted, several members of the Synod expressing their approval of the increased annuities.

Rev. M. B. Hogg, in proposing the reception of the report, said that they were disappointed at the response made by Churchmen to the request for the small sum necessary to maintain the work of the Society efficiently. There was one bright sport in the temperance work to-day, and that was the success of the work that had been carried on under the auspices of the Temperance Education Board for Ireland among the young. The lecturers of that Board had reached 88,000 children during the year, and 97 schools of the Church of Ireland had entered for the last examination in connection with the Board. The aims of the Society included Sunday closing, and in that connection he did not think he would be disclosing any secret when he said that at the present time a bill was being prepared for presentation to the Northern Parliament to deal with this matter. They wanted earlier closing on week days, and also that it should be made a criminal offence to supply drink to children of tender years. Another necessary thing was the State control of clubs, which were sometimes only another name for publichouses.

Mr. C. P. Coghill, in seconding, urged the clergy to put before their people the necessity of supporting the Society

Canon Gibson (New Ross) strongly criticised the administration of the Society, and said that the expenses of administration alone were 88 per cent. of the total income.

Mr. Neal (Queen's County) said that the Society was practically dead in the part of the country that he came from.

Mr. T. E. Wolffe said that he thought that the criticism levelled against the Committee was most unfair.

The Dean of Christ Church said that the Committee did everything in its power to make progress, but he was afraid the local secretaries and parochial branches did not show sufficient interest in the Society.

The report was accepted.

The Bishop of Limerick moved the adoption of the report of the Board of Missions, which stated that the total amount contributed by the Church of Ireland, in the year ended March 31, 1921, for foreign missions was £72,365, being £5,087 less than the previous year, and £13,277 more than in 1918-19. While the total contribution had been fairly maintained, the returns from the dioceses showed a considerable falling off in the country districts, amounting to £10,491. The following figures were quoted in order to show the advance made since Disestablishment, 50 years ago: — Missionary contributions in 1871, £12,837; in 1921, £72,365; Church population of Ireland in 1871, 683,295; in 1921, 568,808. Thus in fifty years, with a falling population, the Church had increased her contributions by nearly 600 per cent.

Professor Carpenter seconded, and the report was adopted.

The Synod then went into secret session. No statement was made subsequently, and, having discussed a number of recommendations in the report of the Prayer Book Committee, the Synod adjourned until 11 o'clock this morning.

SYNOD NOTES.

CHURCH'S FINANCIAL POSITION.

Considerable improvements have in recent years been effected in the form of the annual reports of the Church Representative Body. The various accounts are presented as clearly and simply as is possible. Nevertheless, it is not likely that the report of a body dealing with nine millions of capital, obliged to keep ten thousand separate accounts, and having many different trusts and obligations to look after, can be made so absolutely simple as to be fully grasped by an audience of whom the great majority are not expert financiers. Mr. Maconchy, however, enabled the average Synodsman to understand the main points of the report. He was particularly lucid in his comparison of war profits and war losses, the profits—over £40,000—being set against a loss of £99,000 in Russian 4½ per cent. Bonds. The net balance to credit of the Allocation Account, of something over £39,000, enables the Synod to make all the usual grants in aid, and even to make them somewhat larger than in recent years.

General Ricardo, when seconding the adoption of the report, took occasion to give some account of the amounts raised for augmentation of clerical stipend through parochial or diocesan sources, which are not included in the R.B. report. It appears that in this way over £65,000 has been contributed during the year 1921—a truly remarkable figure.

The financial experts and critics, who usually prolong the debate on the report, were not much in evidence to-day. Possibly the report was found so satisfactory on the whole that no desire was felt to criticise. A few questions were asked, and a few brief explanations given. The resolutions were passed without question or dissent, and the discussion and adoption of the report were completed in record time.

In the opinion of many members, the Church of Ireland Temperance Society is dead, or, at least, moribund. At all events, the discussion on its report was very lively, indeed, and an opportunity was afforded to jokers to renew the very ancient witticism about the intemperance of temperance advocates. The discussion made it plain that there were faults on both sides—the Central Society and the various parochial organisations—and the report was adopted.

Judge Wakely pointed out that Mr. Williams's bill to amend the Commission for Union of Parishes would virtually abolish the Commission before half its work was done. The bill was unanimously thrown out on the second reading. The question of Prayer Book Revision was then resumed, and led to a lively discussion, followed by a very close division.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE DAIL AND PEACE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The Dail delegated powers to a committee of equal numbers, pro-Treaty and anti-Treaty, in order that a settlement might be arrived at. The committee has failed in its task, and the powers delegated to it have reverted to the Dail.

Why should it not now ordain terms of settlement by virtue of its sovereign power and enforce those terms on all parties? Both the parties say that they are loyal to the Dail. If they are, let them prove it."—Yours, etc.,

"IRISHMAN."

Dublin, May 12th, 1922.

THE FITZMAURICES' COUNTRY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It is curious to note the nationality of those who have affected Ireland's fate. John Mitchel's mother was Scottish, and, perhaps, his father. Parnell's mother was an American. Patrick Pearse's father was an English Nonconformist. Thomas MacDonagh's maternal grandfather was English. Mme. de Markievicz's mother is English. Mr. de Valera is a Spaniard, and Mr Griffith a Welshman. There is nothing Irish about the names Collins, Burgess, Barton, Hales, etc. If you turn to the landlords, you find the old titles, such as the O'Conor Don, the O'Gorman Mahon, the O'Donovan, the MacGillycuddy; and the descendants of the MacGillapatricks, the MacMurrough Kavanaghs, the O'Moores, etc.

Lord Lansdowne is always spoken of as Englishman; but the late Miss Hickson (the antiquary and genealogist, whose researches a quarter of a century ago proved that Raymond le Gros, who married Basilia, Strongbow's sister, died without issue—whereupon many great Irish and English families had to adjust their minds to a new set of ancestors) says about the FitzMaurices, Lords of Kerry:—" Twelve out of the nineteen FitzMaurice Barons of Kerry, living between 1250 and 1660, married wives of the old Irish blood," while for several generations no Desmond Earl ever married for a first wife a lady of the old Irish blood, nor did the son of an Irish wife succeed to the Earldom.

Nobody reads Macaulay's "History" nowadays; but who would not like to read this bit about the country held by the FitzMaurices, sprung from "the Geraldines" of Davis's poem?—" The south-western part of Kerry is now well known as the most beautiful tract in the British Isles. The mountains, the glens, the capes stretching far into the Atlantic, the crags on which the eagles build, the rivulets, brawling down rocky passes, the lakes overhung by groves in which the wild deer find covert, attract every summer crowds of wanderers sated with the business and the pleasures of great cities. The beauties of that country are, indeed, too often hidden in the mist and rain which the west wind brings up from a boundless ocean. But, on the rare days when the sun shines out in all his glory, the landscape has a freshness and a warmth of colouring seldom found in our latitude. The myrtle loves the soil. The arbutus thrives better than even on the sunny shore of Calabria. There have been in the neighbourhood of Killarney specimens of the arbutus thirty feet high and four feet and a half round. The turf is of livelier hue than elsewhere: the hills glow with a richer purple; the varnish of the holly and ivy is more glossy; and berries of a brighter and peep through foliage of a brighter green."

Of Smith's "Ancient and Modern State of the County of Kerry" (1756) Macaulay says:—"I do not know that I have ever met with a better book of the kind and of the size."—Yours, etc.,

"K."

A CENTRAL RAILWAY STATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The question of a central railway station in Dublin is no new one; it was gone into fully over fifty years ago, and plans and estimates were sent in. It would be interesting to look these up again, and put them before the Commission now sitting. One proposal, I remember, was by the late James Price, C.E. It was to bridge over the Liffey from O'Connell to Grattan Bridges (then Carlisle to Essex Bridges), and place the station there, thus obtaining a central site, without having to purchase very valuable lands and houses.

The late Mr. James Barton, famous engineer, proposed a site between Dame street and the river, about Essex street; and there were others.—Yours, etc.,

MISSION FIELD.

WORK OF SOUTH AMERICAN SOCIETY.

Under the presidency of Sir Robert Kennedy, K.C.M.G., at the Gregg Memorial Hall, the annual meeting of the South American Missionary Society (Irish Auxiliary) was held.

In their report the Committee expressed satisfaction with the progress which had been made during the year, and thanks were conveyed to all those who had supported the Society in many ways. With regard to finance, last year had proved the best in their history. This was largely due to legacies, although their normal contributions were not down. At least one Irish recruit—Mr. Grubb, of Tipperary, and a graduate of Cambridge—had been made for the mission field. A special tribute was paid to the Diocese of Down and Connor and Dromore and to the Ladies' Association for contributions. A new mission had been started in Bolivia.

The Chairman described the report as, on the whole, very satisfactory. He was glad that the aborigines of South America did not read our newspapers. If they did, they would ask why did they go there to preach those qualities so conspicuously absent in their own country. They were treating the American Republics as so many markets without any soul. Many of their young men were going out there in various positions, and unless they were looked after by such a Society as that they would drift into materialism.

The Rev. G. T. Mellifont proposed the adoption of the report and that the Committee be re-elected.

Miss George (of Chile) seconded the motion, and said that she felt grateful because Ireland had given her a training for missionary work which had been of the greatest help to her.

A resolution was also adopted pledging support to the Society.

In the evening the Dean of St. Patrick's presided, and Miss George delivered a costume lecture.

LORD KILMAINE AND IRELAND

Lord Kilmaine, who presided at the annual meeting of the Hibernian Bible Society at 10 Upper Sackville street, Dublin, said that the outlook was rather more hopeful than last year. In spite of the trouble in the country their work was not hampered. It was a very encouraging sign that a minister of the Gospel could go about and be received with civility. He found in the course of conversation that many young men in the country were anxious to get out of the I.R.A. and back to their work. Leaders of the Church of the majority were now using their authority to check the spirit of revolution, to restore law and order, and to prevent sectarian trouble developing.

The Rev. M. Hall then took the chair, and the Rev. E. T. Pakenham proposed the adoption of the report and election of officers. The Rev. W. R. Budd seconded the motion, which was adopted.

The report, which was presented by the Rev. Mr. Long, stated that if the people of this land are to see the morning of a new and better day it will be by drawing light and guidance from the ever-living record of God's law and plan for mankind. What could heal discords and bring back again the general features of peace but the Gospel of Christ? To supply the Book by means of which this might be brought about was the task of that Society, and the Committee had been able to continue its circulation in Ireland, and to send an increased contribution to the foreign work of the British and Foreign Bible Society in response to an urgent appeal for help. The income for 1922 was £4,111, contrasted with £3,785 the previous year, while the increase to the head office of the B.F.B.S. was £572, as against £455 in 1921. The most remarkable increases were from the Belfast Auxiliary and the Cork Auxiliary.

Sidney Barron, G. P. Beater, R. W. Booth, Rev. W. J. Clarke, F. C. R. Creed, Charles Enson, Rev. David H. Hall, Rev. R. K. Hanna, Rev. L. Parkinson Hill, Richard Hinde, John Leech, Robert Nicol, Rev. John Oliver, George W. Place, H. A. Sterne, Thomas Talbot, H. D. Vaughan, Octavius Wallace. To represent the Belfast Committee:—Rev. G. A. Stephenson. To represent the Cork Committee:—T. Farrington, Rev. R. J. Hodges. Hon. Treasurer—W. Houghton Fry. Hon. Secretaries—Rev. T. M. Griffin, Rev. W. R. Budd, Rev. J. C. Irwin, Rev. J. J. Macaulay.

U.S. SUPPORT FOR FREE STATE.

The New York Herald of April 16 devotes three columns to the responses to an appeal by Mr. Joseph J. C. Clarke, 37 West Thirty-ninth street, New York, an Irish-American, to a large number of prominent Irish-born and Irish-descended citizens of New York and New Jersey, to declare themselves in favour of the Irish Free State, and states that the replies will outweigh in Ireland the mere noise of the American foes of the Irish Free State.

Replies quoted from justices, judges, lawyers, physicians, bankers, and business men in great number, all support the acceptance of the Free State as an instrument which will be for the benefit and prosperity of Ireland.

U.S. MARKETS.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

NEW YORK, Thursday.

Stocks opened heavy. The failure of the market to respond to constructive influences, such as the excellent grain crop report, better foreign political news, and lower money rates, induced liquidation by speculative syndicates. There was also active bear selling, based upon the growing belief that a prolonged advance has been definitely checked, losses of 1 to 4 points resulting. Then a rise of 1 to 5 points in Independent Steels, under further merger reports, caused general covering elsewhere, and the closing was steady.

COTTON opened barely steady, 16 to 10 points lower, and kept down for a while, owing to curtailment by New England mills, favourable official weather reports, selling by spot and foreign interests, and liquidation by longs. The market recovered, and advanced later, under better Manchester advices, favourable Genoa accounts, an improvement in the spot situation, and buying for New Orleans account. The close was steady at 27 to 11 points gain. Spot steady at 25 points rise. New Orleans spot unchanged. Receipts—Atlantic 11,000, Gulf 8,000. Exports—Britain 7,000, Continent nil. CHICAGO, Thursday.

WHEAT opened steady, ½c. up to unaltered, and further strengthened on unfavourable weather, bullish Liverpool cables, the ready absorption of deliveries, export business, decreasing stocks, and a better cash demand. There was a demand from milling, Armour, and commission interests, and, with active covering of May shorts in progress, the market closed strong at gains ranging from ½c. to 2c. Spot strong. No. 2 hard winter, spot, 140½; No. 3 hard winter, nominal. May, 145½; July, 127; September, 119½.

CORN opened barely steady and unchanged, and declined during initial dealings on large stocks, small seaboard clearances, and a bearish estimate of Argentine shipments; but later rallied with wheat and on rumours of export business, adverse Argentine reports, shorts covering, and purchases by commission houses. The market closed firm, ½c. up. No. 2 mixed, spot, 62½. May, 61½; July, 65½; September, 67½.

OATS firm at ½c. to ¾c. advance. May, 37½; July, 40½; September, 41½.

PROVISIONS opened easy, and weakened early on lower hog prices and selling by packers; then advanced in sympathy with grain and favourable European advices. After a partial reaction, due to realising, and a disappointing outside demand, the market closed irregular, with lard and ribs unchanged to 2½ down and pork 70 points higher. Lard—May, 11.22½; July, 11.42½; September, 11.65. Pork—May, 22.20. Ribs—May, 12.52½; July, 11.95; September, 11.85.

NEXT WEEK'S DUBLIN SHOW.

For each of the three days on which the Royal Dublin Society's Agricultural Show will be held at Ballsbridge next week a most attractive programme has been arranged. On Tuesday the Show will open, and the whole day will be given up to the work of adjudication in the animal classes, and in those for dairy produce, butter-making, and horse-shoeing. There will be a couple of jumping competitions in the afternoon.

Horse jumping and shoeing competitions, as well as butter-making competitions, will also be held on Wednesday and Thursday, when there will be sales of pedigree cattle, pigs, and poultry.

Other attractions will include a general exhibition of machinery in motion and implements.

HOCKEY.

LEINSTER v. ULSTER (MIXED).

What promises to be an interesting match will be played on Kingstown Grammar School ground, Tivoli terrace, next Saturday at 3 p.m. The teams will comprise Ulster (six gentlemen and five ladies) v. Leinster (six gentlemen and five ladies). Most of the players are Irish internationals.

LIMERICK P.Y.M.A. v. LIMERICK CATHOLIC INSTITUTE.

The final of this competition (Flynn Cup) was played off in Limerick, and, after a fast, exciting game, resulted as follows:—

Limerick P.Y.M.A. .... 2 goals.
Limerick Catholic Inst.......... Nil.

Limerick P.Y.M.A. have thus concluded a most successful season, the result of which is that they are now the holders of the Irish Senior Cup, the Munster Cup, the Flynn Cup, winners of the North Munster Senior League, and have gone through the season without a single defeat.

WHERE FAILURE LIES.

is unity of the forces that have worked together for the past six years. We realise further that practically the whole country has the strong feeling that peace and order must be restored and preserved, and that means must be found for looking after the urgent social and economic needs of the nation.

"Recognising also that it is a fundamental duty of Government to make available for the people the advantages gained by the war for independence, and that the people so desire it, and accepting the fact that Dail Eireann has by a majority approved of the Treaty which is the vehicle of these advantages, and accepting also the position created in the country by this approval, we are of opinion that a contested election might be attended by civil strife, which might result in a dissipation of these advantages and a worsening of our national position.

"Accepting this, and desirous of avoiding such a conflict, in the best interests of the nation, we recommend—

"(a) An agreed election.

In presenting these proposals, Commandant McKeon stated that in his opinion there would be little difficulty in matters of detail for a settlement if a unanimous consent were given to the preamble as a basis. We again objected to the portion of this preamble which was inconsistent with our position, and suggested that we leave for the moment the preamble without prejudice and get down to the details of the settlement, which were, after all, the essential and vital concern of the Committee.

This the other side would not agree to, and insisted that the preamble should be accepted by us without alteration as a preliminary to any further discussion. At this point, regretfully, we came to the conclusion that it was useless for the Committee to continue its labours, our opinion being that the other side were more concerned with committing us to an acceptance of the Treaty than with working out a detailed scheme of settlement.

OFFICERS' REPORT.

TRYING TO RECONCILE DIFFERENCES.

The Speaker asked if there was any official report on behalf of the delegation of officers.

Commandant O'Hegarty, who had been accommodated with a seat in the House near the Speaker, then rose and read the following report:—

"We, the undersigned five officers, who had signed the statement appearing in the Press on May 2nd, were summoned to a meeting of the Dail Committee of ten at the Mansion House about 5 p.m. May 9th.

"The situation, we were then informed, was:

"Both the groups had submitted proposals, and of these the following points submitted by the Anti-Treaty side had been accepted by the other, viz.:—

"(a) That the Legislative Executive and judicial authority in Ireland is, and was to be, derived solely from the Irish people.

"(b) That Dail Eireann is the supreme governing authority in Ireland."

On the other hand, the Pro-Treaty group submitted the following:—

"Recognising the fact that the Treaty, having been approved by a majority of Dail Eireann, would in the circumstances be accepted by the majority of the people if put as an issue at a contested election, and desiring to avoid such a contest and its attendant conflicts, we recommend that an agreed election without contests be held, and a Coalition Government be formed."

But the anti-Treaty group would not accept this proposal as it stood, and demanded the omission of the words:—

"The Treaty .... would, in the circumstances, be accepted by a majority of the people if put as an issue at a contested election."

The anti-Treaty point of view, as expressed by Mr. Boland, was that, desirous of availing themselves to the full of the advantages of the Treaty, they were not prepared to agree to a settlement which, in their opinion, committed the people to acceptance of the Treaty as a settlement.

The pro-Treaty point of view (put by Mr. O'Dwyer) was that they were not justified in taking any risk which might jeopardise the Treaty and lose its advantages, which the omission of the words objected to might do, and that the people should get some reason for the disfranchisement which an agreed election would entail.

SEEKING A FORMULA.

We were asked to find a formula of words which would reconcile both views. We realised, and we so stated, that what was wanted was five lawyers, but that we would do our best. We remained at the Mansion House until 8 p.m., when we submitted the following:—

"Recognising that it is the fundamental duty of Government to make available for the people the advantages gained by the war for independence, and that the people so desire it; and accepting the fact that Dail Eireann has, by a majority, approved of the Treaty, which is the vehicle of these advantages, and accepting, also, the position created in the country by this approval, we are of opinion that a contested election now would be attended by civil strife, which would result in the dissipation of these advantages and the worsening of our national position—accepting this and desirous of avoiding such a conflict, in the interests of the nation, we recommend as above."

This was submitted as an honest attempt to reconcile the two points of view and make a basis for agreement. In this formula of words we believe that all fair-minded people will realise we have adjusted, as far as can be done, the two positions.

QUESTION OF STATUS.

MEMBERS AND THE OFFICERS.

Mr. H. Boland said that he would like to ask the Speaker whether it was agreed that a separate report should be handed in by the group of officers. They on that side (the Opposition) of the House had no idea that the officers were going to submit a report. In fact, at the second meeting of the Committee they had found it necessary to issue a statement clearly defining their (the members') position, it having been understood that, if the document originally submitted by the officers had been included in the terms of reference, the Conference would never have met. They found that they could not entertain these proposals (of the Army officers) until they came from the Dail, or until they had official representation from the Dail.

Mr. Cathal Brugha asked if it was the intention of the House to allow the deputation of officers to vote.

The Speaker replied that it was not

Mr. Brugha—I just want to make sure, because so many surprising things are allowed.

Mr. Dwyer said that he wished to state that neither he nor any member of the Committee had any idea that there was a third report to be submitted; but he wanted to say definitely that to state anything that would reflect on these officers in the slightest way was, in the present national crisis, absolutely unwise. No one could deny the honesty of their purpose in everything they had done.

ADJOURNMENT MOVED.

HOPES OF SOLUTION.

Mr. Dwyer moved that the Dail adjourn, without discussing the reports, until Wednesday. He desired to say that the Committee had agreed to meet in the meantime in the hope of finding a solution, and he asked the Speaker to see that both reports were handed to the Press as coming from the Dail, and to secure in that way equal publicity.

Mr. Boland seconded the motion.

Mr. Seumas Robinson protested against this constant delay. He said that the Republican Party knew how far they could go without sacrificing their ideals, and the other party either could or could not go to meet them. Were they going to wait until 5,000 men were killed?

Mr. Kent declared that the sooner they faced the issue the better, but he did not object to continuing the efforts to secure peace if there was any chance of success.

Mr. Boland said that they had been asked to take every opportunity to find a basis of agreement. They had had thirteen sessions, and they were satisfied that they had reached a point where a definite answer must be given. It would be criminal, if there was an opportunity of composing their differences, not to be prepared to wait. He did not see why they could not find a basis. If there was any possibility of restoring harmony and unity in the country, it was their duty to seize it.

Mr. Cathal Brugha said that if peace could at all be achieved he was in favour of the motion. He would like to know if, during the truce, recruiting had been going on on the other side, and was it intended to continue it. As apparently there was some reluctance to answer that question, he would propose, as an addendum, that all recruiting on both sides be stopped during the truce.

Commandant-General O'Duffy replied that he could answer that by quoting 60 breaches of the truce on one side, but he did not intend to do so. So far as their side was concerned, there had been no recruiting during the truce.

The motion for the adjournment was then adopted unanimously.

The Speaker intimated that he would do his best to secure that there should be proper and equal publication of the respective reports. So far as they could influence the course of public comment and public criticism, it was the desire of the Dail that it should be helpful.

Mr. Cosgrave asked whether there was an objection to the publication of the three documents.

The Speaker said that there was no objection. The House then adjourned until Wednesday.

ROBBERS SENTENCED.

DRUMCONDRA INCIDENTS RECALLED.

Sentences of five months', four months', and one month's imprisonment, respectively, were passed by a Dublin Republican Circuit Court on John O'Grady, Patrick Delaney, and William Lalor, who were charged as follows:—

O'Grady and Lalor with entering, while armed, Drumcondra Post Office, Drumcondra road, and robbing the postmistress, Alice Brennan, and other persons of £4 0s. 8d. by menaces; Lalor and Delaney with receiving, on the same date, sums of £1 2s. 6d. and £1 3s. 0d., knowing them to have been stolen.

Delaney was further charged with having threatened to murder the postmistress, one George McSweeney, and other persons, and he was also charged with having, with O'Grady, stolen two bicycles, value £14 and £8.

Accused all pleaded guilty to the charges.

Police Officer McCabe, I.R.P., said that there was a previous conviction against O'Grady of stealing.

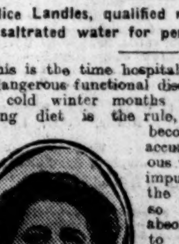
HOW HOSPITALS CURE SERIOUS LIVER, KIDNEY, & BLADDER DISORDERS.

Alice Landles, qualified nurse, says, Drink saltrated water for permanent results.



This is the time hospitals experience a rush of dangerous functional disorder cases. During the cold winter months a heavy, heat-producing diet is the rule, and the system becomes loaded with accumulated carbonaceous waste and poisonous impurities, which clog the eliminative organs, so there is constant absorption of toxins into the blood. Then follow stomach, kidney, bladder, and skin troubles, rheumatism, neuralgic headache, backache, catarrh, influenza, biliousness, jaundiced liver, or even appendicitis, dropsy, and Bright's disease. Toxins and bacteria excite the heart, poison the nerves, deprive the body of disease-resisting vitality, and you have no energy to do anything, or say you are irritable, sleep badly, and have weak nerves from over-work, worry, etc. The real trouble is auto-intoxication, or self-poisoning. Otherwise you could not have such symptoms. Try drinking occasionally a level teaspoonful of refined Alkia Saltrates in a half tumbler of water, and notice how quickly your mind clears, your eyes brighten, and your whole body becomes absolutely fit, as the system's great filters and blood cleaners (the liver and kidneys) begin to work properly again. This pleasant-tasting and remarkably curative substance can be supplied at slight cost by any good chemist.—A. L.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHT.

LEWIS KNOCKED OUT.

FRENCHMAN'S GREAT SPEED.

The twenty rounds match for the world's light heavy-weight championship decided at Olympia last evening between Georges Carpentier, heavy-weight champion of Europe and light heavy-weight champion of the world, and Ted Lewis, ex-world's welter weight champion and holder of the Lonsdale middle weight belt, was looked at askance by many critics when first mooted, chiefly because of the disparity in the matter of weight; while the substantial height and reach advantages also held by the Frenchman, together with his devastating right hand punch, were quoted in justification of opinions that the match was a bad one for the Aldgate welterweight. But though the French crack's manager, Descamps, affected to ridicule the proposition when first made, and was rather more voluble than usual in expressions of confidence when the articles for the match were signed, he took particular care that his charge left nothing to chance in the matter of training.

Impressed possibly by a belief, which grew stronger in England as the date of the contest approached, that the Aldgate boxer's chance of success was by no means a hopeless one, many veered to that opinion, and the tremendous interest taken in the meeting was proved by the advanced booking, which necessitated the introduction of a couple of thousand extra seats into the huge building at West Kensington. Allowing for the hope being father to the thought that in Lewis England had at last a man capable of lowering the Frenchman's colours, the rush to secure seats went to show that the Aldgate man was at least considered good enough to give the world's cruiser-weight champion a good fight and one worth paying for substantially to witness.

Thus, last evening, the men faced one another before a crowd of 16,000, including the Duke of York, Prince George, and the French Ambassador. The fight, however, was of short duration. That devastating right of Carpentier's won it for him in two minutes and thirty seconds. Lewis rushed at his opponent at the gong, and flattered his followers by scoring on the body; but against the welter weight's aggression and forceful hitting the Frenchman's wonderful coolness, craft, and resource were conspicuous. Frustrating many attempts with elbows and forearms, Carpentier clinched, and with barely a minute gone the referee had occasion to call a halt and warn the pair against undue holding. Still carrying the fight to his cool, unruffled opponent, Lewis placed a left to the head, following with a right to the mouth, which drew a smudge of colour from the Frenchman's lips; but they were repeatedly falling to holds. The end came as the result of a lightning right hook, delivered by the Frenchman after a break. Lewis, though clear and with both hands free, appeared to be about to take another step backward, but the Frenchman jumped in, and, hooking the right with wonderful speed and accuracy to the point, dropped Lewis, who was counted out.

ASSOCIATION.

BOHEMIANS UNSUCCESSFUL.

Bohemians and Shamrock Rovers met for the first time in the Leinster League competition at Dalymount Park. Shamrock Rovers had a couple of changes in their team, M. Hopper coming in at centre half-back, and M'Kendrick inside right forward. The inclusion of Hopper stabilised the defence, and his experience and knowledge of the game proved of considerable advantage to the attack. The form displayed by both sides was up to the average for League games. Near goal, however, Egan, at centre for Bohemians, was much too slow. The backs, particularly the fulls, were prone to wild kicking, and to this defect was due the fact that Rovers gained the lead after forty minutes' play. In the closing half the pace was faster, and here, as in the preceding period, Bohemians had the better of the exchanges, but failed to score, Marken missing a penalty in the closing stages, his shot hitting the bar. To the fine goalkeeping of Murphy and the ineptitude of the home forwards Shamrock Rovers are indebted for their narrow win. Result:—
Shamrock Rovers 1
Bohemians 0

Teams:—
Bohemians—Wilson; Griffiths and another; O'Brien, Marken, O'Kane; Harris, Cross, Egan, Roberts, Hatchell.
Shamrock Rovers—Murphy; Warren, Kelly; Glenn, Hopper, Doyle; Campbell, M'Kendrick, Flood, Fullam, O'Brien.

DUNDALK.

REBEL'S SMART WIN IN MOUNTAIN PLATE.

OUTLAW SCORES.

There was another good day's sport at Dundalk yesterday, and, if anything, the attendance was bigger than on the first day, while fields were again of good size. A couple of favourites scored, but, on the whole, backers had the worst of the argument. There was really little betting on the Greenore Hurdle, and four of the runners were practically in equal request. It provided a most interesting struggle between Glowanna and Charabanc, and the former, who had made most of the running, was just caught on the post by Charabanc, who made a dead-heat, and was subsequently allowed to walk over for the decider. The well-backed Polyphemus ran well, without ever really looking like scoring, and Slovenly Saint is another that performed creditably. Steady Scotch had run so well against King Michael at Baldoyle that it was not surprising to find him in best demand for the Castlebellingham Hurdle, and odds were laid on Mr. Cogan's horse. The Bleeka gave him some little trouble for a long way, but Steady Scotch was always going the better, and he prevailed by three lengths. The pair practically had the race to themselves. On the book, Outlaw had a great chance for the Northern Plate, and backers were not slow to seize upon him as the pick of the half-dozen runners. He wound up an even-money chance, and although for a long way the outsider, Storm, threatened danger, the favourite very readily ran him out of it at the finish. There was an exciting finish for the Ravensdale Plate between Sunny Bird and Ballina Breeze, and the latter was probably a little unlucky to succumb by a neck, for he had to come on the outside as the straight was entered. Kilcruttin was favourite for the event, and he held a winning chance until a couple of furlongs from home, when he dropped out. Odds were laid on Sporty Boyee for the Mountain Plate, but his backers soon knew their fate, for he refused the first fence, and at the second Poor Gift came to grief. This left only four in it, and Rebel, who made all the running and jumped in clever style, won by a couple of lengths from Helmet. A big field contested the Corinthian Plate, for which a favourite was found in Kinegar, but he had to be content with second place, and the winner turned up in the outsider, Water Lily. Sweet Home was for a long way in front, and she looked like scoring when she lost her rider in the straight. Details:—

NEWMARKET.

IRISH BATTLE WINS THE PAYNE STAKES.

So many of the interests of Newmarket are wrapped up with those of the Jockey Club that it is gratifying to know that the ruling body is taking a practical interest in the recently opened club at Newmarket for ex-service men. The land on which the club is erected is Jockey Club property, and the Stewards have decided to let this at the nominal rent of £1 per annum. In addition, the Jockey Club has notified its intention to make a contribution of £100 to the funds.

The final stage of the meeting did not suffer such a collapse as is sometimes experienced in similar circumstances, but the racing was commonplace enough. The Payne Stakes, for instance, did not attract a single really top-class three-year-old. Erehwemos ran for the Duke of Westminster in preference to Mouse Trap, but he was not nearly good enough, displaying a lamentable lack of staying power; whilst Ceylonese, the choice of Sir Abe Bailey's three, did no better. Beary rode a particularly well-judged race on the winner, Irish Battle, nursing him beautifully and bringing him along at the right moment. Irish Battle is not a bad-looking son of Lemberg, but his previous form was not distinctive. Still, he is undoubtedly an improving colt that may be capable of still greater achievements, though yesterday's race might not have required much winning.

The two-year-old races were both taken by youngsters who had scored last time out. Eagerford had not a strong opposition to face in repeating his Chester success in the Breeders' Stakes, but he might have had a severer task had Retaliator kept a straight course, instead of swerving under Donoghue in the neighbourhood of the dip. Pharos, in the Bedford Stakes, fully justified expectations, winning probably more readily than the official verdict of his beating of Vermena would suggest. He is owned by Lord Derby, but all that owner's horses are still carrying the light blue and brown cap of their trainer, Mr. George Lambton. For the second year in succession Vencedor credited Sir William Nelson with the Flying Handicap. It was a very fine performance, for he carried no less than 10st. 9lb. Beary was again the successful jockey. No one is riding better than he at present. A few strides further past the post Sun Shaft would have been the winner, but he was receiving no less than 46lb.

GATWICK.

PROSPECTS AND SELECTIONS.

With to-day's meetings being so widely separated as are Haydock and Gatwick, the interests can hardly be considered to clash in a serious way; but, judging by the respective lists of the Newmarket departures yesterday morning, the more attractive sport will be witnessed at the Northern fixture. Gatwick boasts a numerous Metropolitan clientele, and I make no doubt that "New Croydon" will register to-day another success. Unless the contingent of sixteen horses sent from Newmarket yesterday morning is considerably reinforced from headquarters, provincial stables will probably annex most of the prizes, the principal of which in to-day's programme is the Three-Year-Old Handicap. My selections for the day are as follows:—

Ashdown Plate—Troika.
Leonards Plate—Sweet Memory filly.
Alexandra Handicap—Jacqueminot.
Reigate Handicap—Queen's Guild.

IRISH CLOSE CHAMPIONSHIP.

MUNN DEFEATS TILLIE IN FINAL.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

PORTRUSH, Thursday.

Ector Munn, the North-West golfer, created to-day a record that is unique in the history of the Irish Close Championship. After a lapse of eight years he succeeded to the title which his brother, Lionel, won in 1914, that being the last championship which the greatest of Irish amateurs placed to his credit in the course of a brilliant golfing career. Munn's opponent to-day was Lieutenant-Colonel Tillie, who, like himself, saw much service in France during the Great War, and they both fought this championship with the dogged determination and pluck of the soldier. That Munn deserved the laurels of victory goes without saying. On the day he was the more finished golfer, and, be it said, that all through this championship he displayed the greater consistency. Tillie played much better golf on the previous three days, but when it came to the supreme test he proved unequal to it, and, doubtless, Munn's experience gained in two previous close championships was a big factor in his favour; but, as stated, the better all round golfer won. Indeed, Munn, by his exhibitions this week, gave convincing proof that he was the most polished golfer competing for the title. It was a grandly contested match. The golf was no better or no worse than what one expects to see in championship finals, but it was a final worthy of the best traditions of our native championship.

FIRST ROUND.

A big gallery followed the players at 10 o'clock in dull weather, but gradually the mist enveloping the distant sandhills disappeared, and the sun coming out the conditions became summerlike. Munn began well by winning the first hole. Tillie drove right over the ridge with an excellent tee shot, but found the bunker, and took two to get out, and gave up. He was also in the bunker guarding the second, and lost this hole. They took three putts each on the third, which was halved in 4. So far there was nothing dazzling about the golf. Munn had trouble at the fourth, where he was trapped near the green, but recovered well to secure a half, a like result in six being recorded at the fifth, to which the North-West man was again punished off a poor second. He hit two excellent shots to the sixth, being pin high, but Tillie was not much too short with his second. Munn, however, had a downhill putt from the left side of the green, and almost holed out in 3, and Tillie, failing to get a two yarder in for 4, he dropped further behind. Tillie took a spoon to the short seventh, and once more hooked it, and Munn, lying short, ran up a lovely approach to take the hole in 3 to his opponent's 4. Munn was now 4 up, but following a half topped his mashie shot to the eighth. He was lucky to share honours in 5, although Tillie played his iron short. Two well-hit wooden club shots by Tillie got him home at the ninth, and Munn, lying to the left, lost the hole in 5 to 4, but he turned 3 up.

Tillie was nicely on the green in 2, but Munn played a mashie shot, and slipped back into the shallow bunker. Tillie had 3 here, for he sunk a long putt, and with Munn missing one of a yard and a half at the eleventh for a half, Tillie reduced his opponent's lead to 1. Munn played better to the twelfth, finding the left-hand side of the green, but Tillie pitched beautifully over the hillock to the holeside, and well deserved the half. The short fourteenth was halved in 4, both pulling their tee shots. Nor was the golf to the valley hole good, for Munn hooked his second almost to leg, while Tillie sliced his up on the sandhills, but each played excellent thirds, and holed in fives, Tillie almost getting down his first putt. Halves at the next two followed. The Colonel was hole high at the seventeenth, with his opponent a few yards short; but Tillie required three putts, whereas Munn had a good 3 to become 2 up. The local man should at least have halved the home hole, for he was on the bank fronting the green in 2, with Munn, whose ball had bounded through the left-hand bunker, short on the left. Tillie, however, topped his chip shot, and Munn, running up nicely, was down in 4 to 5, to take a lead of 3 holes.

SECOND ROUND.

Munn's second found a heavy lie in the sand on the hill guarding the first green, and Tillie, playing the hole perfectly, won it in 4 to 6. Munn got one back again at the second, where he hit a lovely, if risky, pitch shot for his third, which just carried the side of the bunker, the leader being down in 5 to 6. Bunkered on the left of the third, Tillie also lost this hole, to become 4 down, but to the fourth Tillie hit a splendid second to the corner of the green, and he was down in 4. A badly-judged approach putt at the fifth lost Munn another, and then two halves in 5 and 3 were recorded. Although lying badly on the side of the bunker at the eighth off his second, Munn, by a brilliant shot and great putt, got 4, and with a beautiful 3 at the ninth holed a great putt, and thus they started for home, with Munn 2 to the good.

He greatly enhanced his chance by a perfect 3 at the tenth, holing a six yards putt, and, 3 up and 8 to go, he was now in a strong position. Tillie fought it out grandly, but struck his true form, and Munn, playing a steady game, ultimately became dormy 3. The end came at the seventeenth, which each played badly, the approaches from the side of the green being crude; but Munn had 4 to 5, and so became the native champion. Result:—Ector Munn (North-West) beat Lieutenant-Colonel Tillie (Royal Portrush)—3 and 1.

£1,000 TOURNAMENT.

DUNCAN'S GREAT ACHIEVEMENT.

ST. ANDREWS RECORD BROKEN.

ST. ANDREWS, Thursday Night.

George Duncan, the most dazzling golfer of the time, displayed the greatest golf of his career late this afternoon, when he went round the classic championship links of St. Andrews in the hitherto unheard-of score of 68. By this amazing performance he did two things. He not only broke the record of the course, but he rehabilitated British pride in its golfing power, for the record since last June has been in the keeping of Jock Hutchison, the naturalised Scottish-American, who carried the Open Championship Cup across the Atlantic, and Jim Barnes, the Cornishman, who for 15 years has been a professional in the United States. In the qualifying competition, and Hutchison in his last round of the Championship, each did a 70, and, as St Andrews is the supreme course in the world, our golfing dignity was a little affected by the circumstance that essentially American professionals, although natives of this country, had scores on the famous championship links which no one here could equal. But Duncan, at his first competition at the home of the game since the Championship was lost to the country, has set all that right, and when he holed for 68 the vast crowd simply lost all control of their joyous emotions. It was a marvellous feat of golf. It was a characteristic Duncan effort, for the Aberdeen Scot plays best in these events when his back is to the wall and he has apparently, the impossible to achieve.

The story of the determined conflict for the largest share of the spoils in the £1,000 presented to the Professional Golfers' Association revolves round a handful of players. In the fourth round at the end of the first day, when two rounds of the four had been played, Aubrey Boomer led Syd. Wingate by a single stroke, but, of the men who have proved their mettle in the past, Ray, Duncan, and Braid were all within striking distance. It was a perfect day for golf—no wind, and a light shower or two in the afternoon was scarcely noticed. The close of the third round saw the situation change substantially in favour of Wingate, who put a 74 against Boomer's 78, Ray's 76, Braid's 74, and Duncan's 76. The last-named now looked out of the race, seven strokes behind the leader. However, the situation when the last round was entered upon will be best realised by the leading scores. They were:—Wingate, 225; Boomer, 228; Ray, 229; Braid and Gaudin, 230; Fred. Robson (who had a third round of 73), 231; and Duncan, 232. The winner and chief prize-winners were certain to come from this group, and Ray was most favoured.

The big fellow was the first of the leaders to go, and he played delightful golf to the turn for 37. Ray was always timid of the short eleventh, where he once had a disastrous experience. He took 4 to it, and at the fourteenth he required 6 through taking three putts. When Ray finished in 75 and an aggregate of 304 he was thought the probable winner. But Duncan started wonderfully, and, with 35 to the turn, was only 1 behind Ray. He drew level with Ray's score at the tenth, and headed it at the fourteenth. He finished with a burst of golfing splendour—a 3 at the road and a 3 at the last. His 3 at the terrible road hole, Duncan admitted himself, was one of the biggest strokes of luck he had ever experienced in the game. His second shot—a spoon—got a lucky kick off the end of a bunker, and ran to within four yards of the hole, and he holed. To the home hole he played a fine mashie after a long drive. He knew he had 2 for a record, and, amidst dead silence, he took a long time on his putt. When he got it down, and broke the record, not by 1, but by 2, the crowd went delirious, carrying him shoulder high. Duncan was almost overcome by nerves when the putt went down.

To beat Duncan, Wingate required 74 and Boomer 71. The news of the splendid record flashed across the links, and, doubtless, affected the two younger men, for the French professional, after doing a steady 40 out, needed 45 home. Wingate was out in 40, or, at this point, 2 strokes better than Duncan's aggregate. He was still 2 better than Duncan at the twelfth. About this time he heard of Duncan's super effort, and although the Birmingham man played with praiseworthy steadiness he did nothing outstanding, and he holed in a total of eighty, and an aggregate of 305, or one behind Ray. Neither Braid, Gaudin, nor Robson produced any fireworks at the last, and Duncan's position at the head of affairs remained unchallenged. It was a wonderful success, and repeats his victory in the tournament of 1920. Duncan's record round was:—

Out	3	4	4	4	5	5	4	3	3	=	35

IRISH OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP

TO BE HELD AT PORTRUSH.

In the course of his speech at the presentation of the prizes at the close of the Close Championship by the Rev. J. L. Morrow at Portrush yesterday, Dr. G. Price, Hon. Secretary, G.U.I., said it was his privilege to make an interesting announcement. As they were aware, there are four courses on which the Irish Open Championship is played—Royal Portrush and Royal County Down in the North, and Royal Dublin and Portmarnock in the South. It had hitherto been the practice to play the championship on these courses in turn, alternately in the North and the South. Last year it was played at Newcastle, and, following the rotation, it was arranged to play it at Dollymount this year. Owing, however, to circumstances not anticipated when the fixture was made, the Royal Dublin Club found it impossible to take the meeting. Portmarnock, the other open championship course in the South, had been fixed as the venue of an important competition in August, and, in these circumstances, the Royal Portrush Club had generously offered the Golfing Union their course for the Open Championship, which would be held at Portrush in the week commencing 11th September. The challenge cup finals would be played on the preceding Friday, 8th September, and the open stroke competition on the 9th. (Applause.) This, he thought, was a happy solution of the difficulties in which they had found themselves. (Applause.)

PRESENTATION TO REV. J. L. MORROW.

The presentation from the golf clubs of Ireland to the late Hon. Secretary of the Irish Golfing Union formed an interesting termination to the championship meeting at Portrush yesterday. It took the form of a cheque for £200, subscribed by the Irish clubs, and a massive gold signet ring suitably engraved.

In making the presentation, Mr. Hugh C. Kelly paid a glowing tribute to the services rendered to Irish golf by Mr. Morrow for over twenty years. Alluding to the presentation, he stated that the idea of presenting the cheque to Mr. Morrow was conceived so as to enable the recipient to purchase a car to visit the many Irish clubs of which he is now an hon. member, or to take a well-earned holiday in lieu of the many holidays he forfeited in the cause of Irish golf.

Dr. Price also spoke, and Mr. Morrow, in a witty speech, tendered his thanks to all the clubs, who had placed him in the position of becoming the owner of a motor car.

LANCASHIRE AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP.

The Lancashire amateur championship was won at Formby yesterday by T. L. Heald (Hesketh), who beat C. Read (Manchester) in the final—4 and 3.

RAILWAYS BOOMING.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT AND THE "FINANCIAL NEWS" OF TO-DAY.)

Speculative interest was again almost entirely confined to Home Rails, which opened with a burst of strength, and there was a larger turnover yesterday than for some considerable time past. In the low-priced stocks very active business was in progress, especially in Chathams and North British Def., both of which had a notably sharp rise. Practically the whole list of stocks closed appreciably higher on the day, although the final quotations did not represent quite the highest points reached. A considerable amount of stock came on to the market in the course of the afternoon, causing quotations in most cases to ease somewhat; nevertheless, the tendency at the close of the session was very firm. Markets generally, which are suffering just now from a restriction of business, were very inactive until towards the close.

LONDON STOCKS STEADY.

BOOM IN ENGLISH RAILS.

The feature on the Stock markets yesterday was the further advance in Home Rails. A substantial rise was marked all round. The tone at the close was very strong. The gilt-edged market was very quiet. The only change of importance was a rise of ⅛ to 99⅝ in the 5 p.c. War Loan.

FOREIGN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES were generally dull, and changes were few. Brazilians were lower, the 4 p.c. 1889 falling 1 to 53, and the Funding of 1914 gave way a point to 70.

HOME RAILS were buoyant, and some good advances were shown on the day. Great Northern Pref. rose 2½ to 69 and the Def. ½ to 38½. London and North-Western also gained 2½ points to 98½; Metropolitan District rose 2 to 38½, while Electric Income Bonds rose 2 to 79½. The Electric Ord. rose ⅛ to 2½. Chatham Ord. at 10⅞ rose 1 and Great Eastern at 40 gained 1½. Midland Def. at 64 was a point higher, and North-Eastern Consols were 1 up at 104½. Caledonian Def.-Ord. gained ⅜ at 12¾, and North British Def. at 18¾ was ¾ up. Great Western, Brighton "A," and South-Eastern Def. were each ½ better.

In COLONIAL and FOREIGN RAILS the tone was flat all round. "Canpacs" fell 2 to 158. Argentines were lower. "B.A.G.S." fell ½ to 73½ and Pacifics ½ to 47½. Mexicans also were weak. The Ord. was ½ down at 15, and the 8 p.c. Pref. fell 1 to 42. Mexican National 2nd Pref. lost ½ at 6. San Paulo Ord. fell 3½ to 128½. Americans were heavy in sympathy. Chicago Milwaukee fell 1½ to 28½. Atchison at 111, Baltimore at 51, Southern Common Pref. at 62, Southern Pacific at 101, and Union Pacific at 153 were each a point lower.

MINES HEALTHY.

CHARTERED ACTIVE.

Business in Mining shares was still at a low ebb. Except in one or two isolated cases, movements were insignificant, but the tone kept very firm. The Kaffir market was waiting for further news as to the outstanding ex-enemy shares, and also for the Rand April output and Labour figures, but it was not altogether idle. Some quiet buying of several Far-Easterns was in progress, Springs Mines being prominent. Brakpan, Government Areas, and the Modders were all well supported, but Johnnies and the Randfontein eased on profit-taking. The list, however, at the close presented a very healthy appearance. In the Rhodesian department Chartered picked up towards the close and became quite a lively centre, considerable lines of shares changing hands at rising prices. Globes fell back sharply on the publication of the poor development results for April, but Tanganyika were firm. Closing prices:—

LONDON WOOL SALES.

Catalogues comprising 11,470 bales privately owned wool were brought forward last evening. Spirited competition was forthcoming for the good selection of Colonial wools brought forward, prices realised being fully up to those most recently quoted. 800 bales of Kent fleeces offered attracted considerable attention, and animated competition from both home and Continental buyers, the catalogue being practically cleared at prices showing substantial advances over those lately offered in the country.

INDUSTRIALS IDLE.

MARCONIS IMPROVE.

Very little of interest transpired in the Miscellaneous and Industrial markets yesterday. Jute Industries Pref. continued to receive support in the miscellaneous trading group, and Crosse and Blackwells firmed up, while in the Wireless group Marconis enjoyed another rise. Textiles were featureless, apart from Courtaulds, which suffered a further set-back after hours. Breweries exhibited firmness, though Caterers were not quite so good. Tobaccos continued steady. Shipping issues showed few changes, while movements among Iron and Steels were mostly unimportant. Banks displayed firmness, and Insurance shares kept up. Pekings were a firm spot among Land shares. Marconis continued their upward movement in the Wireless group, and closed ⅛ higher on balance at 2⅛, while the Prefs. also closed that much better at 2⅛. Marines remained at 1½, but Canadians fell back to 12s. 3d. Breweries were quite a good market. Watney Combe 5½ p.c. Debs. rose a point to 68½, Ashbys ½ to 8, and Cannon Prefs. and Meux's Prefs. ½ each to 6½ and 7⅞ respectively. James Eadie Prefs. put on ⅛ to 6½, while Walker-Cain strengthened to 17s. 6d. Courtaulds suffered a set-back to 48s. 6d. after hours as the result of profit-taking, and elsewhere in the Textile group Amalgamated Cottons receded to 12s. Coats still ruled at 64s., Fine Spinners at 36s., and Sewing Cottons at 42s. 6d.

RISE IN EASTERN BANKS.

In the Banking section Eastern Banks exhibited strength. Hong Kong and Shanghai rose a point to 116, and National of India strengthened to 41. Standard of South Africa put on ⅛ at 22½, and Motor Unions improved to 5⅛. Among Iron and Steels, Pease and Partners lost part of the previous day's advance at 27s. 6d., and Bengal Irons and Chinese Engineering both closed ⅛ lower at 1⅛ and 3⅛ respectively. J. Brown fully paid receded to £1, and Johnson and Phillips weakened to 18s. 9d. B.S.A. improved to 9s. 6d., and Barrow Hematites put on ⅛ to 2⅛. Babcock and Wilcox showed no change at 2⅛, despite the maintenance of the dividend. Vickers continued at 12s. 3d., the Tax-free Prefs. at 16s., and Armstrongs at 16s. ex div. Cammell Lairds remained at 14s. 6d., Cargo Fleets at 15s. 6d., Dorman Longs at 17s., Ebbw Vales at 14s. 9d., and Guest Keens at 33s. 6d. Coal Stocks showed no quotable alterations. Brazilian Tractions showed no change at 49 in the Canadian-American group. Dunlops lost the turn at 7s. 10½d.

OILS IRREGULAR.

ACTIVE DEMAND FOR LOBITOS.

The Oil Share market had a very quiet appearance in the morning, but a keen demand sprang up later in the day for a few specialities, among which Lobitos, Anglo-Ecuadorian, Phœnix, and Tankers Prefs. were particularly prominent. The buying of Lobitos was of a strong character, and appears to be based on optimistic estimates in regard to the final dividend. Dividend possibilities was given as the reason for the renewed strength of Phœnix Oils, which, by the way, stand at only about 1s. below the best price of the year, it being rumoured in the market that the company may pay an interim dividend of 2s. 6d. per share. In sympathy with Phœnix, other Rumanian issues were firm. Paucity of demands accounted for shrinkages in Royal Dutch, Shells, and Mexican Eagles. The various Pref. issues maintained a steady tone, and Anglo-Persian Ord. continued firm. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company has disposed of its holdings of common stock in the Radio Corporation of America. In explanation it is stated that it is the policy of the company only to hold the securities of its associated companies in the Bell Telephone system.

Beyer, Peacock, and Co. propose to purchase one-third of the outstanding Debenture Stock at £80 per cent. Stock remaining after selling at least one-third of the holdings will bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent., all other stock remaining at the rate of 4½ per cent.

The Court of Directors of the Royal Exchange Assurance has accepted, with much regret, the resignation, owing to ill-health, of Mr. H. E. Nightingale, F.I.A., from the position of Actuary, which he has held for the last 29 years. To succeed him it has, as from the 15th instant, appointed Mr. T. F. Anderson, F.I.A., F.F.A., to be Actuary of the Corporation. Mr. T. F. Anderson commenced his service with the Corporation in the Life Department of the Royal Exchange Assurance in 1895, and has been for some years manager of the Trustee and Executor Department of the Corporation.

The meeting of The Eagle Oil Transport Company will be held at Winchester House, London, on Monday, 22nd inst., at noon, for the purpose of receiving the Directors' report and accounts of the Company, and to transact the ordinary business of the Company.

The transfer books of the Liverpool Warehousing Company will be closed from the 16th to the 31st inst., both days inclusive.

So far the news of the disposal of ex-enemy Kaffir Share holdings has failed to stimulate the Mining Market appreciably, there being no other factors in the situation. One relates to the supply of native labour. Accordingly the impending Rand labour figures will be watched with interest, for upon an adequate supply of the latter depends the rehabilitation of the mining industry of that district. These are expected to show a satisfactory increase at the end of the month, while private advices relating to subsequent movement indicate continued progress. A second factor is the recommendations of the recently appointed commission for inquiring into the mining reforms in dispute between the mine owners and the white workers. That these will be reasonable is certainly suggested by the action of several mining houses in buying the enemy holdings. The third is the cost of mining supplies which absorbed more of the revenue than direct labour. Most annual reports lately to hand record a considerable fall in the latter towards the end of the period reviewed. As these three factors become more definitely clear business should expand.

ACCELERATED MAIL SERVICES.

A conference between members of the Limerick Chamber of Commerce and Mr. G. E. Smith, traffic manager, Great Southern and Western Railway; Mr. P. J. Floyd, Superintendent of the Line; and Mr. T. Stack, District Superintendent, took place yesterday in reference to the Southern mails service.

As a result of the conference it is stated that the public may soon expect an earlier arrival of the mail train in Limerick, and a later despatch of the outgoing mails; also that there will be an earlier morning train from Limerick to Dublin, and a train returning at 8 p.m., which would give passengers more time to transact their business in the metropolis and return on the same day.

BELFAST LINEN TRADE.

A feature of the Belfast linen trade for the past week has been the increased business placed with manufacturers, especially for the coarser quality of goods. Quick delivery is essential in all cases, which is regarded as a good sign, and indicates that stocks are in a narrow compass. Another satisfactory feature is the number of inquiries which are being received, and manufacturers are hopeful that these will lead to actual orders. In the spinning end of the industry deliveries against orders are keeping stock pretty well in check. Tows have been sold about equal to production, though the same does not apply as fully to lines. Some fair parcels of latter have changed hands for damasks. Merchants report that a fair demand has been experienced for household linens such as damasks, hucks, and towels. Natural and white embroidery linens have also been moving steadily, and a moderate amount of business has been placed during the past week over the various lines. The Irish flax markets were smaller last week. There was an improved demand for the lower quality, and consequently the value was against buyers. There was no change in the better end. On the Continent there is very little change to report. The demand was better for the poorer class, but the top grades were more or less neglected. French spinners are at present keen buyers of the lower classes of dew-retted flaxes.

PRODUCE AND FOOD.

CATTLE.

METROPOLITAN CATTLE MARKET, North Circular road, Thursday.—There was little differences from last week in the numerical strength of our stock supply to-day; sheep and lambs again in abnormal numbers for season. The general gathering, however, was of mediocre and commonplace character, and market followed a more cautious and irregular routine in business than previously. Few shippers in evidence; butchers obliged to pay about previous tip-top prices for fancy lots of cattle, but after these there was a surprisingly wide difference. Sheep fully 5s. to 10s. per head down, and it is questionable if a concession of 15s. to 20s. per head would effect sales in some of the rougher classes. Lambs also about 3s. to 5s. or 7s. per head worse, in fact a £3 3s. lamb to-day was a £3 10s. lamb last week, and figures around these worked out in proportion. A big carry-over of unsold lambs and sheep, also of rough cattle.

	Numbers on sale this week as compared with last.		Corresponding weeks of 1921.	1920.
Sheep and lambs	9,432	decrease 65	5,941	6,148
Veal calves	8	increase 3	—	7

The beast trade proved disappointing and irregular. Certain butchers were obliged to pay well up to last day's money for the pick of choicer sorts of heifers and oxen, viz., 67s. 6d. to 70s., in a few exceptional cases 72s. to 73s. per cwt., perhaps 6d. to 1s. more in fancy or special instances. These transactions, however, were comparatively rare. Best run of steers and heifers averaged 63s. to 67s. 6d., but good useful qualities could be bought down around 60s.; coarser sorts back to, say, 52s. 6d. and 58s. per cwt. Fat cows were a slack and uncertain business, averaging, say, 44s. to 47s. 6d. per cwt. on foot, with occasional fancy young sorts around 50s. per cwt. Old and rough descriptions anywhere back to 27s. 6d., according to character. Fat bulls an absolute drug on market; it would be an extra nice animal that realised 42s. to 44s. per cwt. One of outstanding merit in quality of meat weighing over 18 cwt., perhaps the nicest animal on market, was sold for £41, barely a fractional calculation above 44s. per cwt. Rougher class of bulls perhaps 33s. to 40s. per cwt. It was said that most shippers who took bulls from here last week lost more or less seriously on their realisation at the other side. To-day's prices for cattle on foot are approximately 12s. to 17s. 6d. per cwt. under currencies of this market last year.

The sheep and lamb market got rather a severe shaking with regard to price; most of the animals penned were of unsuitable class, which made business tedious. A conspicuous scarcity of wethers, and especially those of 2 or 3 year old character; so much so that prices can only be quoted as nominal. A fair show of shearling hoggets and ewes; the nicer qualities of the former realised 1s. 2d. to 1s. 3d. or 1s. 4d. per lb., but for best clipped ewes prices would be possibly around 1s. to 1s. 1d. or 1s. 2d. per lb. Wool sheep are becoming harder to quote for owing to their uncertain condition, and prices possibly run from 10d. to 1s. 3d. or 1s. 5d. per lb., latter figures covering the few A1 wethers to be met with. Lambs were fully 3s. to 5s. and 7s. per head worse than previously, the general run being 56s. to 63s. each, and for specially selected lots here and there 67s. to 70s. and 75s. per head; weak and small classes rating, say, 28s. up to 54s. each, according to condition. With regard to sheep and lambs, sheep may be quoted 2d. to 3d. per lb. under corresponding week of last year, and 8d. to 10d. per lb. under that of 1920. Lambs nearly 15s. to 23s. apiece less than this time twelve months, in the main.

DUBLIN DAIRY, North Circular road, Thursday.—There was an increased number of milch cows and springers put on our market this week, viz., 211 exhibits. Trade was more cautious than last week, and mostly confined to local dairymen. Previous basis of values, however, was about maintained for milchers of useful and prime type, especially those with great bag capacity, which drew up to £30, £33, and £34 apiece. Good average stockers, £24 to £28, and small and ordinary cows, £14 to £21, or £22 each.

DUBLIN PIG, North Circular road, Thursday.—We had a larger market of swine forward here this morning, just 1,010 head being penned. Up to 8 a.m. arrivals were limited, and early buyers were obliged to pay last week's enhanced rates, especially for choice bacon and pork hogs. Subsequently, however, on market filling in trade took a more cautious turn, when opening terms proved harder to repeat. The nicer classes of medium heavy hogs were generally placed to better advantage than before. Stores relatively very dear. Choice bacon and pork hogs, £6 to £6 5/- per cwt., approximate dead weight; others, £5 to £5 15/- ditto; sow pigs, 63/- to 90/- and 100/- per cwt. on foot.

BIRMINGHAM CATTLE, Thursday.—Trade for pigs, which were in small to moderate supply, was variable. Bacons in demand and firm, but sows and cutters very slow. Quotations (per score dead-weight):—Sizeables, bacons, 22/-; small pigs, 21/-; sows, 16/- to 16/6 per cwt.

BRISTOL CATTLE, Thursday.—Beef and mutton in moderate supply. Beef, 115/- to 123/- per cwt. dead-weight; mutton, 1/9 to 1/11 per lb.; lamb, 2/- per lb. Four hundred store cattle. Steady demand at somewhat improved prices. Milch cows, £22 to £30; extra, £38.

GLASGOW MARKET REPORT, 10th May, 1922.—Hegarty and Kelly, 275 Duke street, Glasgow, report average supplies of fat cattle in Glasgow Market to-day. For best quality demand was firm at recent quotations. Rough sorts, especially cows, were stiffer to sell and cheaper. Sheep and lambs met a keen demand, prices ruling in sellers' favour. Telegrams—Hegarty, Glasgow.—(Advt.)

LIVERPOOL, Thursday.—WHEAT—A steadier feeling prevailed in speculative positions of wheat here at the outset, and, encouraged by American cables, trading later registered a fair improvement, but little disposition was shown to follow the advance, though the market finished at best on favourable late afternoon cables.

MANCHESTER, Thursday.—Little business passing in English wheat at last week's prices. Foreign lower on week. Indian corn scarce on spot. Mixed American new crop 7/1, old crop 7/2, Plate 8/3½ per cental. Lincoln oats 1/- higher. Bran and offals steady.

BRISTOL, Thursday.—Higher prices check business in English wheat. There is a fair supply. Foreign quiet, unchanged. Grinding barley—Moderate demand, unaltered. Round maize quiet; flat 6d. dearer on week. Oats 6d. higher.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL, Thursday.—BACON—There was no new feature observable in the situation for bacon here, values of live hogs and speculative products generally being dearer, while arrivals were only moderate, but, with buyers operating merely for their actual needs, no quotable change took place in values. Irish and Continental sides still in limited compass and firmly held. LARD on spot steady. CHEESE freely offered, and white Canadian now quoted 86/- to 89/-, coloured 90/- to 96/- cwt. BUTTER quiet; no further change in value reported. EGGS slow of sale, with Irish hen offered at 12/6 to 13/6, duck 15/- to 15/6, Polish 12/- to 12/3 per 120.

DUBLIN POTATO, Thursday.—Trade for city consumption very dull at about previous values, viz., 11/- per cwt. for best selected Dates, and around 11/6 to 12/- for special Sharries. The expected boom in potatoes at the other side of the Channel has apparently subsided, and where advances were demanded these have since been partially or altogether wiped out. THE MONEY MARKET.

LOANS AND DISCOUNTS FIRMER.

TREASURY BILL PROSPECTS.

There was again a rather firmer tone about Lombard street yesterday, due to the realisation that rates had been unduly low; but it is confidently hoped that the result of to-day's Treasury bill tenders will be on a much more reasonable basis. Loanable funds were quite abundant again, with a small surplus eventually offering for the night on almost nominal terms. Daily money was going on at 2 p.c. and fixtures at 2½ p.c., with new seven-day loans to be obtained at 2 to 2½ p.c. There was not much doing in discounts, but the tendency was distinctly steadier for the reasons mentioned. Fine three months' bills were 2½ p.c., with 2⅝ p.c. sometimes quoted, although no bills were to be obtained at the higher figure. Second-hand Treasury bills were practically 2½ p.c., at which price some were taken by the banks.

RAINFALL IN APRIL.

A COLD, WINDY MONTH.

An unusually cold month, with penetrating northerly winds, which greatly retarded vegetation. In Dublin it was the coldest April for fifty years, and colder than last December, February, or March. There was a good deal of hail and sleet, and frequent ground frosts. The total rainfall was about average: on the 14th the whole country experienced heavy rain, the day's fall generally exceeding an inch, and reaching 1½ inches at a few stations in the South. Total rainfall for the month:—

STORE CATTLE SALES.

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW, LTD.—There was a seasonable number of cattle at above sale yesterday, but, notwithstanding the improvement in pastures and the milder weather prevailing, prices were not so high as expected and some useful bullocks remained unsold. Aged heifers, however, were much sought after, and more of these cattle could have been sold. Horned bullocks made £23 15/- (47/-), £21 10/- (47/8), £19 5/- (46/6), £18 10/- (45/-), £17 5/- (43/6), £16 17/6 (44/-), £15 10/- (42/6), £15 5/- (43/6), £14 (42/6), £12 (43/-); heifers, £23 (52/6), £21 10/- (53/8), £14 (42/6), £13 5/- (41/-), £12 10/- (44/-), £11 15/- (39/-), £11 10/- (39/-), £10 12/6 (42/-); A.A. crosses, £27 (56/6), £21 (52/6), £16 5/- (54/3), £12 15/- (44/6), £12 10/- (43/-); Hereford crosses, £21 15/- (52/-), £20 (52/6).

MESSRS. R. and J. WILKINSON.—Trade for store cattle was in or about the same as last week, choice lots meeting good competition, but the bidding for the general run of entries continues in a cautious groove. There were some very useful draughts of aged feeding cattle sent forward, which were placed as follow:—Bullocks, £28 5/- (51/-), £27 (52/-), £26 5/- (53/6), £26 (52/-), £26 (51/-), £25 (52/6), £23 5/- (51/-), £23 (58/6), £23 (51/6), £22 15/- (54/6), £22 5/- (52/-). Polled bullocks—£25 (54/-), £23 (51/-), £22 (50/-). A pen of forward Angus cross heifers at £29 10/- made the extreme live-weight quotation of 67/-, while bullocks at £25 10/- were 58/-. Other lots of heifers sold at £29 (56/6), £28 (58/-), £26 (57/6), £19 (52/6), etc.

MESSRS. L. CUFFE and SONS.—A much larger supply of useful cattle in this yard to-day, and a steady trade for anything in forward condition. Some A.A. cross bullocks at £26 10/- weighed 9 cwt. Top price—£30—was made for a wagon of Co. Clare bullocks, 11½ cwt. Other lots, £24 to £26, made 50/- to 58/- per cwt. Several lots of good pollies were bought for England at about 52/- per cwt., but this cattle are still a drug in the market, and very hard to get bids for at 40/- to 45/- per cwt. Heifers are relatively dearer than bullocks, and are probably paying better for their winter keep. Next week being Show Week, sale will be at 11.30 sharp.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BRADFORD WOOL, Thursday.—Fine tops and yarns are fully sold for three months ahead, and users are so well covered that there is not much business passing. Prices are against the buyers. Medium and cross coarse cross-bred yarns are again dearer. A good deal of business has been transacted recently, and prices are on the up grade.

Best meadow hay quoted £7 10/- to £15; medium, £5 10/- to £15; inferior, £4 10/- to £15; best clover, £7 15/-; best mixtures, £7 10/- to £15. LONDON FREIGHTS—Thursday.

Homeward chartering operations were again on a limited scale. The low rates offering are apparently not sufficiently attractive to owners. The River Plate section shows rather more inquiry, but business is slow to materialise. Handy size steamers up river prompt loading quoted 30/- to 31/3, and June 28/9 to 30/-, U.K.-Continent, heavy grain. North American markets also quiet. Heavy grain, Montreal to Continent, indicates 16 cents, Lisbon 20 cents, Denmark 23 cents, and Mediterranean 21 cents. Australian wheat nominally unaltered at 46/3 for handy sizes. Home, Mediterranean, and Bay ports exhibit fair interest for mineral ore at late rates. Outward coal quiet, with ample tonnage offering at easy rates. Fixtures—Outcombe, 6,800 tons, 10 per cent., Buenos Ayres-La Plata to U.K.-Continent, 10th June, cancelling 27/6, heavy grain; Pontfield, 7,000 tons, Buenos Ayres-La Plata to Antwerp-Hamburg range, 5th to 20th June, 26/3, heavy grain Christian Bors, 6,000 tons, Rosario to U.K.-Bordeaux-Hamburg, 25th May, cancelling 30/-, heavy grain, completing down river 1/3 less.

TRADE DECLINE.

FALLS IN IMPORTS AND EXPORTS.

The Board of Trade returns for April, issued yesterday afternoon, show the value of imports as £80,661,216, compared with £87,879,424 in March, and as against £89,951,406 in April, 1921. As regards British exports, the total last month was valued at £55,507,649, a considerable drop contrasted with March, when the total was £64,580,793, and with April, 1921, when the figures were £59,867,585. It should be remembered, however, that last month had one day fewer than March, and that the Easter holidays occurred during April.

Imports during April, as compared with twelve months ago and in 1920, were:—

1922	£80,661,216
1921	89,951,406
1920	167,129,955

Exports during April, as compared with last year and in 1920, were:—

1922	£55,507,649
1921	59,867,585
1920	106,251,692

Re-exports for same periods were:—

1922	£9,199,774
1921	8,523,662
1920	20,407,419

WINE FROM PALESTINE.

SEIZED IN JEWISH HOUSE.

In the South Dublin Police Court, Joseph Isaacson, of 97 South Circular road, Dublin, was charged with having for sale at his residence on Friday, April 7, twenty-five and a half dozen bottles of wine, whiskey, and brandy, for which he had no licence. David Isaacson, father of Joseph, was also summoned for being occupier of the premises where the drink was kept for sale.

Mr. Davis conducted the prosecution, and Mr. Joseph O'Connor (instructed by Mr. Beatty) appeared for the defendants.

Sergeant Bermingham said that, on being asked if he had intoxicating liquor in the house, David Isaacson said that he had not. The witness produced the warrant, and said if the drink was not produced he would search the house. The defendant then said that there was drink in two rooms over the kitchen, the property of his son Joseph, who, he said, had a licence for it. The witness went to the rooms indicated, and found twenty dozen and one bottles of Palestine brandy, one dozen and ten bottles of cherry brandy, and twenty bottles of Cummin liqueur. There was no sign of consumption on the premises. Joseph Isaacson then came in, and said that he was the owner of the drink, and that he was agent for a Manchester firm, and was paid 6d. for each bottle of the wine that he sold and 1s. for each bottle of whiskey or brandy sold for the firm. When asked to produce some written document showing his agency, he said that he had not any at the time, and added that he had only been carrying on business in connection with drink for the past few days owing to the Jewish Festival which was approaching. He showed the witness a book, in which there were names and addresses of 150 customers in various parts of the city and suburbs. The defendant had applied to the Chief Commissioner for a licence, but it was not granted. Witness found about forty orders for whiskey and brandy.

Mr. O'Connor said that the defendants' case was that during the Passover period Jews were forbidden to drink anything which was not "kosher." The drink in question was a peculiar kind made in Palestine, and was subjected to ecclesiastical supervision, and was stamped by the Rabbi in Dublin, indicating that it was a drink that Jews might partake of during the period. The Excise authorities would not give Joseph Isaacson a licence because he had not a home, this being his father's home. Nobody was dealt with who was not a member of the Jewish community.

Mr. Collins imposed a fine of £3 against Joseph Isaacson.

AONAC TAILTEANN.

The usual weekly meeting of the Executive Committee of the Tailteann Games was held at the Wireless College, Henry street, on the 9th inst., Mr. J. J. Walsh, T.D., presiding.

Co-Ordination.—Some time was spent discussing the co-ordination of the various branches, and the arrangement of programmes, venues, etc. Some of the sub-committees not having submitted their proposals, it was not possible to arrive at final arrangements. A small sub-committee met last night, and will continue their deliberations to-night at the Aonac office, and a special meeting of the Chairmen of the Sports Sub-Committees will be held to-morrow at the Wireless College to draw up final arrangements.

Entry Forms, Colours, etc.—It was decided to adopt the ordinary entry forms in use in the various branches of sport for entries for the competitions. The colours selected for the home representative teams are St. Patrick's blue with white knickers.

Progress in America.—Despatches from Mr. Dobbyn, organiser, indicated that the Aonac was receiving very enthusiastic support in the States, and the American Press were devoting considerable attention to the event. The U.S. committees are now working earnestly. The Executive Committee comprises Hon. Murray Hulbert, President, Board of Aldermen, New York, Chairman; Mr. Loughman (President, N.Y. Athletic Club), James R. Nugent, Newark; William C. Prout, Boston (President, Amateur Athletic Union of U.S.); Hugh O'Toole, Tierney O'Rourke, P. J. O'Donohue, P. J. Grimes, etc. There are special sub-committees for transport, publicity, track and field cycling, hurling and football, and finance, all containing prominent citizens.

Newfoundland.—Mr. Dobbyn is in touch with representatives in Newfoundland, and preliminary preparations have been made for representation in the games.

Canada.—Mr. Dobbyn is at present in Canada, and the enthusiasm there is likely in time to rival that of the United States.

Scotland.—Mr. Fitzgerald, organiser, and Mr. Frieze (Chairman of the Scottish Tailteann Council) submitted very promising reports of progress in Scotland. The Swimming and Boxing Associations are giving valuable assistance, bringing the whole weight of their organisations to bear on their work, arranging trials and collections to meet expenses, etc. Scotland's representatives will enter teams for hurling, football, rounders, running, jumping, boxing, swimming (ladies and gentlemen), camogie and pipers' bands. A match between the hurlers and Scottish shinty players takes place on May 20th, at Celtic Park, and is exciting great interest.

England.—The Secretary of the English Tailteann Council reported that everything was progressing most favourably, and all arrangements complete for trial contests on Whit Monday. It was expected that at least 60 competitors would comprise the English representative team.

Bands.—Professor O'Dwyer reported that two meetings of the Bands Committee took place last week. Lists of competition pieces had been provisionally prepared and conditions drawn up. All will be finally settled at Friday's meeting.

Dancing.—This programme has been arranged as follows:—Hornpipe and double (male), reel and slip jig (female), Championship of Ireland (reel, jig and hornpipe), four-hand reel (mixed), junior reel and jig (boys or girls), junior hornpipe and double (boys), slip jig (girls), reel (boys or girls), four-hand reel or Humours of Bandon, three-hand reel (mixed). Preliminary trials will be held by the Gaelic League at various Feiseanna, etc.

Rifle and Revolver Shooting.—The Sub-Committee reported that the following programme had been arranged in consultation with the military authorities:—1. Individuals—Any rifle, 200, 500, and 600 yards, and 300 yards rapid. 2. Teams of Four—Military rifles. 3. Individuals—All Ireland rifle shot at distance 800, 900, and 1,000 yards. 4. Individuals—Match rifles, 800, 900, and 1,000 yards. 5. Individuals—Miniature rifles, 25 and 50 yards. 6. Individuals—Revolvers, at distance of 20 and 50 yards, both deliberate and rapid firing. 7. Teams of Four—Revolvers, 15 yards rapid, 25 yards deliberate, 25 yards rapid and 50 yards deliberate. 8. Individuals—All Ireland pistol shot, distances of 15 and 30 yards, both rapid and deliberate. It is provisionally arranged that the contests will be held at the Curragh Rifle Range on 3rd, 4th, and 5th August.

Other Branches.—All other branches submitted reports, which were, briefly, as follows:—Athletics and Cycling—Re-organisation proposals still being discussed, and further meetings arranged. Football and Hurling—Home trials shortly to commence. Arts—Programme completed. All going well. Tennis—Proposed venues, dates, etc., provisionally arranged. Motor Cycling—Awaiting decision as to use of Phœnix Park. Arrangements otherwise complete. Rowing—Enthusiastic meeting held, with large attendance from North and South. Programme finally arranged. Island Bridge course provisionally selected, and Dublin Union Boat Club being approached for one of their enclosures. Sub-Committee considering improvements in course. Rounders—Rules widely circulated, and clubs beginning practices. Boxing—Preliminary trials for Leinster arranged for end of May. Final trials later. Golf—Programme, dates, and venues decided upon, and scheme fully drawn up. Posters and circulars being printed for distribution to clubs. Chess—Programme completed and scheme fully drawn up. Yachting—Situation becoming even more favourable than originally anticipated. Two days' regatta on high-class scale assured. Clay Bird Shooting—Venue arranged at Leopardstown. All details complete. Three days' competition. Swimming—Negotiations proceeding with Zoological Gardens Society for use of Zoological Gardens. Plans for diving boards, etc., being prepared. Camogie—All going well. Handball—Eliminating contests for Irish representatives in international contests commencing next Sunday at Ballymun. Nine aspirants. Billiards—Programme provisionally drawn up. Arrangements for eliminating trials throughout Ireland being considered. Irish-made table secured for the competitions.

General Sub-Committee.—Transport Sub-Committee reported that all arrangements for Ireland have been completed. Special cheap fares and excursions on all lines. Cheap tickets are also being issued from England, Wales, and Scotland, and special boats from Glasgow and Liverpool being considered. A special representative is going to America to organise special steamers. The Accommodation Sub-Committee, Industrial Sub-Committee, Decoration Sub-Committee, Social Sub-Committee, and Publicity Sub-Committee, submitted satisfactory reports. The Trophies Sub-Committee reported that a design for statuettes by Mr. Albert Power and a design for medals by Mr. Oliver Sheppard had been provisionally adopted. Arrangements for the manufacture of the articles in Ireland are being undertaken.

Margaret L. Shortt, an assistant bookkeeper in the Imperial Hotel, Belfast, was sent for trial by the Belfast magistrates yesterday on a charge of embezzling £27 4s. 1d. from her employers. The prisoner, who was arrested in Dublin, pleaded not guilty.
